

DAIRY PRODUCTS 1925 FAIR FEATURE

Dairy products will be on of the features of the 1925 Pacific International Livestock Exposition, according to J. E. Dorman of Salt Lake City.

Dorman is with the department of agriculture and is making a tour of the agricultural colleges of the Northwest in order to cooperate with the extension branches in giving more work.

"Dairy products have always been a feature of the show," he said, "and this year we are making special effort to make it the biggest and best show ever held in the United States. There is no reason why it cannot be, for the dairy industry in the Northwest has made rapid progress both in products and livestock. The best stock in the nation is raised here and a larger majority of record cows are owned by dairymen of this section than anywhere else."

"The plans are now for a big display of products and dairy machinery. One of the features will be the practical demonstrations of the food value of milk and its products. Scientists have shown that milk is essential to the children of the nation for mental and physical development. This we will show in many ways. Seven colleges have promised to send teams for competitive judging. They are the agricultural colleges of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, California, Colorado and Utah."

Dorman left for Corvallis this afternoon where he will meet with the heads of the departments of the extension division. Completing this conference he will visit the colleges of Idaho and Montana before returning to his headquarters at Salt Lake City.

It was announced by O. M. Plummer, general manager of the exposition, that this year's show will be held November 5 to 12.

GOVERNOR SINKS; TEN ARE LOST

If this happened, it is pointed out that signals might easily have been mixed in the fog, with the resulting crash.

No officers or other vessel would discuss the disaster.

PURSER DOESN'T KNOW
Meyer Holzer, purser of the Governor, said he was as shocked and surprised as any person not connected with the ship. "I am employed in the clerical end of the business," he added, "and I am now eagerly seeking the same information that everyone else is trying to get as the cause of the tragedy."

Mrs. F. A. Hawthorne of Tulare, Cal., saved her two small sons—Felix, 7, and Frank, 4—from the disaster. They are being cared for at the Frye hotel. Although Mrs. Hawthorne was still very nervous, the two lads apparently little realized the fate they had escaped and eagerly munched their breakfast in the hotel dining-room.

LIKE A NIGHTMARE
"It was all so nightmarish, but there was little confusion," Mrs. Hawthorne said.

"We had not gone to sleep yet when the crash came. I couldn't realize what it was for a moment. Then came some shouts. We got up and I threw the warmest things I could around the boys and myself and went out."

"Everyone was coming out of the staterooms. There was little panic and virtually no shrieking. The boys were still sleepy and drowsy and hardly realized throughout it all just what was happening."

One of the few passengers on deck at the time of the collision was Miss Jessie Fox, a Seattle girl, who described the ramming of the Governor in vivid terms.

SEES POINT WILSON
"It was a little after midnight," she said. "I was out on deck for a last breath of air before turning in for the night. The light of Point Wilson off our starboard bow was plainly discernible."

"The crash came unexpectedly. I had not noticed the approach of the West Hartland. The jar of the vessel almost shook me from my feet."

"Instantly, it seemed, the news flashed over the vessel. Most of the passengers were below decks, but a few minutes they were pouring up out of hatchways and deck doors. Although the utmost confusion prevailed for a few minutes, the officers of the ship soon restored order."

NIGHT GARB STRIKES FAE

"The thing that caught my eye was the strange and fantastic garb that everyone wore. Most of the passengers had seized whatever cloys were handy and rushed out on deck clothed in their nightdresses."

"The searchlights of the rescue boats played over the wreck, lighting up the wild display of the suddenly awakened persons."

"Officers acted swiftly and quickly. This undoubtedly prevented a panic."

Family reunions when the West Hartland pulled in here were hysterical in their intensity.

One aged woman, her bare feet protected from the cold plankings of the deck only by torn strips of bed linen, was pulled out of the taxicab in which she had been lifted, roundly kissed by at least a dozen of her family, and then hurried back into the cab.

With the rest of the relatives clinging to the car, the taxicab rushed down the long dock and disappeared.

INQUIRY IS BEGUN

An investigation to determine the cause of the collision was begun Friday morning by United States District Attorney Saunders and the bureau of investigation, under Chief J. P. McAuley. Saunders explained that this action was taken because the West Hartland is a shipping board vessel. McCormick Snow, district counsel for the shipping board, is expected here from Portland Friday night to conduct the federal probe.

