Shotgun Posse Overpowers 2 Abductors, Who Held Pretty Los Angeles Matron Captive; Dr. Brounger Advocates Hanging.

By Charles E. Hughes
Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 31.—(I. N. S.)—Admitting that he had kidnaped Mrs. Gladys Witherell, attractive young Hollywood woman, in hope of a $20,000 ransom—the third abduction in which they had been implicated—Floyd and Arthur J. Carr, cousins, were arrested early today and held under heavy guard in the city jail while Mrs. Witherell was restored to her husband and 16-month-old baby, Jack, unharmed.

According to the police, Floyd Carr admitted the abduction committed in kidnaping in Portland, Or., and another in Denver. In Denver, it was said, the men kidnaped a woman named Mabel Clark and held her for ransom. The men were then placed incommunicado and further details of these two cases could not be obtained by reporters.

SEARCH IS DRAMATIC

The rescue of Mrs. Witherell and the apprehension of the kidnapers brought to conclusion one of the most dramatic and sensational hunts in California criminal annals.

Arthur J. Carr was arrested as he stepped from a black coupe in a downtown drugstore, after telephoning a final ransom demand to O. S. Witherell, husband of the kidnaped woman, at the family home in Whittier avenue.

Then came a two hours' grilling of the prisoner, a fast trip to a lonely canyon cabin near Corona, 54 miles east of Los Angeles, and a thrillingly dramatic escape from the kidnapers' hideout.

GRABBS WERE CROWDS

As details of the plot were learned the two prisoners were kept under close guard and reserve officers held at police headquarters to prevent possible mob action. Large crowds gathered about the jail this morning and curiously peered through the jail windows, but uniformed officers kept everyone moving and prevented any disturbance.

The thrilling arrests came as the kidnapers were planning their coup for delivery of the ransom money.

The last word from the kidnapers to O. S. Witherell had instructed him to leave his home promptly at 8:30 o'clock tonight in an automobile.

The instructions to Witherell were that he was to drive alone and at moderate speed to the Valley boulevard, then proceed until he came to a cross road, where there was to be a red lantern. There, according to the kidnapers' plans, Witherell was to drop the $20,000 by the side of the red lantern, turn his car promptly and drive to the house.

WIRELESS PLAYS PART

The fire, which was discovered Sunday morning by a party of people returning from Oregon City, apparently started in the rear of the postoffice. By the time the alarm had been sounded the fire was beyond control and the only effort of those aroused was to save as much of the movable stock as possible.

The stores occupying the building were a confectionery, a grocery store, a department store, a hardware store, a butcher shop owned by D. N. Oller, the postoffice and a school supply store owned by W. G. Benie; the grocery store owned by F. M. Little and a garage owned by David Smith. All the stocks in the stores were a total loss. A portion of the movable stock was saved.

COMPANY NOTIFIED

It was J. W. Julian and Edwin Sheets of Oak Grove who wireless news of the fire to Portland. Julian has a signal wire wireless telephone set in his home which Sheets operated. At 2:15 o'clock Sunday morning, when the telephone wires out, they got into communication with George Critcher, 367 Vernon street, Portland, who has a receiving and spark set. They told Critcher to have the power company take care of the wires and threatened the rest of the wires with the result that a man was at once sent out. Critcher stood by until 8 o'clock Sunday morning in case he should be needed to deliver any further information. Amateur operators from Silverton also picked up the messages of the fire.

MRS. WITHERELL TELLS STORY OF HER ABDUCTION

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—(I. N. S.)—Enfolded in the protecting arms of her husband as she was being hurried from the scene of her captivity in a high powered automobile to the side of her 16-month-old baby Jack, Mrs. Gladys Witherell sobbed over her story early today, reciting in graphic detail the incidents of her abduction, step by step, from the time she was stolen from her home until she was rescued at an early hour this morning.

As the frail little wife and mother told her story, she paused at intervals from the pain of a possibly allocated shoulder. On her neck was the black finger print marks of the hands of Floyd Carr, who twice choked her to stop her cries as she fought to free herself while being spirited away.

HER OWN STORY

Here is Mrs. Witherell's story, told in her own words:

"When the gray-haired man came to my home in Hollywood he was in a hurry and told me that I was wanted by a woman who was hurt in an automobile accident, and that she was calling for me. I thought it was my husband's mother, who was coming to have dinner with me that evening, and I hurried away as fast as possible.

