

WRANGEL FLEES SEBASTOPOL; REDS TAKE MUCH BOOTY

London, Nov. 13.—(I. N. S.)—The forces of General Baron von Wrangel, anti-Bolshevik leader in the Crimea, have evacuated Sebastopol, says a delayed dispatch from Constantinople dated Thursday.

A Reuter dispatch from Constantinople says 80,000 refugees from the Crimea are seeking transportation for foreign ports. The first shipload has reached Constantinople, but the refugees were not permitted to land owing to the food shortage in the Turkish capital, the dispatch says.

WRANGEL'S DEFEAT IS GREAT SOVIET TRIUMPH

The London dispatches, if authentic, confirm cable advices that have come from various sources during the last few days, to the effect that General Wrangel's army is in a serious plight. All indications are that the Bolshevik forces are within reach of the greatest military triumph since they drove the Polish legions back behind the gates of Warsaw.

Unless they are stopped in the eleventh hour, as they were in front of the Polish capital, their reconquest of the Crimea and the consequent surrender or extinction of their most formidable foe seems inevitable. Even in the most precarious days of the Polish campaign, General Wrangel's army was the most painful and most dangerous thorn in the side of the soviet Republic. Wrangel has throughout enjoyed the full moral backing and confidence of the allied governments. Moreover, the reactionary and anti-Bolshevik elements throughout the Muscovite territories had come to look upon Wrangel as the potential wrecker of the Soviet republic and restorer of the old order.

TROTSKY GOES AFTER WRANGEL

Immediately after the armistice with Poland, Trotsky proclaimed to the world that now Wrangel's turn was coming and the soviet war chief lost no time taking measures to carry out his threat. Ever fresh masses of Bolshevik troops were transferred from the Western to the Southern front and pressure on Wrangel's army has been growing fiercer daily, until this week, when Trotsky's legions began to cross the uncovered Putrid river and to pour into the Crimean peninsula, smashed straight ahead for Wrangel's last line of defense.

Since then dispatches from the allied capitals regarding Wrangel's fate have grown more and more pessimistic. In London the terrific battle for the Crimea is being watched with comparative equanimity, but Paris dispatches have reflected grave alarm, for Wrangel is the particular protege of the French.

Wilson Is Regaining Health Election Didn't Shock Him

By David Lawrence (Copyright, 1920)

Washington, Nov. 13.—President Wilson continues to improve in health. The statement of Ambassador Davis on his arrival in London that the president is a much sicker man than the public knew is not considered here to be in conflict with the optimistic assurance given by Secretary Colby after seeing the president a week ago. Davis is believed to have been referring to an earlier period in Wilson's illness and not to recent weeks.

Everybody about the White House seems to have been more hopeful now about the president's ultimate recovery. His improvement has been so much more rapid than was expected and so much better than is ordinarily true in cases of the kind, that Wilson's extraordinary vitality is now expected to win the long struggle for life which he has been making for more than a year.

Instead of proving a shock to him the election passed without ill effect upon Wilson's health. Those who know the president best say this is due to a subliminal confidence in the righteousness of the cause he fought for, and that his habit of mind is not to think of the incidents of two or three years, but of the political movements and tides of an era or epoch.

EXPECTS VINDICATION

The president is represented as confident that before many years he will have been vindicated. On the other hand, the passing of responsibility from his hands has had the effect of relieving his mind of the many worries and burdens which for eight years have beset him. As March 4 approaches, his friends expect that he will get stronger and feel better. There is some hope that he may be well enough to surprise everybody next month by appearing in congress for his farewell address.

BELIEVE HE WILL WRITE

It would be a dramatic picture, the president of the United States being wheeled on an invalid's chair through the corridors of the house, which in earlier days he walked so briskly. There was a time when discussion was going on as to Wilson's mental fitness to conduct the office.

Upon him the French have pinned their hopes for recovery of the millions borrowed from France by the Czarist regime.

BRITISH AND FRENCH WAR CRAFT SPEED TO SEBASTOPOL

London, Nov. 13.—(I. N. S.)—British and French warships are speeding toward Sebastopol, the big Crimean port, says a dispatch from Constantinople, received here at noon, which characterizes the situation at Sebastopol as "serious." The allied governments, it is added, have authorized the landing of 30,000 Crimean refugees at Constantinople.

