MONDAY, MARCH 21, 1921.

THE OREGON DAILY JOURNAL, PORTLAND, OREGON

YOU BIG FOOL

ARTIST THAT

EXHIBITION .!

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

I HOPE HE

MARES ENOUGH

MONEY TO GIT

A HAIR CUT

By George McManus

BY GOLLY!

HE OUGHT TO

BE BY HIMSELF

T. PAER skittered down the aise of nuisance. Squall too much. Always against the Fat Man who sat, all sprawled out, deep in the morning paper. "It's too bad," T. Paer mused. "Your out, deep in the morning paper. "I beg your pardon," he said, cheer-fully, looking expectantly at the poten-tial seat beside the Fat Man.

"Ugh!" the Fat Man grunted, rubbing one shin with the calf of his other leg. "Excuse me," T. Paer said, accenting the last word slightly as he wedged him-the last word slightly as he weight inte-self into the surplus niche. "Umph!" the Fat Man responded, gathering himself together an inch or so. "What's the big news?" the little man queried, optimistically. "More rain !" the Fat Man growled, lacontcally, jamming his nose still deeper into the pages. "Well," T. Paer grinned, "it's March, ain't it?"

glared at him.

"March all the time," the Fat Man "ared at him." "Ob, maybe." T. Paer admitted ; "but guess, if we didn't haye a little now'n hen this time a year, they'd be buildin" "I y years 'n more." "What'd she do," T. Paer persisted, "the first time you kissed her under the ivy arbor over the front gate?" "Slapped me," the Fat Man grinned, "'nd giggled." he added. then this time a year, they'd be buildin' pyramids around here, instead of good

"What's the good of "em?" the Fat Man demanded. "Nothing but to skid off of !" he added, bitterly.

"People don't skid," T. Paer contended, miers they go too fast." "You drive a car?" the Fat Man demanded. "Nope!" T. Paer grinned. "I just

"Nope!" T. Paer grinned. "I just dodge 'em!" "Beastly nuisance." the Fat Man stat-ed, "riding on street cars. Blamed crowded! No comfort! Stop for every-body!" "It's better'n walking, ain't it?" T. "Bread 'n butter 'n jam 'n hard bolled esgs 'n pumpkin pie," T. Paer repeated, "Bread 'n butter 'n jam 'n hard bolled esgs 'n pumpkin pie," T. Paer repeated, "Bread 'n butter 'n jam 'n hard bolled esgs 'n pumpkin pie," T. Paer repeated, "Bread 'n butter 'n jam 'n hard bolled esgs 'n pumpkin pie," T. Paer repeated, "Bread 'n butter 'n jam 'n hard bolled esgs 'n pumpkin pie," T. Paer repeated, "Bread 'n butter 'n jam 'n hard bolled esgs 'n pumpkin pie," T. Paer repeated, "Bread 'n butter 'n jam 'n hard bolled esgs 'n pumpkin pie," T. Paer repeated, "Used to get soggy," the Fat Man added, "if the eggs was put in hot." "Look out for your corns," T. Paer warned, as the car slowed up at Larra-bee street. "They're gettin' off." "Outrage!" the Fat Man growled as the chattering caravan piled off the car. "Blanked outrage!" "What is?" T. Paer demanded. "Everybody ain't got 'em!" The Fat Man grumbled, his nose in his paper.

"It's too'bad," T. Paer mused. "Your dad didn't have the same idea." "Used to be different," the Fat Man said, defensively. "Kids had manners. Spoke when somebody spoke to 'em. Girls didn't giggle 'n chew gum. Boys didn't smoke cigarettes." "Humph!" T. Paer chuckled. "Don't you remember the first time you chawed tobacco back of the barn?" "Sicker'n a horse!" the Fat Man ad-mitted. "Got licked with a hame strap." "Where'd you get it?" T. Paer quizzed. "Swiped it out of Dad's jumper." the Fat Man chortled. "Gosh!" he confided, "smarts yet when I think of it."

smarts yet when I think of it."

"Married?" T. Paer questioned. "Sure!" the Fat Man answered. "This

"They always do that," T. Paer phil-osophized, "the first time." "Times are different," the Fat Man complained. "Ain't simple, like they used to be. Too much gasoline. Too much speed." "Kid's the same," T. Patr argued, "only they ride on street cars now, instead of hoofin' it up the hill." "Used to carry dinner buckets," the

Sammy Jay and Blacky Do Their Part

By Thornton W. Burgess r all, but believe not all you hear; sense and reason tune your ear. --Mrs. Bear.

