

Government May Locate Gas Treatment Plant for Imported Food Products in Portland

INJURIOUS PESTS MENACE TO FOOD SENT INTO STATE

Officers of the board of horticulture for the state of Oregon are hopeful of receiving information soon that the department of agriculture has decided in favor of establishing in Portland an extensive carbon-bisulphide gas treatment plant for certain food products brought into this state from outside points. The plant proposed would be similar in its processes to the one now in operation by the King's dehydrating concern at Salem, but would be on a much more extensive scale, says Colonel Henry E. Doach, secretary of the state board.

A few weeks ago an attack of the department of agriculture came out from Washington, D. C., and made an extensive investigation of the need of such an institution in Portland. He made strong statements favorable to the project and it is believed from recommendations at Washington will be favorably considered. A plant such as has been considered would require an outlay of approximately $200,000. It would include the erection of a concrete building of sufficient size to permit the holding of several cars of products at one time, and would be equipped with vacuum processes so that the air within the building after it had been stored with products, could be pumped out and the gas pumped in and held there for several hours, so as to kill objectionable germ or insect life in the food products thus stored.

The sixteenth biennial report of the board of horticulture, which has just been compiled and which will be printed in time for distribution in the next session of the state legislature, will contain a comprehensive section on injurious pests which menace Oregon through introduction by shipments of food products from outside points. Among these are the Mediterranean fruit fly, which attacks practically all kinds of fruits, and which has been found in shipments of pineapples from Hawaii; the Indian meal weevil, found in shipments of soy bean meal from China; the European corn borer and others, which will be illustrated, so that producers and shippers may become more familiar with their appearance and may aid in stamping them out wherever they appear.

Recently a shipment of 600 tons of soy bean meal from China, delivered at one of the local wharves, was found to be thoroughly infested with the Indian meal weevil. It was chemically treated and then condemned and ground up for use as fertilizer.

Leasing of Land by Aliens Prohibited in Proposed Measure

Olympia, Wash., Nov. 20.—(U. P.)—In line with the movement to halt the Japanese invasion of the Pacific Coast, a drastic initiative measure to prohibit the leasing of land by aliens in the state of Washington was on file with Secretary of State J. Grant Hinkle today. The bill was brought here by Councilman Philip H. Hughes, a member of the legislature, and signed by Governor Green of Seattle. Before it can go before the legislature, signatures amounting to one-tenth of the total number of electors in the last election must be obtained.

The state constitution already prohibits the ownership of land by aliens. In addition to prohibiting the leasing of land, the new measure also prohibits landowners from leasing the majority of stock of which is held by aliens. It would bar aliens from leasing agricultural lands except under certain limited conditions, and from leasing non-agricultural lands for more than six months. The leasing of lands either through corporations or as guardians for minors, also is prohibited.

NEW COMMUNITY CHURCH SOUGHT

A concerted effort is being made by the people of Parkrose to secure a new community church. The present building is a temporary affair built over a good basement. Rev. Paul D. Hofman is working earnestly to secure the necessary funds. A meeting Wednesday evening held at the church was full of promise and encouragement.

F. Kruse, formerly one of the merchants of Parkrose, has taken over the Roseway garage, heretofore in charge of H. L. Hutchison, and will install new machinery and make it a garage for general patronage.

The Ladies' Aid society of Parkrose Thursday held an all-day session in the church, where sewing was done in preparation for the bazaar to be given Tuesday, December 7.

The Highway Athletic club is in process of formation by a number of young men. The Greater Parkrose club has given the contract for the construction of a clubhouse to W. C. Lovessie, which will be built on the Craig road near the Sandy boulevard. Some of the material is on the ground and is promised by Christmas for a house warming. The building is to cost $2800 and will be 38x70.

The Greater Parkrose club will give a dance Saturday evening for members only. It is to be a "hard times" affair and all are to wear old clothes. G. H. Brooks, who was injured last Saturday morning by being run down by

BOY KILLED UNDER UTAH TRAIN BURIED

The funeral of Gerald Deceuse of Montavilla was held at the Gable undertaking parlors Monday afternoon. Deceuse died as the result of having both legs taken off in a railroad accident in Utah, November 9. The body was brought to Portland by the boy's father, Harold C. Deceuse, of 92 East Seventy-ninth street. Deceuse lived but a short time after the accident.

C. T. Bremer of Aurora, who has been visiting relatives in Montavilla, returned to his home Tuesday.

Miss Minnie Atkinson left Tuesday for Washouqui, Wash., where she will act as housekeeper for her brother, Miss Leah Burgess of Springdale visited friends in East Stark street Thursday afternoon.

Fred Shelley and wife of Gresham visited G. W. Miller Thursday afternoon. A musical entertainment was given by Mrs. Losh Rose and assistants at the assembly hall of the Montavilla school Friday evening. The male quartet drew several encores from an appreciative audience. Half of the proceeds augmented the school fund for the upkeep of the dental clinic.

Policeman Howard reports that the list of thefts and robberies has materially decreased since last week. Residents living near the intersection of Seventy-sixth and East Stark streets complain of considerable water standing in the ditches. It would be a sanitary measure to drain the water off and the appearance of the street would be materially improved at nominal cost, they declare.

Mrs. C. M. Bryson, East Eighty-second and Everett, is having her house repainted. Dr. Charles B. Zeebuth and family visited the A. Bonham family Sunday afternoon, taking lunch in the evening.

Experimental Stations
Olympia, Nov. 20.—President E. O. Holland of the state college has just issued the thirtieth annual report on the experimental stations of the state, covering the fiscal year, July 1, 1919, to June 30, 1920.

FAREWELL PARTY AT GRANGE HELD

The Rockwood grange will be attended today by a number of outside visitors and old timers once resident in Rockwood. Mr. and Mrs. George Pullen, long identified with the grange and the community, are removing shortly to Seaside, and the proceedings will be in the nature of a farewell party when the noon-day dinner is spread. Visitors are welcome.

Fred Coane is at home convalescing after several weeks at the hospital. F. Powers has returned from North Dakota after several months' absence, rejoicing in his good fortune in getting back to Oregon.

W. W. Wood was house hunting in Rockwood Tuesday, having gone to work in the nursery of Mickleson Brothers. The samples exhibited of houses were few and just which was the worst of the lot will be decided later.

F. Burgess and Miss Grimshaw are getting ready 25,000 young pine trees for shipment, for which there seems to be great demand.

The Stitches Sewing club of the Rockwood school will hold a neighborhood fair Tuesday evening, November 23, and there will be a good program and everybody is invited. No admission fee will be charged. There will be home made candy and popcorn balls, doughnuts, pie and coffee, pie-eating contests, a short playlet, prizes, lots of fun and some fine needlework exhibits. The judges of