"When we got to the machine, which was waiting in front of my home, there was another man at the wheel. Floyd Carr helped me into the automobile. We had no more than been seated in the car when the man driving opened the car up at reckless speed. I thought nothing of that, however, feeling that he was hurrying me to Sunset boulevard and my mother, who needed me.

TRIES TO HALT HIM

"We turned the corner from Whittier, the street my home is on, to Sunset boulevard and kept on speeding toward town. We got to Sunset boulevard and he turned and kept right on speeding. They had not gone very far when I tried to stop him.

"I thought you said the accident was on Hollywood boulevard? I asked. He said, 'No, you misunderstood me.' Then they kept right on speeding the car, and I made up my mind that I must get out. STRUGGLES WITH MAN

"When I pressed him for details of the accident and the make of the car, he said it was a sedan, but I could not think and could not remember any relatives or personal friends who owned a sedan. I immediately was seized with a fear that almost overwhelmed me. Immediately I began to struggle to get out of the car, but he held me and kept telling me that everything was all right and to keep quiet.

"I screamed at the top of my voice, shouting 'Murder!' as loud as I could, but there was nobody passing us to hear my call for help. I kept on fighting the man and trying to get out, and I tore the rail robe from the back of the seat in my struggle. All the time I kept kicking and fighting him, but he was too strong for me and held me tight while the other man kept the car running at high speed.

CHOKED INTO UNCONSCIOUSNESS

"Then, when I kept up my cries for help, he put his hands around my throat and choked me. I never will forget the awful sensation as I was rendered unconscious. First it seemed that I was being choked, and then I couldn't see at all. He had thrown me down on the floor of the car when he started choking me, and I was unconscious for some time.

"Finally I regained consciousness and then I laid still in the bottom of the car trying to make up my mind what to do. From the conversation of the two men I learned that we were driving toward Vernon.

MAKES DESPERATE FIGHT

"I decided to make one more try to get out, and I cautiously reached the lock on the side of the car and opened the side door. Quick as a flash I hurried myself out, feet first, and ran toward the street. I caught my neck and shoulders when he grabbed me and struggled to get me back in the car.

STORM RAISES HAVOC AT ILWACO; BOATS WRECKED

Ilwaco, Wash., Jan. 31.—Thousands of dollars in damage occurred in and about Ilwaco from a hurricane which struck this district at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, tearing boats from their moorings in Baker's bay and dashing them to pieces from a pierhead, unroofing buildings and leveling telephone and light wires. The peak of the gale lasted nearly an hour.

The new high school building was damaged and the livery barn of T. Samuels was wrecked. The roof of the high school was carried away. Fires broke out in several buildings and a building at leveling telephone and light wires. The peak of the gale lasted nearly an hour.

The O-W. R. N. and county docks at Nahcotta on Willapa harbor were blown away and the lighthouse at North Head was blown down and several houses were demolished near by. The heavy brick wall of the North Head lightkeeper's house bulged from the force of the gale.

A canvasback duck was blown through a window at Chinook. Chickens belonging to Ilwaco fanciers were carried as far as Sea View, two miles north of Ilwaco. Shingles filled the air at the time.

The gull fleet with a crash that could be heard for miles. It collapsed today and an hour after the fire was discovered and at a time when the interior of the building was in flames.

Clemence street offered the best location from which to fight the blaze. The fire started in the building which was on this street or on fire escapes on the side of the building which parallels that street.

Without a moment's warning the two men jumped to the way. Some of the firemen jumped. Other oblivious of anything but the fire they were fighting, held their positions. The heavy wall fell, burying 22 men beneath tons of brick and stone.

DOCTORS ARE CALLED

Other firemen and police working on the other sides of the block temporarily abandoned the fighting of the flames to render aid to the dead and dying firemen. Harried telephone calls were sent for doctors, nurses and for priests.

Volstead Act May Be Submitted in Lower House Today

State House, Salem, Jan. 31.—Agreement has been reached, so it was definitely rumored at the capital this morning, to introduce the Volstead act in the house before the day's work has been concluded.

