

OREGON MEN MAKE PROTEST TO PAYNE ABOUT IRRIGATION

Washington, Dec. 2.—(WASH-INGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.)—Senators Chamberlain and McNary and Representative Sinnott, late Wednesday met Secretary Payne of the interior department and discussed irrigation questions as they affect Oregon.

Reports were current that because of early accretions to the reclamation fund there will be sufficient money to justify new projects of substantial extension of existing projects. The latter is most likely to be recommended. It is also reported that under plans now formulated Oregon will have a small share of new work as compared with neighboring states, thus still further increasing the disproportion against Oregon in distribution of funds in proportion to amounts contributed.

Details of the departmental plan will not be available until formal estimates are presented to congress. Oregon senators and Representative Sinnott, in pressing the subject today, sought to impress upon Secretary Payne that Oregon has not been well treated and that when funds flow in for new work Oregon should have a larger proportional share than her sister states instead of being shoved still further down.

Payne promised to give the matter careful attention, having received data on the subject from Sinnott. Basis of departmental estimates in holding down Oregon work is said to be engineering reports showing that cheaper projects exist in other states and that these should be developed before costlier ones are undertaken.

The program of work includes irrigation, good roads, industrial development, improved streets, better schools, auto camp grounds, transportation and publicity. The club will encourage the immediate construction of a railroad from Bend to Burns.

The annual report of the supervisor of the Deschutes national forest shows only 84 forest fires in 1920, compared with 124 for 1919. The fires in 1920 burned over 1561 acres, doing damage estimated at $6000 while in 1919 the damage resulting from fire, covering 1731 acres, was $6600. Three-fifths of the loss this year resulted from the Fox Butte fire, which spread over 900 acres.

The second annual memorial service of Bend Elks lodge will be held Sunday in the new lodge home. The roll call of "absent brothers" for the year 1920 comprises only the names of C. Sam Smith of Prineville and J. P. Keyes of Bend.
