By Tad Beaver Team And Bees to Open Season

PORTLAND baseball fans will have their first opportunity to judge the strength of Portland's baseball team Tuesday afternoon on the Vaughn street grounds when the Beavers face the Salt Lake Bees in the opening contest of seven game series.

The Mackmen are coming home with the poorest record of any club since the McCredies took over the holdings in 1904. On only one other occasion did a Port-land team fare worse and that was in 1903 when they won but two games out of three weeks' play. PITCHING WEAK

This year's aggregation has displayed more offensive and defensive strength than did the 1920 aggregation, but the pitching has been the poorest in several seasons. The team showed to much better advantage at Sacramento than it did in San Francisco, despite the fact that it lost six out of the seven games. Errors in the critical moments caused two of the defeats suffered in the las three games, while inability to connec with men on bases resulted in the los of Sunday's game.
