

NAVAL COMMITTEE RESUMES JOURNEY TO GOLDEN STATE

Congressmen Finish Inspection of Tongue Point Naval Base Site; They Praise It Highly.

Fulfilling their mission in this district by completing inspection of the Tongue Point naval base site and making a general survey of the Columbia river district in regard to naval affairs, the congressional joint committee and naval officers left late Saturday evening for California to continue inspection of Pacific coast naval bases.

The committee members, individually and collectively, expressed pleasure over their reception in this district and over the possibilities of the Tongue Point site before departing for the south.

Following luncheon in honor of the men at the Chamber of Commerce and the ladies at the University club Saturday noon, the visitors were provided with automobiles and taken over the Columbia river highway. Dinner was served at Forest Hall on the highway.

As a result of this trip, the first visit of the committee since appropriations for Tongue Point were made, it has been determined that the proposed site is suitable, with the possible addition of a little more property than originally planned, that the deed will be executed soon whereby the land will become property of the government and that construction operations should begin within a few months.

The appropriation made by congress amounts to $250,000. This sum will be utilized in preliminary work, it being anticipated that further funds will be appropriated in the near future.

of the export trade in commodities has not been made and there seems to be no doubt that some lines of business have suffered from the inability of foreign countries to raise the necessary credit to finance American exports. On the whole, the information available in the national capital on business conditions throughout the country reveals a continued disinclination on the part of the consumer to buy. Stocks have therefore piled up in many businesses. Manufacturers who have had orders canceled are, however,

REVENUE FOUND DEFICIENT

The fair valuation of the company's properties in Oregon devoted to a general and comprehensive telephone service is declared in the application to be in excess of $21,500,000, while the annual net revenue from operations in the state is "less than nothing."

CITES SERVICE RENDERED

The company declares that as a result of the orders of the Public Service commission, the people of Oregon have had the same general and comprehensive telephone service rendered by the company in the neighboring states, both north and south, at rates materially lower than those charged in these other states, throughout the whole period of the war and since the armistice, and that this disparity of rates has been wholly at the expense of the company.

saved by dismissing employees will compare with the big amounts that will have to be raised to pay the interest on bond issues and other obligations of the government. With the excess profits tax falling off in revenue and the liquor taxes naturally diminished, the question of how the money is going to be raised is puzzling everybody. It is seriously advanced by some officials that taxes will go up instead of down, unless the tax burden is distributed over more years than was originally planned. Some of the experts say this may temporarily ease the load, but that in the long run the plan will not prove economical. Briefly, now that the election is over, Washington is changing from the political to the economic phases of reconstruction.

Another reason for optimism in Washington, however, is the certainty that European markets will come back to America just as soon as financial stability is accomplished. Everybody seems to agree that Europe needs American goods and needs them desperately and that the refinancing of Europe will begin full production to American factories again.

CHANGE IS EXPECTED

It seems to be generally expected that the first of January will witness a marked change. With stocks running low, the feeling seems to be that buying by the merchant will have to begin and that the consumer will also find it necessary to join in the buying procession. In some lines like building a change is not expected until spring. The drop in lumber prices and in the cost of other materials is such as to warrant the belief hereabouts that the American people will begin to solve their housing problem as soon as the diminution of the

HOME COMING IS CELEBRATED BY FORMER STUDENTS

More Than 2000 Participate in Festivities at Eugene; Come From All Parts of the State.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Or., Nov. 13.—Sixty former Oregon varsity letter men and about 2000 former students were at the university Saturday to see Oregon beat the Sun Dodgers from Seattle, 17 to 0, and take part in other events of homecoming week end. Virtually every town in the state was represented among the visitors, Portland sending over 50 per cent of the homecoming guests.

Homecoming festivities started Friday night with the biggest rally ever staged in the state. The freshmen bonfire, one of the highest in the history of the school, was the big feature of the evening. A parade and fireworks were also staged. Immediately following and lasting for most of the night were the entertainments in honor of returned members in the various campus organizations.

WOMEN SERVE LUNCHEON

Saturday morning was spent viewing the many changes on the campus and at noon a campus luncheon was served by the women of the university at the men's gymnasium. According to Vivian Chandler, who was in charge, about 5000 were served. The football game in the afternoon, the high spot in the entire program, attracted about 5000 grads, students, visitors and Washington rosters, Claire Kenney, yell king, and his two assistants put on a record breaking display of pep. The demonstration which greeted the Order of the "O" men who marched in front of the grandstands before the game was only equalled by the roaring which attended the entrance of the Oregon eleven. The fighting spirit of the two teams and the general good spirit which was exhibited by both the players and the rooting section, combined with the ideal condition of the weather, were big factors in making the contest an absolute success as the big feature of the homecoming program.

Japanese Diplomat Will Explain His Country's Attitude

The Japanese attitude toward America will be explained by T. Ishikawa, famous traveler and diplomat, at a luncheon given in his honor by T. Sugimura, local Japanese consul. Ishikawa belongs to the pacifist party in the politics of his native land and has repeatedly expressed the belief that misunderstandings arising between his own and the American government can be settled amicably.

In the American supplement of a recent issue of the Yoruusu Choho, a Japanese publication, Ishikawa states that his country desires above all to preserve friendly relations with the United States. "The history of American-Japanese intercourse," he says, "repels and stigmatizes the idea that Japan is a menace to America."

Winter Steelhead Salmon Run on in Waters of Rogue

Gold Beach, Or., Nov. 13.—The winter run of steelhead salmon in Rogue river has begun. The fish, which average from six to seven pounds each, enter the river by the thousands every year. During the winter months they are of excellent quality and valuable as a food fish, but are protected by law, since it is contended they form the basis of the splendid sport of angling for which Rogue river is noted.

Local fishermen, however, say that a short open commercial fishing season for steelheads should be established the same as on other Oregon streams, as it would furnish employment here during the winter and save great quantities of the fish, without interfering with the sport.
