

LOCOMOTIVES IN DUEL TO DEATH; CROWD THRILLED

Head-On Collision Staged at Rose City Speedway Is Viewed by Hundreds; Motorcycles in Race

Thrills anticipated by the crowd which flowed into the Rose City Speedway Saturday afternoon for the head-on collision between two railroad locomotives, were realized when the engines crashed together with a roar almost directly in front of the grandstand.

The collision, in a word, was a healthy, satisfying success. The spectators gave up their money at the gate with the expectation of seeing a spectacular, hair-raising wreck between two flying projectiles of Southern Pacific steel, and they were not disappointed. The engine is telescoped.

The two engines got away almost simultaneously on a well laid track which sloped toward a center about the middle of the field. They were running at a speed of 18 or 20 miles an hour when they hit. The larger of the locomotives telescoped its smaller mate, after the fashion of a snake swallowing its young. Debris was thrown high into the air and steam and smoke billowed when the crash came; the cab on the smaller engine was torn off and completely demolished, and the tenders leaped forward into the incalculably ordinary occupied by the cabs. Neither boiler exploded.

Flames had been scattered with a free hand on the track at the point where the mad engines, running wild, were scheduled to meet. They began to explode as the locomotives were nearing their death grapple, and the noise emitted by them, coupled with deep bass cries echoed across the field by the whistle of the heavier of the two engines, prepared the crowd for the final tangle.

Plans for the wreck, carefully made, were well executed. The track was built on a grade which had been cut down a foot below the surface of the field, giving a solid roadbed for the run.

Horse races, motorcycle races and an automobile race were run before the wreck was staged. The motorcycle races were fast, but attempts on the part of riders racing against time to hang up new records failed.

"Shrimp" Burns and "Davy" Davis, two California riders, carried away the prizes in the motorcycle races. Both went a mile in 48 1-5 seconds when running against a record of 46 1-5 made on the Speedway track by Davis May 23. Otto Walker of Portland made the mile in 48 seconds.

The first of two five-mile races with eight entries was won by Davis in four minutes and two seconds. Burns was a close second. Walker took third place.

Burns led Davis by 100 yards in the second of the five mile races, covering the course in four minutes and four seconds. Walker was third again.

In a 10 mile race Davis won over the field hands down, after Burns had been forced out on the second lap because of engine trouble. Davis ran the last two laps with his machine on fire. He covered the course in 4 minutes and 51 seconds. Walker took second place and Fred Ludlow third. Burns threw a rear tire on the first lap of a false start in the race, but managed to keep his machine upright.

