

BURGLARS STEAL CHINAMAN'S SAFE, CONTAINING $1600

One of the most daring robberies of recent date in Portland was reported late Saturday night when Ding Wing, wealthy Chinese merchant, told the police that burglars had entered his home at 267 Salmon street and made away with a 500 pound safe containing $1600 in cash and papers of importance and value.

The burglars used an old touring car to cart the safe away. The robbery is believed to have been committed about 9 o'clock in the evening, although it was not reported to the police until after midnight.

Mrs. Harry Ding, daughter-in-law of Ding Wing, discovered the robbery when she returned home late from a dance.

NEIGHBORS SAW IT
The thieves removed the clothing from a trunk belonging to Mrs. Harry Ding and put the safe in the trunk. The safe was in a room in the rear of the house and it was necessary for the thieves to drag the trunk through the house and out the front door.

A woman who lives across the street from the Wing home told the police that she saw two men drag a trunk from the house to the sidewalk, place it on the running board of an old automobile and drive away. One of the men stood on the running board and held the trunk while the other drove the machine, she said. That was about 9 o'clock. She was unable to tell which direction the car went after it turned the corner at the end of the block.

OFFERS $500 REWARD
The woman was unable to tell whether the men in the car were white men or Chinese. The police think the men probably were Chinese, although they have no definite information to support the theory.

Ding Wing told Tichenor and Mallett that he knew of since he had lived there. He said that he knew of no Chinese of whom he was suspicious.

The police say that an ordinary yegg would pass up the house because of its ramshackle appearance. That the theft was committed by someone who was familiar with household conditions was pointed out because of the fact that the trunk belonging to Mrs. Harry Ding was used and that Saturday night is the only night in the week that she is regularly away from home.

Ding Wing operates a tailor shop at 31 North Third street. Sunday he offered a $500 reward for the arrest had conviction of the burglars who took his safe. It contained $1600 in silver, $300 in gold and $500 in currency, he told the police.

Woman Is Injured As Trolley Pole Crashes on Auto

Crashing down upon the automobile in which she was riding, a pole supporting trolley wire at Twelfth and Gilliam streets, struck Mrs. F. E. Bowers of 475 Shaver street, dangerously injuring her, according to a statement made to police Sunday night by her husband, F. E. Bowers. The injured woman was taken to St. Vincent's hospital. It is thought her skull may be fractured. Other occupants of the car were little Helen Bowers, aged 8, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bowers.

PAVING OF 39TH STREET WILL BE RUSHED IN SPRING

Paving on Thirty-ninth street, Portland's only through thoroughfare from the northern to southern city boundary east of the Willamette river, will be finished early next spring, and the plans just completed by the city engineer's office will be presented to the city council Wednesday for that body's final endorsement.

Thirty-ninth street has been paved southward to Francis avenue for some time, but the last mile of paving from Francis to Woodstock has been delayed pending a change in the plans of the engineers to conform with a more just and equitable assessment against the property along the final mile of paving. Council members considered a full-paved street for the gap between Francis and Woodstock would entail too heavy an assessment against the abutting property because of the comparative low value of the land. To meet the council's objections the engineering department compromised on an 18 foot pavement through the last mile strip, which the council will authorize at the Wednesday meeting, thus enabling the final mile to be completed early in the spring of 1921.

Plans for a second very important street improvement to be endorsed by the council Wednesday is that of widening the approach to the O-W. R. & N. bridge over the Willamette at Third street. The sharp curve at the Third street entrance to the bridge has made traffic at that point very dangerous. The new plans, which will doubtless be approved by the council for immediate action, call for widening the approach 20 feet at Fourth street, gradually increasing the width to 50 feet at the bridge, thus eliminating the dangerous sharp turn.

Jupiter Pluvius Is Still on Job, Says Weather Forecast

More rain tonight and Tuesday is the forecast of Edward L. Wells of the weather bureau. The wind has switched to the southwest and will be less violent, streams which have been swollen from rains and snow for the last few days are receding somewhat. Mazamas who climbed Larch mountain Saturday night found Multnomah creek so voluminous that considerable wading was necessary in places where in normal times the trail hugs the stream.

Pacific Highway in Cowlitz Improved

Kelso, Wash., Nov. 22.—The Pacific highway between Kelso and Castlerock is in excellent condition, work on that portion of the road to Seattle having been under construction for some time with considerable graveling completed. The rains are not making any material difference in the surface of the roadway. North from Castlerock one mile remains to be gravelled. With this rough stretch eliminated the highway through Cowlitz county will be practically complete except for paving, the work having cost the county and state more than $1,500,000.