The bill is supposed to be on its way from Portland. It will in effect remodel the terms of the federal act so as to conform with state administration, but will hold to the general form and terms of the Volstead bill. It will provide for the absolute repeal of the Oregon bone and china act, which is inter-allied with the bill.

According to report a conference of senators and representatives was held on Saturday at which it was decided that the bill should be drafted and introduced, all of those present at the meeting agreeing to support both in the house and senate should it be brought up for consideration.

Wood is a new patrolman on probation with a suspension of his license, but has no appeal to the civil service board. His dismissal will take place immediately.

British Opposition To 42-Year German Export Tax Shown

London, Jan. 31.—(I. N. S.)—Leading British newspapers today generally approved the decision of the League of Nations supreme council to impose 226,000,000 gold marks indemnity on Germany, but the Daily Express was doubtful of the feasibility of imposing a tax upon Germany's export trade for the next 42 years.

NEW STORES HEADED FOR NORTHWEST

Warnings Displayed This Morning Along Coast by Weather Man; North Head Cut Off From World; Wires Are Down.

New storm warnings were displayed along the Oregon and Washington coasts at 9:30 o'clock this morning, indicating the approach of another wave of the storms that lashed the coast Saturday and Sunday. That the new visitation could be looked for within a few hours was the expectation, based on new reports at the weather bureau here.

With only the short range wireless sending apparatus in working order, the weather bureau at North Head was still practically cut off from communication with the world this morning as a result of the hurricane that continued over the weekend.

Late this morning the 5 a. m. report was picked up from North Head and relayed to the local weather office. The report said that a strong southeast gale was blowing, with strong gusts usually between 48 and 56 miles an hour.

The cyclonic winds of Saturday afternoon carried away all telegraphic wires from North Head to Port Canby, and E. W. Wells, local weather forecaster, says he doubts if sufficient funds are available to rebuild the wires. All telegraphic wires and antennae at the station was destroyed by the storm.

Sunday night the station got two words to the outside. They were: "Fresh gales." These words were picked up at Seattle and relayed to the local offices.

30,000 Owners of Untagged Autos of Oregon Face Arrest

Salem, Or., Jan. 31.—More than 30,000 Oregon automobile owners will be subject to arrest for failure to register their automobiles under a strict interpretation of the registration law, effective this morning.

This is based on the total registration of last year when 102,000 automobiles bore the Oregon license tag.

It is altogether probable that there are more cars than that in the state at this time subject to the registration law, but not more than 74,000 will be entitled to use of the public highways until tonight under a strict interpretation of the registration law, effective this morning.

The number which has applied for the little green license plate up to this date, there can be no valid excuse for the delinquency of the state.

Secretary of State Koser began to sound the warning two months before the new year dawned, urging automobile owners to do their duty by registering their cars.

The department has been right up with the applications for a week and last night the registration department had received, yet more than 20,000 automobiles in the state are not provided with the credentials which indicate their compliance with the registration law.

Fine Stock Farm, Once Operated by Frank E. Alley, Sold

Roseburg, Jan. 31.—The Bona Day stock farm, 512 acres, located 1/2 miles east of Roseburg, has been purchased by P. W. Beckley from the United States Mortgage and Investment company of Portland. This farm was at one time one of the finest stock ranches in the county, conducted by Frank E. Alley, then rated as one of the best stockmen in the state. Alley later was accused of making fraudulent entries of timber lands, but left the country and enlisted in the Canadian army, going overseas in the world war.

The farm is located on the main highway and is an ideal place for a rural home. Beckley will improve it to a high state of cultivation and will erect a fine dwelling and farm buildings this spring, planning to make it his permanent home. One of the finest strings of racing horses was kept on this farm at one time.

Port of Seattle Is Winner in Suit of O. W. R. & N. Co.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(U. P.)—The port of Seattle in the supreme court today won its fight to obtain the rights to a valuable strip of waterway area in East Waterway, Seattle harbor, claimed by Oregon and Washington Railroad company.

Married in Haste; Divorced in Anger; Home Is War Center

Wenatchee, Wash., Jan. 31.—Wedded on a few hours' acquaintance, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Figlinski became involved in a domestic war while Mrs. Figlinski was fighting with the German army and Figlinski's two sons were with the A. E. F., according to testimony in the most sensational divorce case ever tried in Chelan county. Mrs. Figlinski won the divorce, her husband's home being purchased on the installment plan.

