DESTROY BABE TO OTHER'S COOR ORDER

Case of Frances Allen, 3, Given to Couple in Alaska, Provokes Judge Wilson to Voice Criticism of Carelessness of Home.

In tearing a child from its mother's breast, at least as much care should be taken as in foreclosing a mortgage for a few hundred dollars," declared Circuit Judge Fred W. Wilson this morning in ordering the Waverly Baby Home to bring Frances Allen, aged 3, from Alaska and restore her to the arms of her mother, Mrs. Florence Schuller of Seattle.

The decision came at the end of a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus, applied for by the mother for the return of the child by the Baby Home, to which it was committed by Judge Jacob Kanzer and which subsequently gave it into the keeping of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Datsun of Chickofit, Alaska.

"It appears from the evidence," said the judge, "that when Mrs. Schuller's child came into the custody of the court it was with Mrs. Schuller's mother, who had gone insane.

"When Mrs. Schuller learned of this she came to Portland to see the child and help her mother. She took her mother out of the asylum and to Seattle to live with her. The child was placed with the court of domestic relations.

"When it came time to do something with the child, a letter was sent by the court to Mrs. Schuller, but it did not reach her. Why, even in foreclosing a mortgage, it is required that publication be made and that the effort be made to reach the parties by first-class mail.

"Here is a little human being whose whole life is being changed because no effort is made to find her parents."

Judge Wilson said he had no wish to criticize the baby home, however, inasmuch as it did much good in comparison with the other institutions in the city.

REPUTATION BLACKENED "But the reputation of this little mother has been blackened by the published charges against her," he said.

"The baby home in its answer to the writ of habeas corpus complaint stated there was reason to believe that both her children were illegitimate, whereas, according to all the evidence I have heard, she was legally married to Mr. Allen and the children were his."

"The court will require the official count to determine the issue. Complete returns from Coos county materially increase the vote on the woman juror measure and give it 128 votes. The Coos county vote was 1964, no 1292, a majority of 672.

The total vote on the measure as it now stands is 53,369, no 55,143, affirmative majority 128.

Complete returns have been received from all the counties except Curry, Deschutes, Grant, Harney, Jackson, Joseph and Union, Douglas and Lane. In most of these counties only a few precincts are missing.

L. W. Hill Reported As Fully Recovered From Injury to Eye

San Francisco, June 11.—Louis W. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern railroad, was on his way east today following his release from the local hospital, where he had been confined for over a month because of an injury to his eye.

Hill, a great outdoor man and amateur artist, was sketching at Monterey on a windy day when a branch blew in his face, one of the twigs severely injuring his right eye.

Hill came quietly to San Francisco and went to the Lane hospital. The injury to his eye was found to be severe, and it was thought for a time that it might be necessary to remove the eye.

Women Keep Close Tab on Luxury Tax

Chicago, June 11.—Income tax collectors will learn something about Chicago women next spring when they get returns of hundreds of women who pay individual income taxes. They are keeping account of the year taxes and luxury taxes, it was revealed today. Such taxes are deductible under the income tax law.

Mrs. Jacob Bauer, organizer of a financial class for women, said today that women who dress well, travel widely, go to the theatre often and are fond of soft drinks, may easily spend as much as $1000 a year in luxury taxes.

Taxes are attached to the following: Telephone tolls, Pullman fares, soda fountains, picture shows and powder, theatre and opera tickets, corsets, hats, shoes, silk stockings, and underwear—the list is endless. One pays a tax on almost everything purchased.

The tax may seem small, but when a hundred items have been added they make a sizeable deduction from taxable income. And the women are adding them up and will be ready for the income tax man, according to Mrs. Bauer.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(U. N. S.)—The secretary of the Navy Denby sent a cablegram today to Rear Admiral William S. Sims at London, peremptorily ordering him home as a result of the series of speeches which the head of the naval war college has made in England.

The following cablegram was sent to Admiral Sims: "Remainder of your leave revoked. You will return to the United States at once and report in person to the secretary of the navy."

SILENCE ANNOYS DENBY "The secretary took this action without having received a reply to his cabled demand for an explanation of Admiral Sims' utterance. While the reason for today's peremptory summons home was not revealed, it is believed that annoyance at Admiral Sims' slowness in replying was in the main responsible.

