2 PATROLMEN SUSPENDED BY POLICE BOARD

Action Taken Against Huntington and Russell Because Testimony Shows They Used Confiscated Liquor as Pay to Stool Pigeon.

Immediate suspension of Patrolmen Huntington and Russell, members of the moral squad under investigation in the recently unearthed liquor scandal, was recommended this morning by the police efficiency board, after hearing evidence that the two patrolmen had entered an agreement to pay a "stool pigeon" for his services in confiscated whiskey. Chief Jenkins and Mayor Baker decided to hold over the suspension until Monday.

Lewis Emera and William S. Gilbert, prisoners now being held in the county jail on charges of violating the prohibition law, testified that Patrolman Russell and the stool pigeon who is known as "Jonny" Marshall, raided their home at Twelfth and Division streets on October 19. They stated 36 quarts of whiskey were confiscated.

Weapons Used by Indians in Old Wars Are Found At Big Eddy, Or.

The Dalles, Nov. 13.—Excavation operations renewed in the ancient burial grounds uncovered recently at Big Eddy resulted in the finding Friday afternoon of numerous objects more interesting than any yet found there.

An entire wagon load of relics found in digging lasting but little more than one hour was brought to The Dalles Saturday by employes of the state highway commission. They will be sent to Portland next week. What was apparently a war club, about 20 inches long and made of stone, was among the finds. The head was carved after what was apparently a lizard's head. A carving in stone of an Indian canoe was also found, together with a number of these will be criss-crossed with laterals. The excavators have orders to go down until they are beneath the level of the graves, some of which are quite deep, due to the drifting sands.

TEAL GETS 4 YEAR STAY ON SHIP BOARD

Benson, Georgia; Thompson, Alabama; Donald, N. Y.; Rowell, California; Goff, Wisconsin; Sutter, Missouri, Are Others.

Man Who Gave Him Job in Days Of Breadline Is Heir to $8000

Because C. W. Boost, now commander of the Portland Motorboat club, gave a job to a hungry man in the days of Coxe's army, he is reaping a harvest of gratitude. John Horgren saw a sign in Boost's window, "Boy Wanted." Horgren was 25 years old, but he asked Boost if he wouldn't do.

TIGER BEATS YALE, SCORE IS 20 TO 0

For First Time in Twenty Years Princeton Humbles Old Eli Two Years in Succession; Touchdowns and Field Goals Do Trick

Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13.—Princeton's mighty Tiger chewed and clawed the Yale Bulldog almost to death here this afternoon, winning the forty-fourth annual game by a score of 20 to 0. A touchdown and a field goal in the second and third quarters enabled the Tigers to beat the Elis two years in succession, a feat they had not been able to accomplish for 20 years.

PROPOSE CHANGE IN CURFEW LAW

Curfew bells will ring at 9 instead of 8 o'clock in Portland, if the city adopts changes in the curfew ordinance recommended today at a conference held in the court room of Judge Jacob Kanzer of the court of domestic relations.

PROTESTS GORDON LEGISLATIVE SEAT

Salem, Or., Nov. 13.—Paul C. Dormitzer, Portland attorney, today filed with Secretary of State Koser a formal protest against the issuance of any election certificate to Herbert Gordon of Portland as a member of the state legislature from Multnomah county, to which he was elected at the recent general election.

French Satisfied With Italy's Peace With Jugo-Slavia

Paris, Nov. 13.—(U. P.)—The peace pact signed by Italy and Jugo-Slavia caused considerable satisfaction in Paris today, particularly in official circles. The French really were more concerned in the details of the Adriatic settlement than the Poles, who were in the foreground. The feeling here is that the Jugo-Slavs were badly worsted in the conference.

Yale and Princeton Alumni Get Returns

Old time rivalry was resurrected at the luncheon held by the Yale and Princeton alumni at the University club Saturday afternoon to receive returns of the game played in the East. The returns were received by special wire. Cheers and songs followed the calling of the plays by the announcer. The Yale team was led by Willie Clark, while Prescott Cookingham kept the Tiger cubs howling.

"But the job pays only $5 or $6 a week," said Boost. "But I am hungry," replied Horgren, and he got the job. That was in 1922. Recently, Horgren died and when his will was read, it was found that, aside from small bequests to others, Boost became legatee for all the rest of an estate worth about $15,000. An administrator Boost is now closing up the estate, and only some lots remain to be sold. Boost estimates that his share will be around $7000 or $8000.

After he had worked for Boost for a time in the old Portland Wire company Horgren managed to sell some supposedly worthless timber land he held and with the proceeds bought lots at East Tenth and Planders streets, where he erected a shop. Boost's son, John D. Boost, started the Reliance Wire and Iron works, and Horgren worked for him. The younger Boost enlisted in the army during the war and died of influenza before his detachment started for France.

"It is strange that a man who has worked for you for so many years and knows what a mean, parasitism fellow you are, should remember you in his will," commented Boost. "It is fairly common for an employer to leave bequests to faithful employes, but the other way around is so rare that it is almost unheard of." Horgren died about two months ago at the age of 65. He was never married.
