

GREEKS BOMBARD TURKISH FORTS; STEAMERS SUNK

London, June 13.—(L. N. S.)—Greece is opening hostilities against the Turkish Nationalists in Asia Minor by land and sea. Already the Greek fleet has been concentrated at full war strength in Turkish waters and has bombarded Turkish positions and sunk several small transports, according to information from Constantinople today.

King Constantine of Greece, who left Athens on Saturday night, has arrived at Smyrna and will immediately place himself at the head of the Greek army for a new offensive against the Turks. A Greek cruiser bombarded Kemalist (Turkish Nationalist) batteries on the Black sea coast, near Trebizond, west of Trebizond. The Turkish guns replied and an artillery duel developed. The town was set on fire.

Two steamships that had been transporting munitions for the Turkish Nationalists were shelled by the Greek destroyer Panther with four-inch guns and sunk. A Greek flotilla entered the harbor of Batum and sunk several small vessels.

An Athens dispatch stated that Constantinople issued the following message to the Greek nation before his departure: "I place my confidence of victory upon the protection of the Divine and on the heroic enthusiasm of the army and on the unconquerable force of the Hellenic ideal."

British men of war have taken up positions on both sides of Constantinople. According to late reports heavy forces of Turkish Nationalist troops were moving northward in Anatolia in the direction of Constantinople.

of common this afternoon that Great Britain will maintain strict neutrality in the war between Greece and the Turkish Nationalists.

The British press has been commenting on the possibility of Great Britain participating actively in near eastern hostilities on the side of the Greeks. A British fleet arrived in Turkish waters last week from Malta.

The British government still hopes to bring about peace between Greece and nationalist Turkey and will strive to accomplish this, Mr. Chamberlain added.

RECORD CLASS OF 340 MEN, WOMEN FINISHES AT O. A. C.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, June 13.—The largest graduating class in the history of the institution received degrees today—340 men and women. Presentation of honors and prizes by President W. J. Kerr was a feature. The commencement address, "Some Anglo Saxon Ideals," was given by Henry Suzzalo, president of the University of Washington.

The men's gymnasium was packed with seniors wearing their caps and gowns, students, faculty, townspeople and hundreds of out of town visitors. Music was furnished by the O. A. C. orchestra and Mrs. William Henry Metzger of Portland, vocalist. Invocation was pronounced by the Rev. J. E. Snyder of Corvallis.

PROBLEMS DISCUSSED "We have stupidly assumed that all people are capable of self-government. The ideal of democracy is a universal panacea," said Dr. B. L. Penrose, president of Whitman college, Walla Walla, Wash., in his baccalaureate sermon Sunday. He said that democracy is a universal panacea. "The assertion of the I. W. W. or the Marxian socialist that power should be in the hands of one class—the proletariat—is one of the problems of today's educated man."

LOG BUMPS FERRY; TWO ARE DROWNED

Lewiston, Idaho, June 13.—William Sorrow, aged 23, and Ernest Silge, aged 58, were drowned at Silge ferry, on the Salmon river, when crossing the stream. A floating log struck the ferry basket throwing both into the stream. The bodies have not yet been recovered. Sorrow at- tempted to swim ashore but was carried down stream. Silge, who operated the ferry for years, sank at once. Witnesses were unable to go to their assistance.

Househeating

Mr. J. L. Karnopp, residing at 181 Rutland Terrace (offices in the Railway Exchange Bldg.) installed a 24-section Gasco Furnace and is delighted with it, but thinks that it is rather expensive at last winter's rates.

Under the new rate, however, he thinks the cost will be reduced to a reasonable basis.

The gas bill for heating Mr. Karnopp's house for September, 1920, to date total $127.12, and the highest month $25.08 net.

