We Are Discontented

—Success in any undertaking is due primarily to discontent. Successful business and successful men are invariably discontented. Sounds paradoxical, but it is true, for discontent is creative and is responsible for every step in the world's progress.

—Ever since man took his place on this earth it has stimulated mental and physical activity and has carried on an untiring search for better ways of doing things.

—We are constantly striving to be of more service to our customers. How better to serve you is an ever-present thought with us. We believe that giving the best merchandise possible at the lowest prices possible is a big step in the right direction. We believe that strict adherence to our policy of not quoting comparative values is another strong link that holds your confidence in us; but we want to do more than that.

—We have our plans for the future; we have our ideals—all for the betterment of the store and for more helpful service to you.

—We welcome any suggestion. If feasible we shall immediately adopt it. Which, we think you will agree, is fair enough.
