ROBERT SCHULTZ LEAPS TO DEATH

Roseburg, Or., Dec. 18.—Robert W. Schultz of Portland jumped from the third floor of the Umpqua hotel at 11:30 today, striking the pavement in front of the lobby, suffering a skull fracture from which he died in 20 minutes. Schultz formerly operated the Dream theatre in Portland.

Schultz came here the first of this week to buy the Liberty theatre. He went back to Portland and returned here last night with R. E. Keoman, who was to work for Schultz.

The hotel clerk took a check from Schultz on the Portland bank in payment for his room. The check was returned, marked "not paid for lack of funds." About 11 o'clock the clerk told Schultz about the check and the latter said he would make it good. Schultz then went to the elevator and up to the third floor, walked to the front of the building, jumped to the sidewalk, barely missing a pedestrian.

Schultz's associate could give no reason for the rash act, and no signs of insanity were noticed by the hotel greeters at Umpqua.

The deal for the Liberty theatre would have been closed today.

Schultz had a half interest in the Dream theatre of Portland until about a week ago when he sold out, according to the Public Exchange company here. His partner in the Dream theatre was Miss Elizabeth Breymer. It was thought by the Public Exchange company that Schultz might have had a little business trouble in the Dream theatre transactions, although they were not willing to state in just what way. Schultz had no relatives in Portland. His wife resides in Seattle. He was about 30 years of age.

RATE BOOST URGED BY GAS MANAGER

employees of the Portland Gas & Coke company have been increased from 89 cents to 94 cents since January, 1916. The total payroll for November of this year was $77,720, he said, or equivalent to $92,646 per annum.

YEARS FOR BONDS

Extensions of gas mains to accommodate the growing population of the city would be practically impossible without increase in the revenues of the Portland Gas & Coke company, according to evidence submitted Friday afternoon by Cy W. Talbot, president of the company.

The gas company is offering its bonds and preferred stock to cover the cost of additional equipment estimated at $240,000 and an increase in rates charged for gas to cover an advance in the cost of oil used in gas manufacture of from 75 cents a barrel to $2.75 a barrel, effective January 1.

OIL CONTRACT TO EXPIRE

Under direct examination by John A. Laing, counsel for the gas company, and cross-examination by City Attorney La Roche, Talbot stated that the Portland Gas & Coke company secured a contract from the Union Oil Company of California in 1914, guaranteeing an adequate supply of oil for a six-year period at 74 1/2 cents a barrel. This contract expired December 31. According to Talbot the price of oil has been advanced to $2.75 a barrel after that date and the oil companies refuse to make further contracts at any price.

President Talbot stated the officials of the company had given the public the benefit of the favorable terms secured in the six-year contract and that additional revenue to be derived from the proposed increase in rates would under the plan submitted, exactly meet the increased cost of oil.

VALUE IS $12,821,520

H. L. Gray, public utility engineer in the employ of the gas company, was on the stand today, and the grand jury part of Friday and was recalled at 7:30 Friday night, when he submitted a valuation of the used and useful properties of the gas company, brought down to September 30, 1920. Gray's estimate placed the valuation of property taken over by the company on January 10, 1910, at $6,840,000 and showed the actual cost of additions to the properties since that time up to September 30 to be $6,821,520, making a total valuation of $12,821,520.

City Attorney La Roche objected to the filing of Gray's valuation with the public service commission on the ground that the city had not completed a check of the figures. Evidence showed the city had been furnished valuation of the gas company's property on November 12, 1918, as of December 31, 1917. Engineers of the public service commission have been working on the books of the gas company intermittently for the last four or five months.

MOUNTAIN WATER MAY BE HURTLED, DECLARES EXPERT

Whether mountain water is pure and whether chlorinated water is injurious were questions discussed by Oregon health officers this morning in their annual conference. Following a talk by L. D. Mars, sanitary engineer of the U. S. public health service, in which he spoke of the favorable location of Oregon as regards a pure water supply, but told of the necessity of being on the constant lookout for pollutions, various doctors expressed their views.

Dr. Andrew C. Smith, acting health officer, mentioned the Winchester sanitarian case as an example of the need of guidance to the people, and said that Roseburg citizens, before the danger to their water supply by the erection of the hospital were pointed out, had signed a petition for its establishment. Other doctors pointed out difficulties encountered by other cities in obtaining a pure water supply, such as Silverton, Eugene and Salem. It was stated that Roseburg had spent enough money in typhoid fever and typhoid fever in the last few years to have paid for piping water from the Breitenbush river, and that there is a question of justification of the taxing of future generations for bonds for putting in a pure water supply.

J. C. Geiger of the United States public health service in California, somewhat upset the trend of argument in favor of "pure" mountain water by declaring that the experience of his state had demonstrated that mountain water is not pure, but is filled with contamination obtained from the valleys through which it must pass before it reaches the city, and from campers and others who go into the mountains, and cited several California cities that were forced to chlorinate their mountain water because of typhoid developments.

"Chlorination must come," he said. "The dangers are too many from campers. You cannot control a watershed. You cannot control the human element. They are constantly in the mountains. Your mountain water may be pure now, but you are living on a volcano, for as soon as your population increases, your supplies will be polluted."

"How do you apply that to Bull Run?" interrupted someone.

Geiger said he knew nothing about Bull Run. Other physicians asked him if chlorinated water did not in some way become injurious to people. Geiger declared it did not. Dr. Smith asked him why it killed fish, and told of the shipment of fish that perished because their water supply was changed at Eugene to chlorinated water. Another doctor referred to a similar case at the state fair.

Miss Edna S. Eames, inspector of Portland schools, told of 15,000 children examined 1912 were found to show symptoms of communicable diseases and should not be in school.

If the thief who took three red chickens Friday and two white ones the week before from the home of Mrs. William Neubauer, 965 Front street, will take the trouble to return them, he will probably find in the pantry all the requisites for an oyster dressing, that the whole Christmas dinner may be together even if it isn't on her table, so Mrs. Neubauer told the police, who promise to be there also and help the thief find the rest of the supplies.

Mrs. Neubauer told the police the robbers had also taken a meat roaster, to cook the chicken in, a large beef roast, and a bottle of milk from her back porch.

POLICE BULLETS SCATTER CHINESE

Chinatown was in a turmoil in the early hours of this morning, over an attempted robbery of a soft drink establishment, the arrest of three men and the search of certain places for others supposed to be implicated in the affair.

The attempted robbery was reported to the police station at 2:15 o'clock this morning and Policemen Wada, Morelock, Burth and Hill hurried to 94 North Fifth street, where they found a window broken and a man badly cut and intoxicated lying on the sidewalk. He was taken to the emergency hospital and then put into a padded cell.

G. H. Louie, a Chinaman at 36 North Fifth street, said he had seen three men enter the soft drink place at 11 o'clock last night and that they remained there until 2 o'clock this morning, when they undertook to tap the money till and a fight followed.

A search of the place disclosed three plants of moonshine whiskey and several empty bottles. On the shelves were empty cigarette cartons and other empty boxes.

The police officers searched the neighborhood for the men and at 94 North Fourth street, where they heard voices, they demanded entrance, but this was refused. Several shots were fired through the door and it was then opened and only Chinamen were found. It is believed others had escaped by a back door.

Later Patrolman Seitzner saw two men going to 96 North Fifth street, and arrested them for investigation. They gave the names of Eric Karp and Fred Hinnen.