REPEAL OF OREGON LAWS BEING DISTRIBUTED

One thousand copies of the new codification of Oregon laws, including the statutes of the 1920 special session, provided for by state appropriation, are being distributed to state and county officials, under direction of Conrad P. Olson, code commissioner. Hereafter Olson's Oregon laws will be received in all the courts of the state as the authorized compilation of the code and statutes in place of Lord's Oregon laws, which has been the standard since January, 1911.

The state legislature of 1919 authorized the new codification, and Olson was appointed code commissioner by Governor Withycombe. He immediately began the huge task. The actual work of compilation was completed early last spring, and since then the work has been in the hands of the printers and publishers, the Bancroft-Whitney company of San Francisco.

Olson, who was on the state supreme bench in 1918, has the honor of making the first compilation of the Oregon laws. The first was made in the early '60s. Lord's Oregon laws comprised three volumes and 3100 pages with 7550 sections. Olson's Oregon laws have been compressed into two volumes, although they contain 10,357 sections and have 4800 pages. There is approximately 37 per cent more material in the new codification than in the one which it displaces.

In making the new Oregon code, approximately 30,000 sections were handled to produce the 10,357 sections contained in the work. In his preface Olson states that it would not have been possible to have gotten out this compilation within a period of one year from the date of his appointment but for the available work of William P. Lord, one of the codifiers of Lord's Oregon laws.

He also acknowledges the aid of various Portland attorneys, including James R. Bain, H. A. Robertson, H. E. Dewar and Walter Critchlow, and Arthur S. Benson, who had charge of making the index.

COMMONS SUSPENDED BY IRISH UPROAR

In the history of the rebellion was in full swing. Scores of leaders here and at Queenstown were arrested. Detachments of troops with fixed bayonets were searching buildings in Dublin, Queenstown and other cities.

The lord mayor of Dublin appealed for police protection. A squad of black and tan was sent to guard him. Panic reigned in Dublin and many other Irish cities.

Railway service was suspended and the railway yards were unnaturally quiet. In many parts of Dublin where it was unusually noisy there was no sound today but the tramp of armed patrols.

Federations everywhere were being halted and searched by troops. In many cases, after such searching, the pedestrian would be surrounded by soldiers and hurried away. Resumption of fighting was believed to be imminent.

Black and tan troops in Dublin were ordered confined to their barracks to avoid the possibility of accidental death.

George H. Barnes, labor member of the British delegation in the league assembly, will bring the Russian and general European war, he informed the assembly.

Alleging that the Russian problem has been suppressed and that he had repeatedly been refused the floor, Barnes declared he would "have plenty to say" once he got the subject before the assembly.

Barnes criticizes the league for having failed to report why it did not intervene in the Russo-Polish war.

"Renewal of the Russian war between Russia and Poland is now imminent," Barnes declared. "The Poles are 300 miles beyond their legitimate frontiers. Sixty-nine Russian divisions are released as a result of the defeat of Wrangel, and should the Poles and Russians resume fighting Poland will attempt to again involve Europe in war. Poland must be made to return to her ethnographical frontiers."

Barnes has the support of Lord Robert Cecil and Fridtjof Nansen of Norway. Both declared that fearful consequences would result from a continuing policy of ignoring the Russian situation, and endorsed Barnes' plan of developing immediate action.

Geneva, Nov. 21.—An emissary of Lenin and Trotsky is said to have arrived in Geneva tonight. One of the German representatives had previously reached here and with the arrival of the Bolshevik emissary the two largest powers outside and in demoralized, even raising some from the dead to show how literal would be the awakening of "all that are in the grave."

Miss Bessie Irvine Dead; Services Are Held at Corvallis

Miss Bessie Irvine died at 4 a. m. Sunday at her home in Sellwood. Miss Irvine had been an invalid for years and the immediate cause of her death was pneumonia following an attack of asthma. Funeral services will be held today at Corvallis under auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star and the body interred in Corvallis Masonic cemetery. Miss Irvine was a sister of B. F. Irvine, editor of The Journal.

GUILTY VERDICT IN TRIAL OF WESTON

Bend, Or., Nov. 22.—His iron nerve broken, A. J. Weston, convicted Sunday of the murder of Robert H. Krug near Sisters on March 24, 1919, broke down in his cell in the county jail here Sunday night and sobbed like a child. He declared he was innocent and that he would rather step out of his cell into his coffin than to go to prison for life. He has neither eaten nor slept since the verdict was brought in and looks 10 years older.

