Plans for the 1921 Rose Festival, now seven weeks away, have been worked out by the officers of the board and the various committees and the coming week will mark the beginning of the field work.

It was announced at the weekly meeting of the board of directors that the campaign for funds would begin this week. It has been estimated that $25,000 will be needed and this amount has been prorated among the merchants and business firms of the city. TO BE BEAUTY SPOT

Announcement of the plans for the festival center, by C. P. Keyser, head of the park bureau and chairman of the festival center and rose show commit-tee, was one of the features of the week.

Three blocks of the South Park strip will be transformed into a garden of beauty, in which simplicity will be the key-note. Huge banks of flowers will be planted in the blocks and a system of lights will make the blocks seem as transplanted from Arabian Nights in the evening.

Beginning at the north block, Salmon street, the blocks will be apportioned their special decorations. The first block will be of shrubs including boxwood, escalonias, barberry, rhododen-drons and azaleas. Spanish iris will be bloom by that time and add to the beauty of the square, ROSES TO RULE

In the second block primroses will be charge of the plantings in the entire cen-ter. The pretty little plants will be in beds surrounded by grass panels and the pink lavender and other pastel shades of the blossoms promise one of the features of the center.

Roses, being the flower of the festival, will have a block to themselves. Dorothy Perkins, Orleans, Baby Ramblers and Tausendschoen will bloom among the background of petunias, heliotrope, ageragum and alyssum in the Madison-Jefferson street block.

Courts will be built in the street in tersections and at the end of the streets will be a fountain playing in a bed of gaily colored flowers. FOUR FOUNTAINS DESIGNED

The fountains, designed by Miss Flornce Holmes, will be four in number-two beauty of the founts at night.

The fountains will be surrounded by heds of flowers of the brightest colors. The planting in the courts will be made from selections of petunias, phlox, sal-piglossis, verbena, geraniums, stocks and zinnias. The whole court will be given a secluded effect by a hedge of green around its border, save where the promenade through the center of the park