Mrs. Figlinski, formerly Mrs. Emilia Lelso, is a German and Figlinski is a Pole. They met in Vancouver, B. C., on the morning of September 17, 1917, and were married at 2:30 o'clock that afternoon. During the trial they became excited and testified in their native tongues.

O. A. C. Foresters to Send Student South

Oregon, Agricultural College, Corvallis, Jan. 31.—A representative of the O. A. C. Forestry club will be sent to Berkeley in February to attend the international association of forestry clubs.

Sabbath Bathing Would Be Stopped

New York, Jan. 31.—All week-end bathing will be stopped on Saturday night hereafter if the Brooklyn Auxiliary of the Woman's National Sabbath alliance has its way. The organization will send a delegation to Albany to push a law banning Sunday bathing.

Johnson Must Do Dance Alone

About Japanese Declares Colby

Washington, Jan. 31.—(I. N. S.)—"There is no secretiveness" in the state department's attempts to settle the Japanese situation, Secretary of State Colby said today, replying to a statement by Senator Johnson of California, demanding immediate publicity concerning the proposed settlement.

"We are handling this incident and discussion in a way which seems to us correct," Secretary Colby said. "All our actions are in conformity with the recognized means for conducting such proceedings. We cannot let our consideration be influenced by comment or interviews. The responsible members of the senate will understand the course matters are taking. No political or oratorical exigencies will tempt us to depart from a rational course. There is no secretiveness or impropriety here. The matter cannot be settled in a covert manner. If Senator Johnson wants to do a ghost dance around this proposal, he must do it without me."

Meanwhile Senator Johnson has demanded of Colby that the report of Ambassador Roland S. Morris on his negotiations with Baron Shidehara, Japanese ambassador, be made public.

MAINE GOVERNOR DIES SUDDENLY

Augusta, Maine, Jan. 31.—(I. N. S.)—Governor Parkhurst of Maine, whose election in September was the beginning of the countrywide Republican landslide, died at the executive mansion here today following a short illness of diphtheritic sore throat.

Droping of Grain Man and Election of Three New Commissioners Tentative Compromise On Big Six and Joseph Issues.

State House, Salem, Jan. 31.—At a conference held during the noon hour between Frank Warren, Senators Moser, Banks, Joseph, Dennis, Ellis, Ritner and a number of others, a tentative agreement was reached concerning the personnel of the Port of Portland commission which apparently has ended the port consolidation battle.

It was decided to eliminate Max Houser as a member of the commission and to elect three new men, T. J. Mahoney, H. L. Corbett and W. L. Thompson. This will increase the membership of the commission by two. If this compromise is finally ratified by the senate during the afternoon session, the port program will go over to the house without controversy and the battle over it will be ended.

WAR HELD MENACE TO THE WHITE RACE

Washington, Jan. 31.—(U. P.)—The white race will fall before the yellow in a great world war, unless the now dominant peoples abandon militarism for the constructive and friendly policies of peace, Senator Arthur Capper, Kansas, predicted today in an interview urging disarmament as the only wise and progressive course.

"Should militarism continue," said Capper, "there will be long conflict before the light of civilization is snuffed out, but it will be put out if wars and practical improvement or for dumping the spoils of dredging, in other words the power to carry out the Swan Island"

Hayden Island Is Suggested as Site For Big Exposition

That Hayden Island be selected as the site of the 1925 Atlantic-Pacific Highway and Electrical exposition and that it be preserved after the exposition as a public park and automobile tourist camp, has been suggested to E. E. Beach, president of the Hydro-Electric league, in a statement by the East Side Business Men's club.

"The military Moloch," continued Capper, "is absorbing 93 per cent of the federal revenues which exceed $4,000,000,000 a year. And constant demands are made for more. With the government unable to raise sufficient taxes to meet a $2,000,000,000 deficit, with nearly $5,000,000,000 of war obligations maturing within two years, and with the treasury borrowing $200,000,000 from month to month at the cent interest, we are asked for more armaments."

"There are signs, I am glad to say, of retarding the reason Senator Harding's plea for an army of 150,000, the Borah resolution for a disarmament conference and his later one for a suspension of naval building for six months, and the reduction of the army by congress to 175,000, all have given a great impetus to public opinion."