Secretary Denby's demand for an explanation was cabled to Admiral Sims Thursday morning. The speech of the admiral before the English-speaking union, in which he advised Britons to pay no attention to resolutions on the Irish question, which were "forced by jacks votes."

MORGAN INTERESTED "Mr. Morgan manifested the liveliest interest in the plan," said Standfield, after the conference. "and believes it entirely feasible.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(U. N. S.)—Mobilization of big banking interests to aid the livestock industry of the West by means of a $50,000,000 pool, was planned at a meeting at the treasury today. It was participated in by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, J. P. Morgan, Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, Eugene Meyer of the War Finance corporation, members of Federal reserve board and Senators Stanford, Gooding and Kendrick.

The three senators spoke for the livestock interests. "Mr. Morgan manifested the liveliest interest in the plan," said Standfield, after the conference. "and believes it entirely feasible.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(U. N. S.)—Representatives Sinoott of Oregon and Elliott of Indiana, together led a victorious fight in the house Friday for amendment to the Sweet soldier compensation bill which allows the widow or mother of a soldier to claim the compensation of husband or son who has died without making formal claim to project his rights and has permitted his war insurance to lapse.

Elliott offered the amendment and Sinoott supported it in a spirited speech. Four times the house voted the amendment in various stages of the proceeding before it was finally adopted. Once the vote was a tie and only on the last vote was a substantial majority recorded for the committee in charge of the bill opposing it to the end. Sinoott cited the case of Harold J. Taylor, veteran of Lakeview, Or., who suffered temporary total disability and died at San Francisco, who from some oversight did not apply for compensation and permitted his insurance to lapse.

Sinoott told the house the governor should not take advantage of technical default by a soldier, but express in law his appreciation to his dependents. Insurance should be reinstated and compensation allowed to men wasted by war, he contended, despite their oversight in such circumstances. He quoted from Joaquin Miller's "Mothers of Men," which some of the members later told him won the fight.

SHIP BOARD COOK MISSING MYSTERIOUSLY

FOUL PLAY AGAINST BARNEY MARTIN, COOK ON THE SHIPPING BOARD VESSEL SWITSCOUT, IS SUSPECTED BY LOCAL SHIPPING BOARD OFFICIALS FOLLOWING THE REPORT THIS MORNING TO UNITED STATES ATTORNEY HUMPHREYS FROM HAROLD C. JONES OF THE SEA SERVICE BUREAU OF THE SHIPPING BOARD THAT MARTIN HAD MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED FOLLOWING A TERRIBLE BEATING HE IS SAID TO HAVE RECEIVED FRIDAY NIGHT AT THE HANDS OF STRIKING SEAMEN.

Barney Martin Disappears After Alleged Beating by Striking Seamen, U. S. Attorney Told; Full Investigation Is Ordered.

Department of Justice agents were instructed this morning by Humphreys to make a thorough investigation of the report that Martin had probably been thrown into the river after the assault. Should the government agents find the report correct the assault will be a direct violation of the permanent injunction order issued Friday afternoon by Federal Judge C. E. Wolverton against the striking seamen, forbidding them to use violence in connection with the strike.

The greater part of Friday was spent by the court in listening to an argument as to whether or not the temporary injunction should be made permanent or dismissed. While Humphreys was making his argument on behalf of the government, the judge interrupted him and said it was needless for him to go further.

"I have already made up my mind," the judge said, and ordered the clerk to declare the temporary order permanent. W. S. U'Ren, counsel for the six seamen's organizations affected by the strike, protested vigorously to the order, but it was made permanent.

At times the hearing developed the proportions of a criminal proceeding, as many agents of the government, including the chief of police, and other law enforcement officials and others were charged with a conspiracy against the seamen and with "making evidence for the purpose of securing Fred F. Smith, port superintendent, was charged in a seaman's affidavit with having been in the smuggling of whiskey ashore.

Government agents with the cooperation of the Portland police are making effort to apprehend any person who commits an act of violence from the time the permanent order was issued, as persons now guilty of assault on seamen are in contempt of court.

Another slight rise in the Willamette river flood brought the stage of the stream at Portland to 24.2 feet this morning. The flood will continue to rise slowly until Sunday when it will reach a stage of 24.4 feet which the weather bureau officials believe will be the peak of the flood this year.

Weather continues warm in the Snake river watershed but still the Snake continues to fall. A drop of 3 of a foot was reported this morning from Lewis-ton. At Wenatchee the Columbia river climbed 3 of a foot higher. The weather bureau reports the Snake will probably drop enough during the next two weeks to offset any rise that may come in the upper Columbia river.

