Hofmann is a profound, quiet and yet very powerful performer. His technique is marvelous and the tone is of the expressive singing quality that convinces one that the piano is not a dead instrument. The big numbers of the program were Chopin's Sonata in B flat and Schumann's "Carnival," a work of stumoods. Among the dainty tone poems were Fannie Dillon's "Birds at Dawn" and Scriabine's "Languid Dance," and fully brought out. In the Liszt Raphsody No. 6 and in Sternberg's Concert Etude in C minor the pianist found opportunity to display more of his re-markable technique.
