Peoples' "The Greatest Love," starring Vera Gordon, noted delineator of mother roles on the screen, is the film feature at the Peoples' theatre this week. While the dominating theme is mother love, the arrest and conviction of the son of circumstantial evidence lends a gripping suspense which is maintained to the end of the plot.

With the story opening in the steerage f a trans-Atlantic liner, later showing pression that the "Butterfly" had to be the family settled in the Ghetto during the first years of life in America and the subsequent removal to a fashionable New York city neighborhood, there is a diversity of scenes and characters greatly adding to the interest of the picture.

Alfred Cortot Is Heard by Huge Audience

Wallin LFRED CORTOT, the French planist, I plays as he thinks, and he thinks the purpose of music is not to please the ear only but to express ideals, emotions tellectual performer, who has mastered a wonderful technic, and in addition thereto has the graceful touch that imparts to his playing a rare elegance and charm.

Cortot's playing is such that the thoughts of technic and tone fade away as one becomes fascinated by the picture he paints or the story he tells through the medium of the plano. There is nothing obscure in the music of Debussywhose influence is now replacing that of Wagner of an earlier period-when in terpreted by Cortot.

It was a capacity audience that greeted the French pianist at The Audi-torium Monday night, in response to invitations from Sherman, Clay & Co., for the purpose of demonstrating the wonderful qualities of the Duo-Art repro ducing plano. To prove that little, if indeed any, of the characteristics of the artist's play-ing are lost in the reproduction process Cortot alternated with the Duo-Art played duets with the instrument, and "picked up" solos where it left off and with marvelous success.

The audience applauded wildly both Cortot and the Duo-Art and Cortot responded with extra numbers. His Chopin numbers made such a wonderful imrepeated, and still the applause conlinued till the Duo-Art broke in with the pening strain of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 11 for two pianos. Whether one's interest lie amid the whirl of social engagements or busines punctualities, the smart woman of to-day is especially pleased with the simple frock which slips conveniently over the head, obviating the tediousness of fastenings. The chemise dress is an excellent example of this type of frock for it is easily and quickly donned andd is always simple in line and decoration. The chemise frock illustrated at the left is of softly shadowing silk crepe jersey in one tone, relieved by a broad banding of embroidery or braiding and by a suggestion of fancy stitch along the panel lines of the blouse. The interesting, buttoned vestee may be of a washable Georgette crepe or of or gandle, and the sleeves may be very short or very long, as one prefers. But to prove that the slip-on frock may not always sponsor straightness of line, the gown at the right adds full gathered tunics from the hipline at each side and includes kimono-cut sleeves and becomingly curved blouse panels. A charming way of using contrasting fabrics is also suggested in this model.