Flood waters from the Willamette river seeped in the basement of the Jones Cash Store at East First and Morrison streets, Friday night and necessitated the removal of $30,000 worth of merchandise. Trouble began when the river reached the 23-foot stage. The building was completely flooded and the basement was deemed to be water proof. Officers of the company stated that the damage to stock was slight and that the situation was well in hand today.

So engaging did Lieutenant V. De Camps, U. S. N., find Portland's Rose Festival that he missed his boat, destroyer Stansbury 180, when she sailed today for Astoria. De Camps was hurriedly driven to the O. W. I. airplane field, where he chartered a flyer piloted by Archie Roth. The destroyer was overtaken near the Standard Oil plant and the lieutenant was deposited on board.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 11.—(U. P.)—The steamship Ilco from Norfolk, bound to Jacksonville, was on fire off Friday night. The vessel was sighted by Jacksonville, according to a wireless message, received by the Tampa Inter-continental company. The vessel was overtaken near the Standard Oil plant and the lieutenant was deposited on board.

Winners of prizes in Thursday's grand parade will receive their awards Monday noon at the grand forum, luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce, according to arrangements made with the committee. The grand forum will be 70 prizes for presentation and Mielski will have charge of the program.

Kansas to Tackle Big Wheat Job

Salina, Kan., June 11.—(U. P.)—Kansas today mobilized a great offensive on the eve of the opening of the wheat harvest. Thirty-five thousand men from outside of the state will be given work for a month in taking care of the crop of approximately 3,800,000 acres.

Sufficient labor is now in sight to handle the crop with a minimum delay. Hundreds of harvest hands who started west from Texas, Oklahoma, and Oklahoma and Oklahoma, the first of June are working northward and will furnish a large proportion of men needed to fill demands of farmers in this greatest of wheat producing states.

The day of the prairie schooner has come back to transport this army of wheat harvest hands. The fact that roads have not made any special rates for harvest hands, the majority of whom are engaged in covered wagons to the wheat sections.

Most harvest hands begin the season in the Southwest and find employment throughout the summer by working northward to Dakota and Minnesota and even up into Canada.

Mohler, secretary of the state board of agriculture, told me in Topeka yesterday that Kansas expects to harvest a crop of 115,000,000 bushels of wheat. Because of the low price of wheat, farmers are not going to pay the large wages that have been offered.

Twain Falls, Idaho, June 11.—(U. N. S.)—Arraigned in probate court before Judge O. P. Duval today, Mrs. Lyda Eva Southard, alleged bluebearded, accused of the slaying of six persons, entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment charging her with the murder of her fourth husband, Ed Meyers, local rancher. Her preliminary hearing was set for Monday at 10 a. m.

The defense will at the hearing endeavor to force the state to disclose the nature of the evidence upon which the state will proceed. No indication has as yet been given of the defense plans.

Following an interview with W. P. Guthrie, her chief counsel, Mrs. Southard announced today she would demand an early trial.

"I cannot tell you much," she said to an International News Service representative, "as I cannot talk specifically about my case, but I can say that I will stand up for my rights and I feel that it would be horrid for me to have to lay in this jail all summer until the next term of court when court is in session. I can make every minute of my time without delay. I am so confident of the outcome that I want an immediate trial."

"I am weary but will see stronger. I stood the long trip from Honolulu to San Francisco well, indeed, and the train ride to Wells, Nevada, did not overly fatigue me. But the ride in an automobile in the terrific heat 120 miles through the desert was very hard. I dreaded facing the camera and the movie men in Twin Falls, but I really believe that the desert trip was worse on me than that ordeal would have been. The sun was hot and hot on the way to the little mining camp at Contact, Nev., where we stopped for dinner, and the trip from there to Twin Falls was so rough that I am still tired and dizzy."

Cameras are ready for Mrs. Josselyn's name is taken from list of school candidates. School Clerk R. H. Thomas received a telegram from E. S. Josselyn, who is traveling along the Atlantic coast, asking that Thomas withdraw his name as a candidate for school director at the coming school election. The message reads as follows:

"Please withdraw my name as a candidate for school director and notify the press."