Bend, Nov. 22.—After an absence of more than 17 hours from the courtroom, the jury which was charged at 11 o'clock Saturday night by Circuit Judge T. E. J. Duffy, returned a verdict in circuit court Sunday afternoon, convicting A. J. Weston of the second degree murder of Robert H. Krug of Sisters, on March 24, 1919.

Weston heard the verdict unmoved, shaking his head slowly when County Clerk J. H. Lane read the jury report. He made no comment. Allan R. Joy of Portland, attorney for the defense, demanded a poll, which confirmed the verdict. Joy then announced that he would move Monday for time in which to file a motion for a new trial.

August Krug, brother of Weston's victim, expressed his satisfaction with the result of the trial. Weston's daughter, Mrs. A. J. Moore, wife of the Deschutes county district attorney, burst out weeping as the jury's decision was pronounced.

Mrs. Weston was not present. She is grief stricken over her husband's conviction. Testimony produced by the state was to the effect that Weston had told two witnesses, George Stillwell and Joe Wilson, that he had gone to Krug's cabin on the night of the twenty-fourth, tortured Krug in an endeavor to get the money, and then shot him and burned the house, was supported by a mass of circumstantial evidence, featuring the finding of a note in Weston's vest pocket, made payable by W. S. Fullerton to Krug. The defense centered about the attempt to prove that Weston did not possess a vest and hence to show that the note was lost and to establish the possibility of accidental death.

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY TO AID ARMENIANS

Officials of the Citizens bank are congratulating themselves today because W. R. Pearl, 151 Twelfth street, lost his nerve, and not because he has lost his nerve, lost also $1250 he might have got if he had waited a few minutes longer.

Saturday Pearl presented at the East Side bank a check drawn on the Citizens bank for $1250, signed by Carl Thielmann. Pearl was told to wait a few minutes until the teller sent a messenger to the Citizens bank who was in the same block. The teller merely wanted to learn if Thielmann had an account large enough to cover the check. But Pearl grew suspicious.

When the runner came back, Pearl was gone. An investigation of the check revealed it to be a forgery, the police say. Pearl has served a term in the penitentiary for forgery, according to the police, who are looking for Pearl.

W. E. Van Amburgh Gives Famous Talk At W. O. W. Temple

Before a packed house at the W. O. W. temple Sunday night, W. E. Van Amburgh of Brooklyn, N. Y., secretary-treasurer of the International Bible Students' association, delivered his famous address on "Millions Now Living Will Never Die and Other Millions Will Soon Be Returning."

"If Christ died for the whole world, then the whole world should receive some benefit therefrom," the speaker said. "The world has not received such a blessing as yet. God promised one full opportunity to every man condemned through Adam and that time is in the future, when the Kingdom of God shall be established. Christ gave many samples of the great work to be done in that day, curing all sorts of diseases, cripples, obese and emaciated, even raising some from the dead to show how literal would be the awakening of 'all that are in the grave.'"

Burglar Suspects Are Captured by Police Inspectors

Police Inspectors Swensen and Schupius captured two burglar suspects Sunday.

J. E. Kelsey had reported that his best suit and other wearing apparel had been stolen from his room in the Chamberlain hotel.

Detectives crawled up two flights of stairs and discovered two men asleep. The alleged stolen clothing was found on Jack Everett and Blinn McFarlan were arrested.

Several rings and a money belt containing French, Belgian and German coins was also found in the possession of the two suspects.

Department Store Gives Gay Party

Geisha girls, mandarins, toradoras, naniwa dancing, and other things, girls, colonial cavaliers, gay senoritas, and all the rest assembled at the second annual fancy dress ball given by Lippman, Wolfe & Co., to its employees at the Multnomah hotel Saturday evening. Jazz music and dazzling dresses were the order of the evening. The costumes showed much spirit and work, for some of them were very cleverly made up.

PROCLAMATION OF "SCHOOL WEEK" IN OREGON IS ISSUED

Salem, Or., Nov. 22.—The week of December 5 to 11 is designated as "school week" in Oregon in a proclamation issued by Governor Olcott Monday.

"It is the desire of those interested in education that the people use this week in such a way as will most effectively disseminate among the people accurate information in regard to the needs and needs of our schools and enhance the appreciation and value of education and create such interest as will result in better opportunities for education as well as a larger interest in schools of all kinds and grades," the proclamation reads.

