

WEEKS SAID TO HAVE HIS EYE ON TREASURY POST

By David Lawrence
Copyright, 1920, by The Journal
Washington, Dec. 2.—Cabinet rumors fly thick and fast as President-elect Harding approaches Washington. Two sets of opinions are to be encountered here. One is that Harding not only has not committed himself to anybody, but has not discussed his cabinet with any one in such concrete terms as to warrant any accurate speculation about the personnel.

The other is that a half dozen of Harding's friends have been and are canvassing the situation and conducting conferences in the hope of fitting up a list of cabinet eligibles.

From the latter group comes all the information and the last crop of ideas wafted here concerning the promotion that application is afoot to persuade Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois to become ambassador to Great Britain instead of becoming secretary of the treasury.

LINEUP IS SHIFTED

The suggestion is interwoven with another concerning former Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, who has always been mentioned as the probable selection of Harding for secretary of the navy. Weeks is a graduate of the United States naval academy, and while a member of the senate committee on naval affairs showed great interest in the development of the navy. Weeks is a banker and was one of the group of Republicans who voted for the present federal reserve act.

Although he is represented as not anxious for any cabinet post whatsoever, there is a sentiment among his friends that he would be happier in the secretaryship of the treasury than the navy, particularly because he is a banker by experience and likes finance. Here, therefore, it has been supposed that Governor Lowden, who won national attention by his business administration in Illinois, would become secretary of the treasury if he wanted it.

ROOT STILL PUSHED

Unquestionably Lowden can have anything in the cabinet he wants. It is said that he himself is not eager to go to Washington or anywhere else in public office and that the president-elect will have to do a great deal of persuading to get him away from his farm in Illinois.

As for secretary of state, friends of Elihu Root are insistent that he will eventually be Harding's choice. It is an open secret that while some of the original Harding men cannot see how Root's views would fit in the Harding administration, they admit that Root has prestige throughout the United States which would give the Harding cabinet a good start with the public. In other words, they admit that the secretary of state will have to be the topline of the cabinet this time because of the prominence of the League of Nations and foreign policy.

LODGE MAY HAVE TROUBLE

Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania is, of course, first choice with most of the Harding men, who believe that Knox reflects better than anybody else the views of the president-elect on foreign policy. But Knox's health is the doubtful factor. Some say he doesn't want cabinet responsibilities and would prefer to stay in the senate. Others say he could be more useful as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee if Senator Lodge were to be taken into the cabinet.

Some of those who want Lodge to go into the cabinet are thinking of the "reservists" and the "irreconcilables." There has been some discussion about new leadership in the hope that the sores of the treaty fight would be healed by an entirely new deal in the senate. Such a plan contemplates the promotion of Senator Lodge to the portfolio of secretary of state, though it is insisted by friends of Lodge that he prefers to remain at the head of the foreign relations committee and steer the new administration's foreign policy through congress.

LIME BOUGHT FOR BUTTER-MAKING USE, SAYS WITNESS

Quantities of lime were purchased from a wholesale drug firm to be used in the manufacture of butter at the Hazelwood company plant, Front and Ankeny streets, according to testimony given in the federal court this morning by Dan McGill, federal inspector, in the trial of the Hazelwood company on charges of remaking spoiled butter in violation of the national pure food law.

Joseph E. Dunn, vice president and manager of the Hazelwood Ice Cream company, a corporation not connected with the accused company, testified that his plant had difficulty with Hazelwood butter during September, 1918. Owing to a shortage of sweet cream Dunn said he arranged with the Hazelwood people for regular shipments of pure sweet cream butter, in order to extract the butterfat with which to make ice cream.

CUSTOMERS COMPLAIN

"Our customers complained about the poor quality of the ice cream," he said, "so I conducted an investigation and found that the butter was vile. I ordered all the butter returned. I went to the plant and asked Raven (foreman of the churning department) what kind of soap grease he was sending us. I had quite a tilt with him, but didn't get any satisfaction."

J. M. Younger, ex-Hazelwood employee, stated that the butter receipts did not check properly, and that he attempted to go to the upper floors to indicate the trouble. He said he was stopped by a deputy sheriff when about to enter the churning room, even though he was an employee of the plant. Younger said the deputy told him, "I have a right to shoot you if you go up there."

The government rested its case about 11 o'clock after dismissing the first count of the indictment which dealt with illegal operations up to June 30, 1918. No witnesses could testify to the manufacturing of adulterated butter during that time. The counts charging the manufacture from July 1, 1918, to February, 1920, were not changed.

PROSECUTION RESTS

After Humphreys rested attorneys for the company moved for a directed verdict, but Judge H. S. Bean held that the motion was entirely out of order.

James Oswald, brother of the witness, who was chief engineer at the plant, told the jury that he was ordered to secure a deputy sheriff's commission on September 20, 1918, by Manager Ellis and then told to keep everybody off the third floor, where this butter was being remade. Oswald said he witnessed the recurring of black and green moldy butter, and said he could smell a pile of it 10 feet away.

