NATIONAL GUARD
Lieut. Sharp of Engineers Will Go to Alaska
LIEUTENANT S. M. WILLIAMS, commanding the battalion headquarters company, Fifth regiment, National Guard of Oregon.
By Alfred D. Crider
LIEUTENANT M. L. SHARP, Company L A, Engineers, is going to Alaska to work with the Alaskan engineering commission along the line of the Alaska government railroad. The school of officers and men who have been receiving instruction in military and engineering problems from the O. A. C. faculty are expecting certificates of proficiency will be issued to them by the O. A. C. shortly. Lieutenant M. L. Sharp is expected to take command of the company about June 5. He is now at a school of instruction for engineer officers and located near Washington, D. C. Command of the company is now with Lieutenant George Crane.
The engineers will go to Camp Lewis for the annual training camp at the same time as the infantry, June 15 to 29. Several promotions in the non-commissioned line have been made. Sergeant C. P. Young has been promoted to staff sergeant; T. R. Metcalf, first-class private, to mess sergeant; H. F. Godfrey, first-class private to corporal. Sergeant Metcalf and P. C. Cone have recently returned from Fort Riley, Kansas, with high honors as cooks. They took a four month course and come back with certificates of the highest grade of army cooks. Recruits are wanted and all new men will rank the same as the older enlisted men to travel, pay and findings. A good time, with instruction in many things given free at the annual encampment at Camp Lewis.
Lieutenant S. M. Williams, commanding the battalion headquarters company, is hustling night and day to bring his command up to the 100 per cent limit of 41 men. A few more specialists and young fellows willing to specialize will be accepted. Battalion headquarters companies are being formed in Woodburn and Eugene and Lieutenant Williams is desirably afraid they will beat him to it. Lieutenant Williams has seen service in the navy and the national guard of three states. He feels the weight of the responsibilities thrust upon him, but is determined to make good even if it costs all his pay and runs him in debt besides. Some young fellows who want to ride motorcycles, learn radio, manage automobiles and don't want to pack a rifle, should talk to Lieutenant Williams. He knows every man who would be paid well for doing what he wants to do and can do best.
Colonel C. E. Dentler has come back to the Army again after two weeks of special service at Vancouver examining candidates for first lieutenant in the army. He says the appointments are going begging, there being 3000 vacancies and 900 applicants. At the same time, however, the examining board is something fierce. It is expected that many who failed to pass the required 90 per cent will be appointed just the same.
Battery A is drilling every Friday night. It is going to the support of the infantry at Camp Lewis June 15 to 29, and will stay on the firing line as long as the infantry stay, with the guns. Recruits are wanted badly because it takes strong men to handle the field pieces. Captain Gay has received part of the federal equipment and expects more ever day. The first things unloaded were two water wagons. The boys considered this a great joke.
At Fort Riley, Kansas, Uncle Sam maintains a school for military cooks. Lester Crum of Salem has returned after receiving this course. It not only qualifies a man for military cooking but makes him a better all around man or specialist. During the four months Crum was paid traveling expenses and regular pay.
Ex-Lieutenant Robert Nordstrom, one of the veterans of Company C, Third Oregon, has enlisted as a private in the headquarters company.
Hugh McDonald, second lieutenant of Company E, has returned to go to Arizona. The best wishes of the company go with him.

George Dannels Made Lieutenant Of Company E
GEORGE M. DANNELS has been appointed second lieutenant of Company E, Fifth Oregon. He is a well known Portland lad who went overseas with the Oregon regiment, the 1623 U. S. infantry, and was transferred to other forces and saw active fighting. Company E is hustling for athletes and a committee of hustlers under Ben Bigelow has been raiding the high schools of Portland the past week with over 20 recruits brought in.
There will be an officers' meeting at the Armory Thursday evening. It was omitted last week because Colonel George A. White, adjutant general of Oregon, with Colonel C. E. Dentler, U. S. A., inspector-instructor for Oregon, Major J. F. Drake, commanding the national guard in Portland, and other officers were at Camp Lewis inspecting proposed campsites for the annual field training in June for the National Guard of Oregon.
Battery A, field artillery, is expecting to have its quarters in the Armory at the end of the week and will move them into military clubrooms second to none in the state. Its 32 horses will arrive this week and probably will be quartered at Clackamas. They come from the wilds of Montana and Captain James S. Gays has agreed to set the example to the men by riding the worst one.
Sergeant Carl W. Holcomb of Salem has been appointed to West Point after a competitive examination.
The renovation of the Armory will

War Medals Still Await Two Thirds Of Eligible Lists
Unless the ex-service men of Oregon show more interest in getting the Victory medals due them, Portland will lose the Victory medal office and the work will be directed from Seattle, Colonel G. W. S. Stevens states.
About one third of those eligible for the medal have applied, he states, and it is an information bureau for the people of Portland and the state for all that goes on in the service. Mothers and wives come daily, he says, to inquire about the organization their sons or husbands have been ordered to. Ex-service men who have had trouble with their papers, pay or any of the various complications of the law come to the office for advice as to the best way of clearing the difficulty.
Granted by the United States government in token of service in the World War, the medal is of value as a relic and indicative of the gratitude of the republic. Battle clasps and foreign service clasps are given to those who have seen active service overseas and in the battle line. Each clasp indicates the nature of the duty and the location of the engagement.
"Indifference or ignorance on the part of the ex-service men in the state will cause the state to lose the office," the colonel said. "They should realize the value of the office to the relatives and friends of those still in the service and cooperate in keeping it in the state by merely requesting that which is their due."
The address of the office is 311 Pine street.

Flower Thieves at Work on East Side; Gardens Are Ruined
Flower thieves are plying their trade in Portland again.
During the past week central east side residents have complained of their plants having been robbed of tulips, rhododendrons and other flowers that they had raised with great care and watched with much pride.
The flowers are stolen during the dark of night and the stems snipped off in ruthless manner.
In one garden a large rhododendron plant has been shown to have only its magnificent flowers, but also of much of its wood growth by the thieves.
Another garden was robbed of beds of tulips two nights in succession.
