tigation goes on he wants it confined to "proper limits," in place of giving mited opportunity for "muckraking at the expense of the government."

The position of the attorneys for Ford that the senate should hear all witsses who can present evidence bear ing upon the fitness of Newberry to occupy a seat in the senate, in addition testimony presented at the trial Grand Rapids, when Newberry and his co-defendants were convicted. It is desired to proceed with all charges against Newberry, except that the supreme court has eliminated the charge that violation of the federal corrupt practices act in relation to the primary to a crime against the United

The questions remaining are whether Newberry violated the law of his own state covering the same matters, the lidity of which remains unchallenged; ether or not sums two or three times larger than Newberry's managers have itted were spent to procure his ele tion; whether Newberry himself did actually contribute a large part of the money; to what extent the corruption of voters was practiced, and whether New-berry is fitted, by reason of his record, to sit in the United States senate. It was pointed out that Newberry's nsel, before the supreme stated for the record that if the case was reversed on constitutional grounds, the investigation should proceed under the authority of the senate to determine the fitness of its membership. The reversal of the case was upon

ATTORNEYS CONFIDENT

Attorneys for Ford express confidence that if they have the privilege of crossexamining Newberry and certain others hey will be able to show exactly where the big Newberry fund came from and they ask permission to trace this money back to its sources from the men who

It was evident that some of the Newberry sympathizers had trusted to the Republican majority in the committee Republican majority in the committee to squelch the investigation without ceremony. This plan fell down when Newberry's attorneys were quoted as on if the supreme court returned the kind of decision it actually did return. So the sub-committee is going ahead, but with prospect that there will be another battle over evidence before Newberry shimself and the other defendants are called to the stand.

TESTIMONY BARRED

Neither could the other 16 defendants be placed on the stand to tell what they knew, and in the nature of the sease the testimony of these defendants would throw a great deal of light where the money came from, how it was spent and how much there was of it.

Senator Charles E. Townsend, the Michigan colleague of Mr. Newberry, addressing the senate committee on privileges and elections in his behalf, said he "knew the animus back of this desire to have Mr. Newberry testify.
