$600,000 GIVEN IN CHEST DRIVE

Intensive Campaign Ends; Failure Due to Many Causes; Directors to Keep Up Work.

With a total subscription of $600,000 of the $850,000 needed to fill the Community Chest, the intensive campaign which has been waged during the last three weeks on behalf of Portland's philanthropic institutions and agencies, came to a close Saturday night.

Many theories are advanced as to the cause of the failure of Portland to fill the Chest. Lack of proper preliminary organization, racial and religious prejudices, and the failure of the part of the workers to sense the size of the project—these are some of the things to which the failure is attributed.

"I wish to express my deepest appreciation to all who have in any way contributed to the partial success of the campaign," said Mayor Baker. "We can all look back and see our mistakes and we hope to learn from them in the future, and I also want to say that we are not discouraged. We are sorry we didn't reach the quota, but we did the best we knew how and I want to further add that the Chest committee will continue its efforts until the necessary amount is subscribed. Portland has never yet failed on a job and we are not going to fail on this one."

Figures here showed gold imports to the United States during March exceeded her exports by $10,000,000.