Canned Corn Held to Be Cause of Death

The Dalles, Or., Nov. 13.—Canned corn, eaten last week, was the cause of the death Friday of Christian Guinther of Gateway, Or. Guinther's body will be brought to The Dalles, pending funeral arrangements. According to his brother, Guinther ate but a couple of mouthfuls of the corn and pushed it away, saying the taste was queer. Poisoning was given as the cause of death.

'TIGER BEATS YALE' SCORE IS 20 TO 0

Point Isabel, Texas, Nov. 13.—(I. N. S.)—President-elect Harding is marooned on this extreme southern point today. A three-day north gale and a driving rain have made fishing impossible and roads impassable. Drivers last night refused to take their cars over the 25-mile route to Brownsville and the only hope Senator Harding has of playing golf today is a let-up in the storm and a bit of sunshine which will quickly dry the clay roads.

Other members of the party are enjoying excellent hunting, the storm driving ducks low. Senator and Mrs. Joseph Frelinghuysen, and E. B. McLean all brought in handsome bags of ducks. HARRY FRAMING SPEECH

Senator Harding took occasion of the inclement weather today to work for a time on the speech which he delivers in New Orleans at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon on November 16, a few hours before he sails for Panama.

Senator Harding was not the only one in Point Isabel who was kept indoors by the north wind, for the little fishing shacks were full of Mexican fishermen, who whiled away their time with guitars and graphophones, and the music that came forth from the little shacks was not without merit. The gamut of the grand opera and the classic.

SHIPPED IN MODEL

The bird was shipped in a miniature model of the White House. Unfortunately for the bird, Senator Harding has no means of carrying it to Panama, and it is expected that the bird will meet its fate today and grace the Sunday board at the Harding cottage.

Although the weather for the last two days added to the usual inconveniences of a fishing village have given the great detestable excuse for leaving Point Isabel, he chooses to remain, and has refused a score of invitations to visit other towns between now and the time he sails for Panama.

The senator has also declined an invitation from Preston McGoodwin, American ambassador to Venezuela, asking that he visit the country. Senator Harding will not leave American soil, however.

TO SEE MOVIES

Heroic efforts are being made to entertain the distinguished party in the little fishing village. Guinther, chief of the naval radio station, has invited the party to attend a motion picture show at his station tonight, and a movie is an event of transcending importance to Point Isabel. The school children, most of them Mexicans, have arranged an entertainment which they are prepared to give at any time ennuis threatens.

Arrangements were being completed today for the first official visit which Senator Harding received since his arrival here. He will meet Governor Hobbs of Texas on Tuesday. It is understood that the meeting will be purely formal.

M'ADOO EXPLAINS SHIP BOARD DEAL

New York, Nov. 13.—(I. N. S.)—The congressional committee, headed by Representative Joseph Walsh of Massachusetts, resumed today its probe into the network of graft and fraud, which, it is alleged, permeated the activities of the United States shipping board and the government's entire shipping activities.

Only a short session was planned today. The investigation probably will shift to Philadelphia next week. The injection of the name of William Gibbs McAdoo into the inquiry brought a quick rejoinder from the former secretary of the treasury that there had been nothing improper with his activities.

He explained that after his retirement from government work, his law firm appeared as counsel for the Virginia shipbuilding company, greatly to the benefit of the government. Miss Lizzie Moorehouse, for 18 years accountant of the Bird-Archer company of New York, dealers in chemicals, was the first witness today.

"Our salesmen," she testified, "allowed engineers and officers of the shipping board $5 commission on 10-gallon kegs of chemicals and $10 on 20-gallon kegs. These sums were charged to advertising." "Who paid this money?" asked Chairman Walsh.

"Our salesmen, Mr. Albert R. Waycott," replied Miss Moorehouse. Chairman Walsh brought out testimony showing that the chemical concern, following an investigation in 1918, was denied further business by the shipping board.

Albert R. Waycott, general manager of the Bird-Archer company, confirmed on the witness stand the statements of Miss Moorehouse. He testified a list presented by Chairman Walsh showing several thousands in commission payments to engineers and other employees of the shipping board.

He said these "commissions" totaled about $600 a year. He declared the payment of these sums "seemed to be the custom" and added that he condemned it. He insisted, however, that the "commissions" came out of the company's profits and were not charged to the shipping board.

The March company is the lessee of the ground containing the vein on which an apex claim was made and is an intervenor in the $6,000,000 suit.
