J. J. Hill's Dream Of 13 Inch Oregon Corn Is Realized If James J. Hill, railroad pioneer of the Northwest, could have seen an exhibit of corn such as is being shown in the state exhibit room of the Oregon building, he never would have offered $1000 for the first 13-inch ear of corn grown in this state.

Has Your Child Defective Sight? 25% of children have imperfect vision—and imperfect vision means more than eye strain, it means brain fatigue resulting from the strain on the eyes.

The child doesn't know he has defective eyes unless it is a very serious case—parents cannot believe that THEIR child can possibly have defective eyes. But all parents must awake to their responsibility—the future of your child depends so much on good eyes that you can not neglect their care.

Saturday morning, November 20, Dr. De Keyser will examine, without obligation to pay, the eyes of all children brought to his office between the hours of 10 and 12.
