HATTERER the Red Squirrel snick-Gered gleefully as he scampered over to the place where he had seen Rusty the For Squirrel hide a fat hickory nut under the leaves in the Green Forest. He snickered because he thought himself very smart to have so soon discovered where Rusty was hiding those fat hickory nuts and because he was planning to take every one of them for him-

"He has been busy all morning, so there must be a lot of them in that hole," thought Chatterer. "I won't take one now. I'll just have a peep at them and then go away so that he will not suspect anything. If he doesn't suspect anything he'll fill that hole and then leave them until he needs them in the winter. He'll get a little surprise then Yes, sir, Rusty will get a little surprise then. There won't be a nut there and he won't know what has become of them.
