

EAST AND WEST IN WAITING GAME, DECLARES LOVETT

Union Pacific Executive Head Pays Visit to Portland; Discusses Conditions in General Way.

"The East is waiting on the West, and the West is waiting on the East," stated Judge R. S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific railroad, when asked as to the general conditions of the country, on his arrival in Portland.

Judge Lovett was met in part by a party of railroad officials arrived in Portland Saturday forenoon from California points on a tour of inspection of the Northwestern lines of the company. In the party that accompanied him on the tour are Carl G. Gray, president of the company, and E. E. Galvin, vice president.

Beyond saying that different sections of the country seemed to be waiting for the other section to start something, Judge Lovett did not have much to say in particular as to any concerning the general conditions of the country.

"In New York," he said, "everything seemed to be gradually coming around to normal, and the general business conditions were apparently picking up. The eastern part of the country seemed to be waiting on the West to see what they were going to do, before taking the next move," he stated.

"Although there is a great deal of unemployment in the East, there does not seem to be any appreciable amount of suffering. The factories are all either on greatly reduced production or are shut down completely. Money is scarce and the rate of interest is high. Buying is tight in all commodities, but has recently been picking up appreciably.

"The railroads all over the country are in a bad way," according to the statements of both Mr. Lovett and Mr. Gray. "Expenses are heavy and maintenance costs greater than ever before, and travel and freight shipments have shown a great decrease. These conditions are working a great hardship on the railroads.

The party expects to continue their inspection tour on Monday.

The money received by the committee will be used by the committee to designate the charities they wish the money to go to. Announcement of this effect was made yesterday by Mayor Baker to straighten out a prevailing impression that money contributed must be equally distributed to all charities represented in the check.

The rules of the Chest, as adopted several months ago, say on this subject: "Contributors may direct that any specified amount or the whole of their gift shall be applied to any one or more of these societies. All undesignated gifts will be apportioned so that each organization will receive its proportionate share of the full amount subscribed."

The formal opening of the Chest will take place Monday at noon at the big Chest, corner Fifth and Morrison streets. The ceremonies will be in charge of the Royal Florians with Francis McCrill in command. A feature of the ceremony will be the arrival of "Tiny" in a miniature chest under the escort of the "Have a Heart" children.

The first Chest celebration was the children's community sing Saturday afternoon, led by Walter Jenkins when the 1000 children who had been guests at the morning matinee at the Hippodrome were joined by an additional 1000 for a parade through the business section, ending at the Chest, where they joined hundreds in the new Community Chest songs.

In his capacity as mayor, George L. Baker, who is also chairman of the Community Chest campaign, has issued a public appeal to the citizens of Portland, to support the united cause to their utmost. The mayor emphasizes, especially, the importance of giving promptly in advance the amount that each individual should give, and to make it as liberal as possible, and also, that the subscribers should be ready to sign the subscription blanks when the solicitors call and not compel them to call a second time. The proclamation is as follows:

"An army of unpaid workers whose only reward will be that of knowing that they have contributed their effort to the cause of suffering and humanity, will start out Monday morning to raise the $500,000 which is necessary to take care of Portland's needy needs during this year. These workers are contributing their services—giving up their own affairs for this work—purely in the cause of humanity.

It is decidedly unfair to ask a solicitor to see you later or to cause a solicitor any inconvenience in obtaining your contribution. This is a community affair and the solicitors in soliciting the canvases are doing more than their duty. Be prepared to do yours promptly and liberally.

Emphatic indorsement of the Community Chest plan for providing funds for relief and welfare work has come to the local committee in the form of a telegram from Mayor Baker yesterday. Mayor Baker's telegram reads:

"The healing of the sick; the relief of destitution and the substantial sympathy for misfortune which constitutes the Community Chest plan it was felt was much in accord with the spirit of Easter. At B'nai B'rith temple on Sunday evening a large number of representatives of the Federation of Jewish Charities will be held with Charles F. Berg presiding and Ben Selling and Max S. Hirsch as the speakers. Special music will be provided. This meeting will be devoted entirely to the Community Chest.

