JOHNSON AND PRIMARIES

Senator Hiram Johnson may raise the question when he revives the whole subject of choosing presidents by preference imaries. He is determined to get legislation that will put an end to the methods by which the political conventions of both parties operated in 1920.

Incidentally Governor Lowden of Illinois pledged himself to be a single-term president in the event that he were nominated at Chicago, and the idea gained considerable support because of his advocacy of it. Also it can now be told that Governor Cox was in complete sympathy with the proposal, and was ready to put it in his speech of acceptance, but was dissuaded at the last moment by Democratic leaders, who urged that such a declaration should not be personal, but should be embodied in a constitutional amendment and would come with better grace after election than before. This proposal by which Governor Cox planned to limit himself to a single term in the event of election constituted the mysterious insert which was to have been telegraphed to newspapers throughout the country as an addition to the copies of the speech of acceptance which already had been printed and mailed. PLAN IS ABANDONED

In support of the proposal, there were others in the Democratic fold who bepledge would bring enthusiastic coopera tion from Democrats who were themselves potential candidates for the presidency. The theory was that the wouldbe candidate had nothing to gain from Cox' victory, because he would naturally he the nominee for a second term, where, in the event of a Harding victory there would be an open contest for the Democratic nomination in 1924. Nevernever referred to again during the cam-

POLITICIANS BUSY ALREADY

Nevertheless the politicans who think they are going to have a good deal to say about the next administration are already laying lines for the retention of control after the first term shall have been ended. One man who is close to Senator Harding said he felt sure there would be a Harding organization and that it would be folly to ignore political tradition or opportunity by taking any other course after the Republican party had been cooling its heels outside the White house for eight long Delegates to national conventions as a rule are either federal officeholders or former officeholders. The nomina-tion of William Howard Taft in 1908 was accomplished because the federal officeholders under President Roosevelt were advised to choose Taft. The re-nomination of Mr. Taft in 1912 was possible because the federal officeholders and the existent Republican organizations were dominant in the regular convention. President Wilson had no difficulty getting a renomination in 1916 and if he had said the word he could have selected the Democratic nominee this year. The McAdoo and Palmer forces constituting two thirds of the Democratic delegates were largely federal officeholders or their friends.

RENOMINATION LOOKS PASY

Warren Harding can easily get a re-nomination in 1924 if he makes even a fair record in the presidency, as the officeholding machinery is all powerful at a national convention. Senator Hiram hason intends to put a stop to this influence in national politics. would not be surprising to find Senator Harding himself eliminating the personal issue from consideration by making a $100,000, one dead and one missing is single term pledge similar to that which Governor Lowden of Illinois gave to Republican leaders at Chicago. To Liggett Dinner Are Misunderstood board of officers of the Oregon National

"It's about the invitations we extended to some 200 leading Portlanders to attend the dinner we are giving in honor of Lieutenant General Hunter Liggett, U. S. army, at the Chamber of Commerce on the night of November 30, he explained. "Each invitation bore the letters, 'R. S. V. P.' and each invitation asked the recipient to be our guest, which means that we pay for the dinner, and the guests do not. Acceptances were so slow coming in that I began lineman for the Portland Railway. Light calling up some of those we had invited. I was thunderstruck to discover that those who could come thought 'R. We want them to come because we feel that Portland will not want to be remiss in com pliment to General Liggett and because attendance is in a way expression of interest in the National Guard which through '20 years of preparation and training made it possible for Oregon's coldiers in the world war to top the list of all sent from America.' The table arrangement at the General Liggett dinner will be in the form of the letters "U. S. A." and the colors will be red, white and blue.

Lieut. Elder and Bride Return From Surprise Marriage

Lieutenant-Commander and Mrs. Frederick K. Elder returned to Portland this morning after their honeymoon trip residence at the Stelwyn apartments. Mrs. Elder, formerly Ethel Spottiswoode Tait, is from Norfolk, Va., and one-sided statements, which have not is the daughter of Mrs. James C. Tait of that city. Commander Elder asked for two

The Public and The Telephone Company

In spite of the fact that a great majority of the telephone using public thoroughly understand the rights, duties and obligations of public service companies, we find now and then an individual who does not understand

A telephone company, in its broadest sense, is a partnership consisting of the State as an institution, the public as a group of customers, and the company. The State determines the extent to which the company may go and regulates its rates, services and practices. The company furnishes the facilities with which these rights are exercised and the services rendered. Those members of the public who constitute the customers, furnish the revenue with which the company is enabled to perform these services. No telephone company can exist without customers, and these customers must be treated with fairness both by the company and by the State. The State does not permit any undue burden to be placed upon a customer.

A public service corporation, in a broad sense, is merely an organized right to render the public a service, and in the same larger sense the service belongs to the company's customers. It follows that the customers are really the company. What benefits or harms the one has a like effect upon the other.

We are anxious that our present customers, applicants for service and the company shall be treated fairly. To continue to extend our service under our present condition is impossible. We invite our customers, the public of Oregon, to interest themselves in our problem.