HARDLY had Old Man Coyote disap-digging for roots when Sammy Jay came filting silently through the tree tops. Mrs. Bear grunted as she dug. Sammy heard those grunts and without making a sound flew straight to a big hemlock tree, from which he could watch while himself hidden. This was the first time he had seen Mrs. Bear and he was very himself hidden. This was die that this he had seen Mrs. Bear and he was very curious, was Sammy. He had heard about her brown coat, but dike every-body else, he had had hard work to believe that it could be brown. Now he had a chance to see for himself, and Sammy has absolute taith in his own eyes. "It is brown. As sure as I live, it is brown," he mattered to himself as he peered down at Mrs. Bear, his sharp eyes sparkling with interest. "She's as big as Buster Bear, and I don't know but she is a little bigger. I wonder if she is as hervous as Buster. It is too she is as nervous as Buster. It is too bad to spoil that meal, but if I am going to do my part to scare her out of the within hearing. Blacky and Sammy screamed until they were hoarse. Finally, Green Forest, now is the time, so here seeing that Mrs. Bear kept calmly on with her digging, they gave it up and flew on to talk it over and wonder why they had failed to frighten Mrs. Bear. goes." goes." Sammy silently flew back a shert dis-tance where he couldn't be seen by Mrs. Bear and then began to scream at the top of his lungs. "Thief, thief, thief !" screamed Sammy. It was the warning cry he uses when he discovers possible danger, particularly hunters. All the people of the Green Forest know it. It has warned many of them and thus They couldn't understand it at all. "Do you suppose some one has told her that we had planned to scare her out of the Green Forest?" asked Sammy, "I don't know," confessed Blacky. She acted as if she knew just what we people of the Green Forest know it. It has warned many of them and thus kept them out of trouble. Mrs. Bear threw up her head and lis-tened. Then she sat up. Just then Blacky the Crow joined Sammy Jay and began to caw at the top of his lungs. were doing All this time Mrs. Bear was chuckling to herself as she dug out roots and ate them. "Those scamps thought they could scare me," she muttered. "They are scare me," she muttered. "They are smart rascals, but the smartest over-look things sometimes. They forgot that I have a good nose and that the wind was blowing from them toward me. There wasn't anybody there at all. Had there been' I would have smelled them. I wonder what they tried that trick for?" Mrs. Bear could see him sitting on the top of a tall tree. He seemed to be top of a tail tree. He seemed to be looking down at something or some one below and to be greatly excited. "Thief, thief, thief!" Screamed Sammy. "Caw, caw, caw, caw," shrieked Blacky. Both flew a little way toward Mrs. Both flew a little way toward Mrs. Bear, all the time keeping up the dan-ger warning and seeming to grow more and more excited. They seemed to be following someone below them. Still, Mrs. Bear sat there. She didn't run as they had expected she would. Finally Blacky flew straight over her. "Run Mrs. Bear! Run!" he shrieked. "A hunter!' A hunter!" Mrs. Bear looked up at Blacky, and in her shrewd little eyes was a gleam of (Copyright, 1921, by T. W. Burgess) her shrewd little eyes was a gleam of something very like amusement. Then she dropped down and instead of run-ning, began to dig for roots again, pay-Bowser the Hound.

"Run, Mrs. Bear, run!" he shricked "A hunter! A hunter!"

MAGGIE -

NHO 15

THAT

GUY?

HERE IS A

PICTURE OF

HIM BY HIM SELF!

Krazy Has No Imagination

Here's Judgment

OU ONLY

TWO DOLLARS

GAVE ME

JERRY ON THE JOB

GUESS IT.

BRINGING UP FATHER

WELL .FOR

COODNESS SAKE

INO

WHO LET THAT

DOESN'T TRY

aut-

to dope this

FOR

QUESTION

GET IT.

THE ANSWER IS-HE GOT QUE FOR GOING -

(Copyright, 1921, by International Feature Bervice, Inc.)

THEM . THERE'S

NO QUESTION

COMEDIAN"

YOU HAVE

AN UNKNOWN

Good Advid

SILVER VOICED

JENHIE SINGS-

"DON'T BUY ANY

FIL EVOUCE

wrestling with this question. Four Cases of Beer Monthly Too Much? Queries Dry Agent prescriptions, be allowed to walk into drugstores, get beer and drink it on the premises? That's another phase of the new beer problem thrust upon dry enforcers. Washington, March 21.-(I. N. S.)-Is four cases of beer a month too much or too little for the sick? Kramer finds the queries up for deci-

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer is "scrapped" the bureau's rules.

"Perhaps You Don't Know" says the Good Judge

How long a little of the Real Tobacco Chew will last. Nor how much gen uine chewing satisfac-tion the full, rich real tobacco taste will give. Ask any man who uses the Real Tobacco Chew. He will tell you that this class of tobacco will give more satisfac-tion—and at less cost— than the ordinary kind. Put up in two styles

W-B CUT is a long fine-cut tobacco RIGHT CUT is a short-out tobacco

