FROM HUNGARIAN

T. M. Fricker has returned from a visit to his old home in Hungary. now a part of Jugo-Slavia, and with him came his bride, whom he married at the home of the girl's parents near Karlsdorf, just before starting on the long journey to Oregon.

Fricker left Portland last August and arrived at Trieste September 3, whence he traveled into Jugo-Slavia in express trains without window panes and without lights. The food situation at that time was bad but is now much improved, although many are still suffering in the cities. The farmers as a rule are well supplied and when Fricker left, work was well under way in the fields throughout Central Europe.

Money is exceedingly cheap and in Belgrade, Serbia workmen rebuilding the destroyed fortifications are paid 40 dinars a day. Commodities are correspondingly high. Coffee sells at about 11 dinars a pound and meat prices are very

The political situation is unsettled, says Mr. Fricker. The Serbians hope to establish a Greater Serbia while Jugo-Slavia wants Serbia to become a republic with Jugo-Slavia.

In Vienna Fricker found the general situation bad, with many unemployed. The agricultural districts of Germany showed no evidence of the war, and passing through Liege, Namur and Brussels to Antwerp he saw only a few houses still bearing marks of war de-Fricker says he heard very little o

Bolshevism during his travels. "They talk a little Socialism in Central Europe, but I did not find any Bolshevistic ten-dencies, he said. "I am glad to be in Portland again, and I hope to remain here for the rest of my days."

ORIGIN OF FORD JOKES

To the modern eye accustomed to motor cars that please the eye and purr like a Persian kitten, a sight such as appeared on Broadway today looked like somewhat of an hallucination. But it was a real car-a 1903 Ford, model A, sold 18 years ago to a daredevil in Los Angeles by William L. Hughson. It was the first Ford car sold on the coast, and it surely started something. The car is cranked at the side, has the engine under the seat, no windshield, blows a grunting horn and buttons up the back. A chain drive differential, which was nifty in those days, does the driving. And it runs, lads, it runs, but it sounds like a coffee mill. The car is on display at William L. Hughson company, Broadway at Davis street.