Mrs. Mabel Loneragan, Mrs. C. J. Haverly, Miss Lucille Oswald and W. R. Keyser told of experience with the rancid butter.

Part of the remade butter was sold to the Hazelwood Ice Cream company, according to Herman C. Raven, who was foreman in the churning room for a short time. Joseph H. Dunn, manager of the ice cream plant, complained about the butter, Raven said.

CALLED IT PURE CREAM

"For God's sake, what are you giving us?" Dunn said on one occasion to Raven. "I'm giving you straight run." Raven said he told the jury that "straight run" means butter made from pure cream.

Raven said it was impossible for employees to remove all the mold from the butter. "The mold spores hang pretty good in butter. It's pretty hard to kill them," he testified.

Over the objection of counsel for the company, Judge Bean ordered Raven to relate the incident of adding saltwater to the mixture when butter was sometimes returned for a third time, when the rancidity had not been removed during the second churning. He said the saltwater removed "off" flavors in butter.

UNDER STRONG LIME WATER

Two full cars of butter from California plants weighing about 42,000 pounds each and an equal amount of butter from Oregon plants, only received in smaller lots, was returned, according to Raven.

Used strong lime water Raven told the jury that the lime water was made as strong as possible, the order being to use all the lime the water would dissolve. Raven said it was customary for centralized creameries in the West to use the lime water process, but that it was unlawful in Middle West creameries where he had worked. Attorneys attempted to test Raven's knowledge as an expert butter maker by asking him if he would use lime water to remove rancidity from butter. He answered, "I don't know of any way to remove rancidity, but you can cover it up for a short time."

Humphreys introduced as evidence labels and cartons used for Meadow Harvest and Snow Cap brands. The labels said that the butter was to be kept in the butter in a cool place and away from vegetables.

TWO CHILDREN ARE STRUCK DOWN AND BRUISED BY AUTO

Carvel Reames, 5-year-old daughter of Assistant United States Attorney C. W. Reames, 3011 Gladstone street, and Ed Myall, 6-year-old son of Dodd Myall, were run over by an automobile driven by E. D. McCartney of Linnton, Wednesday afternoon at Twenty-third and Thurman streets. Both children were badly bruised. Reames said this morning that he could not state whether or not the injuries to his daughter would develop into anything more serious.

According to witnesses, McCartney was driving without lights, about 5:10, just about dark. The two children were crossing the street with Mrs. Myall, the grandmother of the injured boy.

Both children were rolled over on the ground and little Carvel Reames was dragged some distance, witnesses stated. McCartney stopped and offered assistance. The two children were taken home. Police are investigating the accident.

Joseph Leo Studer, owner of a truck which ran over 10-year-old Thomas Cardon, 410 First street, at Front and Columbia streets Wednesday night, was arrested by Patrolman Harry Stanton at police headquarters when he came to claim the truck Wednesday night.

Studer told the police that the truck had been stolen from him, and that he was not driving it at the time of the accident, the police say. He is being held for investigation.

After running over the boy, who was later taken home, the driver ran away without turning back or offering assistance. Nick Bascallawie, a witness to the accident, followed the truck until the driver stopped. By the time he had called the police, the driver had disappeared, but the truck was taken to the police station. The boy was not seriously hurt.

CONVICT SEEKS TO GIVE RIVAL 'WIFE'

Salem, Dec. 2.—The second chapter in the adventure-filled near romance of the Goodans, convicts at the state prison here, was written Wednesday night when Dan Goodan swallowed some non-poisonous drug in what he apparently believed to be an effort to end his life.

When prison officials, notified by Goodan's fellow inmates, visited his cell early Thursday morning, they found a fairly sick man and a note of farewell to the world, which read: "As I am ready to die and have nothing to live for, will take my life and have it over. As the old saying goes, I was warned, but did not heed."

SHORT SELLERS LOSE

The short sellers in a panic were forced to go into the interior and pay from 10 to 15 cents a bushel more for the wheat than they sold it to England. Reports indicate that even off-grade wheat has been sold in the Heppner section around $1.40 a bushel, which would mean at least $1.60 Portland for stock.

WHEAT PRICES STAGE STRONG COMEBACK ON CHICAGO BOARD

Chicago, Dec. 2.—(U. P.)—Wheat prices staged a strong comeback on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Gains of from 8 to 10 cents were made in quotations on wheat for future delivery. Other grains made slight gains in sympathy. The rise in wheat prices was due to considerable buying by houses with export connections and by short covering. No great quantity of wheat was offered for sale. Buying of corn and oats also was general. Provisions were higher.

Wheat Price Advances

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 2.—Wheat prices today were advancing after almost a week of inactivity. The increases in Spokane and country points are 7 cents on Big Bend bluestem and 8 cents on soft grades, making the local prices to farmers, $1.35 a bushel for bluestem and $1.26 a bushel for soft grades.