"The world won't tamely see this country embroiled in another war, and the background of an armed anchor, and civilization knows it. Therefore, why continue the folly of great armaments?"

Bill Would Allow Lawyer $6250 Fee In State Land Case

State House, Salem, Jan. 31.—The comfortable fee of $6250 will be paid C. B. McConnel for work as attorney and for expenses in the suit of the Pacific Livestock company in the circuit court of Harney county, from November 1914 to November 1919, if a bill introduced by Representative P. J. Gallagher in the house this morning becomes a law. The bill states that the reason for the compensation is that through this suit the state has secured the payment from the corporation of $125,000 and provision that approximately 10,000 acres of Oregon lands shall be sold off in small tracts to actual settlers.

WORLD'S LOST PARADISE

ARTHUR CAPPER U. S. SENATOR from Kansas who warns of great world conflict between white and yellow races unless nations disarm.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(I. N. S.)—At about the same hour that President Wilson was denying commutation of sentence for Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, as recommended by Attorney General Palmer, the United States supreme court was setting aside, because of prejudice on the part of Judge Landis, the trial judge, the conviction of Victor Berger, Wisconsin Socialist, whose offense was similar to that of Debs.

Berger had been convicted of violation of the espionage act and sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment by Judge Landis.

LANDIS DECLARED BIASED

The supreme court decided that Judge Landis should not have sat in the case when challenged on the ground of personal bias or prejudice, but should have been given a second trial by another judge to hear the case.

The conviction and verdict were set aside by the decision of the supreme court, but it was not announced whether there will be a retrial for Berger by Justice McKenna.

THREE JUSTICES DISSENT

Justices Day, Pitney and McReynolds dissented from the majority opinion. Justice Day held that the affidavit of prejudice should set forth bias and not allege it on information and belief. He said the record in the case did not disclose that Judge Landis had any prejudice that would prevent a fair trial.

Attorney General Palmer had recommended to the president that Debs, who is now serving a sentence for violation of the espionage act, should be released on February 22.

The president's action in reply was swift and terse. Attorney General Palmer submitted his recommendation for clemency on Saturday night. It went to the president on Sunday.

Man Who Escaped By Jumping From Fast Train Found

Medford, Or., Jan. 31.—When Deputy United States Marshal S. F. Pace of Portland, here on other business, walked into a local cigar store Sunday night and saw Lloyd F. Keffer, with aliases of L. F. Dean, L. G. Knox and J. Franklin, who had arrived in the city last Sunday afternoon, he eagerly seized him.

Keffer, he alleges, a year ago took an unpaid-for automobile from Shreveport, La., to California and sold it, was traced to Astoria by Keffer, with aliases of L. F. Dean, L. G. Knox and J. Franklin, who had arrived in the city last Sunday afternoon, he eagerly seized him.

Recall Election to Occur February 16

Dallas, Or., Jan. 31.—When County Clerk Floyd D. Moore fixed the date of the recall election against County Judge A. B. Robinson Monday he announced each year from the tentative date and it will be held February 16, Robinson asserts he does not intend to resign prior to the election.

See Farm in Bottle of Catsup Home Patronage Gives Visions

By Marshall N. Dana
A bottle of catsup on the restaurant table.

Who could see a farm in it? Or many farms? And neat homes surrounded by rows upon rows of vigorous vines on tall stakes and red fruit gleaming among green leaves?

Who could see in the catsup bottle, in addition to its easily fulfilled promise of enhanced flavor for fish and meat, the background of an Oregon industry that, if successful, supports agriculture in Western Oregon, manufactures, jobbers and scores of retail dealers?

OREGON PRODUCT FACTOR

There are 20 brands of tomato catsup on the market in Oregon today. Fourteen of these are in sufficient demand to be a factor in the market. One of these brands is Oregon catsup.

It was placed on the market four years ago. Before it could meet competition, its quality and flavor had to be as good as other varieties. There was also a problem of salesmanship connected with it.

It ranks today in volume of sales with any other one variety. But it is said that the natural advantages for tomato growing are so great in Oregon that catsup manufacture could be made a leading industry, that many times as much could be sold in other states as is now consumed in Oregon under four brands, and that Oregon agriculture would gain thereby one of its biggest boosts.

The manufacture of other relishes has well passed the status of infant industry.
