Manager McCredie plans to send a couple of his regular hurlers against the Giants Saturday, probably Polson "Harold Brooks."

When Brooks injured the Portland

When Brooks joined the Portland club, well after the opening of the season, he immediately made a hit with the fans. Little information could be secured as to his past baseball career and the only thing given out by the McCredies was that he was a "busher" from Montana." He was "different" from the ordinary run of bushers, but outside of the fact that a Seattle weekly paper attempted an "expose" but could not, no one seemed to know anything

Eight Teams Will Form Two Leagues Being Organized

Vale. Or., March 19.—Two four-team baseball leagues—the Idaho-Oregon and the Pin Line leagues—were formed at a meeting of representatives from the eight towns in the leagues at Weiser, Idaho. A mutual understanding, that both leagues would end their season on or before July 3, was made. It was further agreed that the winners in each league would play a series of games for the 1921 championship, details of this post-season series to be left to the man-agement of the winning teams.

The Idaho-Oregon league is composed of Vale, Huntington, Payette and Parma. The Pin Line four are: Weiser, Cambridge, Midvale and Council. Both leagues will hold meetings within a few days to arrange schedules and all necessary details incident to the sport this season.

The Idaho-Oregon league last year consisted of six teams. This year two, additional towns on the Pin Line were seeking admission and it was the judgment of the last meeting that the long distance between the two extremities of the proposed league of eight teams would mitigate against good attendance and successful baseball, so the eight towns were split into two leagues.