To test the authenticity of the message, which was dated at Richmond, Va., Thomas called up Mrs. Josselyn, who informed him that her husband was at Boston when she last heard from him and was starting for a trip toward the South. He then consulted District Attorney Evans, who advised Thomas that if Thomas withdraw his name as a candidate for school director at the coming school election, there will be no objection to his name being on the school ballot. Thomas announced.

AGE'S DEATH WAS MURDER, POLICE SURE

Whoever murdered Harry Agee, 1770 Duroid street, early today did not do so as a side issue to a burglary raid, was the theory of police detectives this afternoon following a morning spent at the scene of one of the most brutal and baffling murders in recent years.

The killer, however, had apparently made a pretense of thieving, though practically all the loot was found outside the house, just below a locked window on the side opposite the family bedroom where Agee was slain.

Mrs. Agee, who was sleeping, was her husband when his throat was slashed, was awakened by his moans. "Clambering over his body, she reached an adjoining room in time, she said, to see the murderer fleeing from the house. At first she said he was short and squat. This afternoon she said he was a burglar, had been wearing a red shirt, was stricken, she could give no further description. She said she then rushed from the house and fled to the home of Mrs. E. Greene, 1727 Hoover street, nearby, and the women returned together to the Agee home. As they neared the house they saw Agee stagger from the front door and collapse on the porch. He died at Good Samaritan hospital later in the night.

After 12 hours of investigation, police inspectors admitted this afternoon they had no definite theory regarding the crime. Several possibilities appeared, none sufficiently tangible to warrant more than passing consideration. One was that the murder was committed by a Mexican who had lately been released from the state penitentiary as town marshal of Worland, Wyo. four years ago, had been responsible for sending him; Mrs. Agee declared, however, that she had never seen anyone who she associated, and certainly not plain drunk would carry his grudge so far as to travel half way across a continent to commit murder.

Another thought suggested to the police was that of the "triangle." Lieutenant Jack Goetz declared, however, that he could find no evidence to support this.

All the neighbors interviewed by the police declared the couple appeared happily married. They have two children. Both husband and wife were active in fraternal circles and frequently attended religious services. Mrs. Agee is being detained at the home of Mrs. Greene, while the Agee home is checked and under guard. Police Captain Harms set out a dragnet immediately after the report of the murder, but no suspicious characters were found.

BOTH ESCAPE ROY GARDNER (top) Frank Pyron, (top) convicts who escaped from a train at Castlerock, Wash., early this morning while being taken to McNeil's island to serve terms. Gardner, who once before escaped in a similar manner, held a deputy marshal up with a gun.

After holding up one of his two guards with a revolver concealed by his person, Roy Gardner, mall train robber, who was being taken from Sacramento, Calif., to McNeil's island to serve two 25-year terms, escaped from a train near Castlerock, Wash., at an early hour this morning and is still at large. He was accompanied by Norris H. Pyron, another prisoner to whom he was handcuffed.

This is the second time Gardner has escaped from the custody of officers since he was arrested for robbing the mails at San Diego, Cal., in 1920, and in escaping this morning he made good his boast that they will never take me to McNeil's.

PRISONER WELL GUARDED Gardner left San Francisco on Wednesday in custody of Deputy United States Marshal Thomas Mulhall of San Francisco and Guard D. W. Rinckel, Al Dunsmuir, Cal., the officers picked up Pyron. Both had been arrested near that point. As a precaution against an escape W. G. Chandler, special agent for the Southern Pacific at Portland, and the Southern Pacific forces, joined the party as a guard, as he did not want Gardner to make good his boast and escape within his territory in Oregon. The four guards accompanied the prisoners to Portland.

The prisoners did not change cars at the Union station at 11 o'clock Friday night. The car was pulled from the California train to the Seattle train. Before the train left Corbett ordered "Pat" Kelly, one of his agents, to accompany Mulhall to McNeil's island and see that Gardner did not escape. Local federal officials are at a loss to account for Gardner's ability to escape with three guards on duty.

ROBBERS ESCAPED "According to a member of the posse and to Fred Taylor, night watchman at Castlerock railway station, Gardner and Pyron escaped without outside aid. Taylor said that Gardner, Pyron and the other party occupied a station car in a sleeper and that when the train slowed up for Castlerock at 1:58 this morning, Gardner stepped to the wash-room.

While he was turned away from the guards, Taylor said, Gardner pulled a gun which he had been carrying tightly about his stomach and which had been hidden in a pocket of his coat. Gardner stepped to the wash-room.
