

39 REED COLLEGE GRADUATES ARE GIVEN DIPLOMAS

President Scholz Confers Honors on Class; E. O. Sisson Delivers Commencement Address.

President F. F. Scholz conferred the degree "bachelor of arts" on 39 seniors, the seventh graduating class at Reed college, at an impressive open air ceremony Saturday. Presentation of degrees followed an inspiring commencement address by President E. O. Sisson of the University of Montana, who becomes head of the philosophy department at Reed next year. Several hundred underclassmen, alumni and friends and relatives of the graduates witnessed the ceremony.

"Our destiny is in our own hands," said President Sisson, addressing the six rows of seniors directly in front of the speaker's platform. "Our need is for a knowledge of the past which will enable us to understand the present, to see the direction in which we are traveling. With foresight it is then our task to lead our hand to progress."

UNSKILLED LABORERS LACKED

"Man below the ears used to be worth a dollar a day," said the speaker. "I recently inspected a hydro-electric plant where energy was being furnished the consumer at the rate of 2 cents a day per manpower. Man's ingenuity has forced him from the field of unaided labor, and machinery has replaced thousands of unskilled laborers. Man has triumphed over the material forces of the universe. The task immediately ahead is understanding himself."

Dr. Sisson cautioned his student auditors to fight the pestilential heresy that youth is the best part of life. The purpose of youth, said the speaker, is to fit the individual for the two ends of life, the joy of living and doing, and the service to one's fellow man up in the creative instance. A ladder of life should be on a constantly ascending scale in spiritual enjoyment and satisfactions.

GETTING DEGREES

In a brief speech of counsel and congratulations by President Scholz, degrees were conferred on 39 seniors who had met the graduation requirements of successfully passed junior and senior oral examinations, a bachelor's thesis and 100 scholastic credits. Five biology majors, Theodore Elliot, Jacob Holzman, Katharine Kerr, Arthur McLean and Emma Jo Stewart, were presented as candidates for the bachelor's degree by Dr. E. Griffin, head of the biology department, and diplomas were presented by President Scholz, each student receiving an executive handshake as he received the diploma. Mr. Scholz flipped the tassel of the collegiate mortarboard cap from left to right, according to collegiate tradition.

SEVEN IN ONE GROUP

Dr. T. W. Baldwin, head of the English department, contributed the largest group of candidates for seven women and two men, Ruth Elliot, Josephine Pella, Marie Hartman, Howard McGowan, Consuelo McMillan, Muriel Nichols, Pauline Thomas, Mary E. White, Tom Brockway and Howard McGowan. William Grendahl was the lone product of the department of Germanic languages, presented by Edmund C. Beckold, head of the department.

Dr. E. L. Griffin announced as mathematics majors, Everett Robinson and Walter Heuser who were privileged to graduate in absentia; Marie Utley and J. Russell Vathasal; Miss Emma Hellman presented Friede Olson, Julia Harrison, Gertrude Hunsate Hodgson, Laura Payton, Elizabeth Peat and Gretchen Smith for the bachelor's degree in physical education; C. E. Griffin, head of the day, presented Dr. G. S. Bassett of the psychology department, the candidates, Florence Boyrie, Dorothy Dick and Helen Wait of the psychology department, and Clyde Foley and Irvin Goodman of the sociology department. Dr. Bassett is representing Reed at the inauguration of President J. E. Ansell of Yale.

NEW ALUMNI HONORED

Dr. Susan A. Bacon, head of the department of romance languages, presented Honietta Bettinger, Edith Matthews and Marjorie Thompson. The ceremony closed with the college song, "Fair Reed," and benediction by Dr. Thomas Lamb Elliot, formerly president of the board of trustees of the college.

The newly arrived alumni found themselves the object of congratulation on every hand, and for an hour the class of 1931, in cap and gown, wandered about the campus, accepting innumerable compliments and congratulation and considerable counsel with remarkably good grace.