Today will be open-house day for the eight medical and health institutions that are going to be beneficiaries under the Community Chest fund, according to arrangements made by the campaign committee. All day Portland citizens are free to visit these institutions and inform themselves as to their activities.

'Y' DEPARTMENT GIVES SUCCOR TO MANY DISTRESS

Missing Persons Are Found, Boys Reclaimed From Bad Company and Many Problems Solved.

"The port of missing men and a haven for those in distress," is the way Leslie Cranbourne, head of the membership and service department of the Portland Y. M. C. A., speaks of the association's service department. Requests for assistance in finding relatives and friends that have been lost and advice as to the course of action in all sorts of predicaments are sought in this department, he states.

"This department has found relatives, given advice to those in trouble and in general rendered service in the largest sense of the word," he said. "Letters come from all parts of the world and our searches have extended from the Dominican Republic to the Orient. A letter requesting aid receives immediate attention, and the machinery of the Y. M. C. A. is put in motion in the part of the world where it is needed."

Another GETS AID Cranbourne tells of the efforts made at the request of a harrowed little mother whose son had been railroaded to jail in Santo Domingo. The Y investigated and turned the case over to the state department.

The lad had been put in prison in Santo Domingo for a breach of confidence, according to the story told Cranbourne by the mother, and she believed unjustly. Communication was established with the Y secretary nearest the Dominican Republic and he was asked to make a complete investigation of the case.

While it is not often that the Y is "stumped," Cranbourne stated, there is one case of a missing man they have been unable to trace. Several months ago he received a letter from Mrs. Naomi Eastlake in Tokio, Japan, requesting help in finding her son, Francis Royal Eastlake, who had been in the American navy and whom she had not heard from since October, 1918. He had enlisted with the First squadron, troop A, of the Oregon cavalry, as a bugler, and had been sent overseas. Investigation showed that he had been discharged as a sergeant and had given the address of 871 East Ankeny street, Portland, Or, at the time. Efforts to locate him have been in vain.

Sometimes ago a young man came to Cranbourne and said that he was in trouble and he would be would lose his wife as the result. He had a home in Seattle, and while his wife was visiting relatives in the East he had become mixed with a gang of bootleggers and lost considerable money, so much, in fact, that he had mortgaged his home. He was in despair, for his wife was turning and he had left Seattle, not knowing what to do or where to go. He was advised to make a clean breast of it all to his wife and pick up the reins where they had dropped. This he did and Cranbourne received a letter from both of them, thanking him for his advice and praising the service department.

Another case of a missing son was solved, when after a plea from a father in Ohio, the son was found in a cheap dive in Portland. He had drifted into that 4611 street but in 1921 they will farm only 3743 acres.

some money and now holds a responsible position in Cleveland.

All of the problems solved are not of missing folks, but any young man in trouble may apply for assistance either medical or legal and receive it gratis if he cannot afford to pay, according to Cranbourne.

"The department," Cranbourne said, "is geared to give help. To be efficient we must have a large amount of general knowledge or know where to go to get it if we ourselves cannot see the way through a problem. All this is service at no cost to the one needing it. Our work is to promote the welfare of human beings and the welfare of the community by giving money we have tided several hundred needy people over until they could take jobs to support themselves."

THOROUGH SURVEY OF TUBERCULOSIS CASES UNDER WAY

Oregon Association and City Bureau of Health Are Cooperating in Fight Against White Plague.

The most thorough and intensive survey of its kind that has probably ever been attempted in the West, is the special investigation of tuberculosis conditions in Portland and Multnomah county which has just been begun by the Oregon Tuberculosis Association in cooperation with the city bureau of health.

The survey is being conducted by Miss Grace Holmes, a registered nurse. The investigation will seek to determine the prevailing death rate in the city and county from tuberculosis; the number of cases with various stages and types of the disease and to reveal the home conditions of the patient with special inquiry as to his need for hospital treatment and education.