The cooperation of the public press, the churches and other religious organizations, women's clubs, parent-teacher associations, chambers of commerce, boards of trade, labor unions, farmers' unions and all patriotic and civic societies is sought in the movement.

"The foundation of our civilization and of our advanced national development lies largely in our schools and our educational facilities," the governor declares. "I believe cooperation in this work of disseminating information as to the condition and needs of the schools will have a most beneficial effect on the future of educational work in Oregon and throughout the nation and I trust that this subject will have the close and careful consideration of all the people during that time."

Traffic Officer, Curious, Uncovers Moonshine in Car

Mike Garren and Paul Musica were blithely driving into the city Sunday on one of the highways.

Motorcycle Policeman Drennen came along and waved a friendly salute.

"Hello, boys; it's a fine day, isn't it?" he asked, noticing a bulk object in the rear seat, inquired if they were getting an early start on the market.

"Looks like a pen of rabbits," he murmured, politely raising the corner of a Drennen uncovered a 5-gallon keg of moonshine. He then ordered the pair to drive to Garren's home at 783 Roosevelt street, where nearly 100 gallons more were discovered. Calling on some friends of Musica and Garren on the way to jail, a still was found. So Frank Pears, 29 North Fourteenth street, joined the party.

"Never should a bootlegger be friendly to a man on a motorcycle," moaned Garren and Musica.

Forger Lost Nerve, Or His Check Would Have Been Cashed

Officials of the Citizens bank are congratulating themselves today because W. R. Pearl, 151 Twelfth street, lost his nerve, and not because he has lost his nerve, lost also $1250 he might have got if he had waited a few minutes longer.

Saturday Pearl presented at the East Side bank a check drawn on the Citizens bank for $1250, signed by Carl Thielmann. Near East Relief Spends 40 Millions In Aid of Stricken

In the five years of its existence the Near East Relief organization has spent $41,000,000 on 111,000 orphans, 49,000 refugees and 400,000 other war-stricken people by the United States government showed that not a cent of this money had been misappropriated or spent extravagantly.

These statements were made by Dr. Lincoln L. Wirt, director of the United States relief expedition to the Near East, in an address before the Oregon Civic league at Hotel Benson Saturday.

Judge John H. Stevenson made a strong plea on behalf of the Red Cross roll call. Mrs. A. L. Obst gathered in a number of memberships.

RAIDS CAST LIGHT ON GAMBLING DEN

Chicago, Nov. 22.—(I. N. S.)—The first tangible results of Chicago's new "clean-up" campaign—the raids of Saturday and Sunday which filled the city's jails with 800 gamblers and men on the suspect lists as major criminals—led to the unearthing of what police today announce as one of the biggest gambling houses in the country.

Slips of paper taken from a secret drawer in the room of Clarence Lazzarus at 4508 Grand boulevard, where roulette wheels were confiscated and 24 men—many of them prominent in the city's social life—were captured, gave a startling sketch of the large sums won and lost during an evening's play. Instances in which the "house" paid out over $10,000 were frequent, but times when the "house" won over $15,000 in an evening were far more frequent.

Many of the slips contained memoranda of the occasions when "Nick the Greek" Dondolas, who had $154,000 on his person when he was taken in the over-Sunday cleanup, won more than $3000.

The name of "Nick the Greek" and "Weinberg" occur frequently in the list made from the slips. On one occasion Chicago's "Monte Carlo" scratched from its books $14,000 and placed it to the credit of the "Weinberg" entry. On another occasion $15,751 was paid to the devotees of chance.

In direct contrast to the police phase of the clean-up, 14 men, taken in Saturday and Sunday's raids, were discharged today in municipal court when the hearings came up. "Nick the Greek" was among those who were freed. All except Dondolas had given fictitious names.

Wedding Ceremony And Minister's Fee Discarded by Soviet

Formalities of a marriage service and the clergyman's wedding fee are two things which, under the soviet rule in Russia, are set aside, according to Paul Turner, Socialist lecturer, who spoke Sunday evening at Ailsky hall on "Domestic Relations in Russia." In order to become officially established in the community as married folk, it is merely necessary to be so registered in the office of the recorder, explained Turner. Under the Bolshevik regime a mandate has been issued which states that all children should be cared for by the government up to the age of 16 years. The establishment and maintenance of community kitchens to supply food for the people is another step toward "freedom from the capitalist yoke."