Seniors From Four High Schools Are Given Sound Advice

That high school graduates have a duty to perform and standards to live up to was the gist of the three special sermons for the June '21 seniors of four of the Portland high schools Sunday. Dr. Harold L. Bowman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, addressed the classes from Washington and Jefferson high school, Dr. W. T. McElveen of the First Congregational church delivered his sermon to those from Lincoln high while the Rev. Herbert F. Jones of the St. John's Christian church spoke to those from the James John high. Dr. Bowman pointed out that a strong determination was needed for success and told of the advantage of a religious purpose. He stated that a determination was the transforming power that enabled those possessing it to pass the state of mediocrity. While temporal things will fall into decay the Rev. Jones told the James John seniors that the virtues for which the best stood would survive the test of the ages. This was true he said, not only of schools but homes and business as well. Dr. McElveen directed the attention of the graduates of Lincoln high to the fallacy of "depending on going to heaven and not making life in this world more heavenly."

HUGO ST. INNES IS TO START IRON MINES IN AUSTRIA

By Norman Haggood. Washington, June 13.—The most striking news that has leaked across the ocean in some time is that Austria is about to be given a start in life by the ability and the will of Herr Hugo St. Innes.

The great blast factories of Austria have been lying idle while all Europe needed the product of their work. They have been lying idle because they could not get coke to run them with. Because they were idle the factories to make agricultural machinery were compelled to lie idle also. Because there was a scarcity of agricultural machinery the people of Central Europe had to starve.

St. Innes noticed a number of things. He noticed that when Germany lost her iron she lost 80 per cent of her home supply of iron. He tried to meet that situation by arranging cooperation with France. He failed. France did not want cooperation. So he has not yet awakened the flagrant evidence of that in close and sympathetic relations with Germany he both her future safety and her future prosperity.

GETS IRON AND ORE. St. Innes, therefore, set about acquiring a controlling interest in the Alpine and Mountain company of Austria. He thus obtained coal resources on a large scale and enormous iron works. Like- wise control of the Styrian iron ore fields, better in percentage of iron than the fields of Lorraine.

St. Innes is not through. He is now trying to do the same thing in Hungary.

that he has already put through in Austria. It is expected that in a few weeks he will have Hungary going also. All through those countries he shall see furnaces producing agricultural and engineering machinery being turned out, the pulse of life being felt in all industry, because one great businessman is rising above the obstacles put in the way of recovery by the war and by the stupid features of the peace.

REUBEN HOLDINGS SOLD

How did St. Innes get the money to do all this? He made up his mind that France might dive into the Ruhr anytime, whatever the outlook might be at present. So he proceeded to get rid of his enormous holdings in the Ruhr and invest the money in safer places.

This help comes at a time when it is desperately needed. Flebesites in Austria have been going overwhelmingly in favor of joining with Germany. The starving Austrians imagine they might get some help that way and in their ignorance they imagine the worst self-determination mean something.

France, however, has set her face against any such coming together, and Roumania has now officially protested also against Austrians seeking this way out of their difficulties. Very wisely, Chancellor Wirth has therefore requested that no more plebiscites be held, as they stir up the animals to no purpose.

TREATY IS IGNORED. By the treaties of peace a part of Western Hungary called the Burgenland, was assigned to the official protest of a overwhelming majority of the inhabitants are Germans. It is a region rich in wheat, rye, barley, fruit, milk, eggs and meat. Formerly it used to supply Vienna with food.

What does it matter if the peace treaties did assign this area to Austria to help her live? The Hungarians have occupied the region by force. So secure do they feel in their possession that they have already set up a civil administration.

Somebody has said that the kingdom now being led by France on the continent is composed of "passionate pride and mortal terror." It is comprehensible, but it does not lead to permanent peace.

Once I said to Bertrand Russell that people thought mostly about their material welfare. "I wish they thought more about it," he replied. Of course, he meant that if they followed their material welfare, instead of their alma mater and their pride, they would be better off.

Besides the initiative of Herr St. Innes one other promising fact has reached me, brought over by an American in the government service, who has just landed. Most of the commercial advisers to the small countries made out of the former Austrian empire are Americans.

These Americans are meeting together informally, first in one place and then another. They are trying to induce the various governments to abolish obstructive tariffs and economic regulations and cooperate with one another. If they succeed they will accomplish a work even more important than that of Herr St. Innes.