Cutting Corners, Latest Fad Causes Fatal Auto Accident

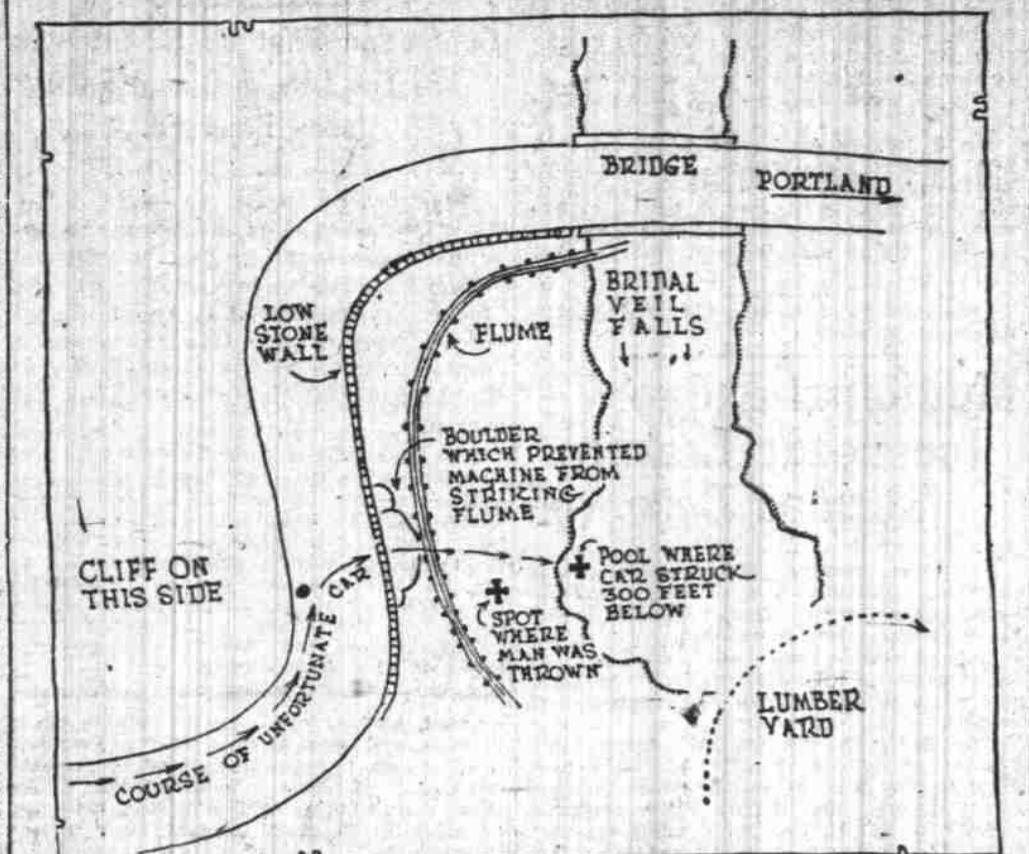

Diagram showing how car went over cliff at Bridal Veil falls on the Columbia river highway. Had driver been on right side of the road accident could not have happened, as even though steering gear broke, car would not have had momentum enough to carry it over the concrete curbing. The car tumbled more than 300 feet to a pool at the foot of the falls. One of the occupants fell out part way down and was fatally hurt; the other fell entire distance and was killed.

By Mike De Cicco
How did it happen?
Why do they do it?
These questions are in the minds of many as the latest automobile accidents and their death toll are being discussed. In virtually all the recent accidents the unfortunate motorists were not speed maniacs nor even exceeding the speed limit mildly, but each was a violator of traffic laws in some other way.

Cutting corners or jockeying to the wrong side of the street seems to be the latest fad among traffic law violators. And the toll of death to the motorist therefrom is increasing.

DEATH IN FALL
When F. D. Dinsdale recently drove his machine into a car operated by H. Deins, causing the latter's machine to upset and spilling all the occupants over the road, it was a typical accident of that kind.

Driving a Ford, Mrs. Margaret Garland, in company with F. J. Wilson was cutting a corner on the left side of the race for single cylinder, four-horse power machines, completing the course in four minutes, 55 1/2 seconds. Ed Andrews took second place and L. A. Garrold third.

A consolation race over a three-mile course was won by H. D. Ludlow. Time, 2 minutes and 32 seconds.

MERITMENT EVOLED
The fat man's Ford race evoked considerable fun, but failed to thrill. It was won by James E. McCorkle. There were three entries. All drove stock cars. A motorcycle cop riding in the rear of the first heat added zest, and might have been responsible for the slow time made since all three drivers appeared to be afraid to feed gas. The run lay over a five-mile course. McCorkle made it in 9 minutes 18 seconds.

Edith Reynolds, riding Lady Ophir, took both heats of a quarter of a mile dash. Time, 23 seconds. Jeannette Hall, on Edgewood Girl, won second place in the second heat. Second place in the first heat went to Della O'Neil on Dorothea. Only two heats were run.

A crowd of 12,000 saw the collision and witnessed the races. Of that number, probably 11,000 were paid admission.

The events moved slowly at first, but were better handled toward the close.

4 DEFENDANTS IN MORRIS BOND CASE MUST STAND TRIAL

Judge Kavanaugh Overrules Demurrers to Indictments of Morris, Etheridge, F. B. Pratt.

Decision overruling the demurrers to the indictments of John L. Etheridge, Fred S. Morris, Stella M. Etheridge and F. B. Pratt, held on charges of embezzling funds of Morris Brothers, Inc., was handed down Saturday afternoon by Presiding Circuit Judge Kavanaugh.

The court's ruling means that these four persons, implicated in the dealings of the defunct bond house, must face trial in the Multnomah county circuit court.

FACE TRIAL
No avenue of escape appears to be left, according to the district attorney's office, except a possible appeal of the demurrers to the state supreme court. The demurrers were all based on technical grounds. Counsel for the defendants claimed the indictments were faulty because the officers held by their clients in Morris Brothers, Inc., were not named.

The defense made it clear it wanted the indictments to state that Morris, Etheridge and Pratt were all of the directors and officials of the company. The reason given was that the defense intended to claim that these three men "were the corporation" and they could not steal their own money.

Judge Kavanaugh did not rule on this point. He said it was a question for the trial court to determine.

OTHERS OVEERULED
"I believe," he said, in announcing his decision, "that the indictments against these defendants follow substantially the language of the Oregon statutes, and that therefore they are sufficient."

The demurrers to the indictments of Hy Eilers and Albert E. Barnickel, former officials of the Eilers Music house, charged with larceny by embezzlement in connection with the debacle of that firm, were overruled on grounds similar to the ones given in the Morris Brothers' case. The language used in the indictments was the question at issue.

Clothes Do Make a Difference!

Somebody once said, if you don't believe clothes make a difference, try walking down the street without any.

But clothes in themselves are no longer enough, for clothes that merely cover the body do not cover the situation.

They must have character, style, distinction. They must hang easy, fit perfectly, and add to the appearance and importance of the man who wears them.

It is for these reasons that I have selected Hickey-Freeman Clothes, and for these reasons that I recommend them.

When can I show them to you?