There was one serious injury. Miss Susan Kane, 66, of Los Angeles, was hurt in the crash of the two vessels. On her arrival here she was rushed to the Seattle general hospital. She muttered that she wished to find a family named Wilkinson. Several other persons aboard the Governor received minor injuries.

KNOWLEDGE OF GOVERNOR

Loaded with the Governor's passengers, the West Hartland hobbled from the scene of the accident, leaving only oily waters and a few chunks of wood to tell where the Governor had gone down.

Bearing visible signs of the collision, her prow bent, the vessel moved slowly up to Pier D shortly before 10 a. m. Passengers, some of them clad only in blankets, swarmed the docks, giving every indication that they had passed through an ordeal.

At Victoria, B. C., the West Hartland discharged 59 survivors. She is supposed to have brought 231 of the Governor's passengers and crew to this city.

CAPTAIN BARTLETT WAS IN TEMPORARY COMMAND

Seattle, Wash., April 1.—(U. P.)—Captain E. P. Bartlett of the steamship Governor, when she was rammed and sunk by the steamship West Hartland in the Straits of Juan de Fuca early today, was temporarily in command, making the voyage in place of Captain H. C. Thomas, the Governor's regular master, who is ill.

Expected to go East soon to take command of the new 535-foot passenger liner Keystone State, which has been allocated by the United States shipping board to the Pacific Steamship company.

A. F. Haines, vice president of the Pacific Steamship company, is in San Francisco, where he has gone to meet the new steamship Wenatchee, en route to Seattle. Seattle officers of the company had difficulty making Haines believe that the Governor had been sunk, as he thought it was an April fool joke of some kind.

GOVERNOR BUILT AT CAMDEN;

SISTER SHIP TO PRESIDENT

San Francisco, April 1.—(U. P.)—The passenger steamship Governor was of twin screw type and 417 feet long and had a molded breadth of 48 feet. She had six decks and in addition to having most modern passenger facilities was equipped for carrying a large amount of freight. She was a sister ship to the President, the two vessels being the best known in the coast traffic. The hull was constructed entirely of steel and in addition to a double bottom, had nine water tight bulkheads. This is believed to have kept the vessel afloat after it was rammed.

She was built in Camden, N. J., in 1907, and had been in the coastwise passenger service ever since. She was in grave danger of sinking in May, 1918, when the breakwater at Victoria, B. C., was swept by a gale.

She carried a crew normally of 126 men.

During the war the governor carried troops for more than six months between San Francisco and Honolulu. She was 331 feet long, 37 beam and had a draught of approximately 25 feet.

The West Hartland was built in Portland, Or., in 1919, for the United States shipping board. She is of steel, 410 feet long, 34 feet breadth and has a depth of 27 feet. She has been operated by the Pacific Steamship company continuously since she was commissioned.

Most of the officials of the Admiral line were aboard the steamship Wenatchee, a new addition to the company's fleet, which was due to arrive here today from San Pedro at 10 a. m.

WASHBURN'S ALMOST IN SIGHT

OF HOME WHEN BOAT SINKS

Port Angeles, Wash., April 1.—(U. P.)—Names of Mrs. W. N. Washburn, Sadie Washburn and Elene Washburn, listed as missing aboard the Governor, are believed to be those of the family of W. W. Washburn of Neah Bay, west of here.

The Washburn family was returning from California. Mrs. Washburn and the girls are supposed to have passed their home at Neah Bay inbound on the Governor, as the steamer makes no stops here.

The steamer West Jappa sailed this morning after spending several hours searching for missing lifeboats.

The Governor is said to have been struck on the starboard side, amidships, and a big gash torn. The boilers exploded as she went down. Government boats from Port Worden assisted in the transfer of passengers. Launches are patrolling close inshore, looking for bodies.

The wreck lies in 40 fathoms of water.

It was the decision of the board that the "Human Rose Bud" parade on the East Side must be one of the events of the program. It was pointed out that the parade of the school children gave stimulus to the raising of flowers and the active interest of the mothers of the city. The final action on this parade has not been taken by the school board as the Parent-Teacher association has not given an opinion.

Fred German was appointed as chairman of the committee of street decorations and empowered to appoint his or her helpers. He was given authority to confer with the electrical supply dealers in making any arrangements necessary for the decorations.
