Rotary Women's Program Much Enjoyed

By Vella Winner

A PROGRAM of unusual interest and entertainment was given at the annual luncheon of the Women of Rotary held Monday in the Tyrolean room of the Hotel Benson, Mrs. Elbert C. Peets, the president, presiding. Welcome was extended to the wives of three visiting Rotarians, Mrs. J. L. Hamerslag of San Francisco, Mrs. W. J. Warren of Oakland, and Mrs. A. S. Jones of Los Angeles. A number of new members were also welcomed. The report of the committee in charge of the recent barge party showed a gratifying sum netted. This will be used to furnish a room in the Hannemann hospital.

Mrs. A. J. Erstad was chairman for the day and was in charge of the program. Mrs. Fromme Sheidlet sang two solos in a charming manner, and Mrs. L. W. Waldorf gave two violin solos. The speaker was Captain John Amar Shishmanian of Fresno, Cal., who is here for a short visit with his sister, Mrs. H. O. Cartozian, having just returned from overseas service. Captain Shishmanian saw strenuous service on both the French and Palestine fronts, and he has a vital message concerning the real need of the Armenian people, which he claims is not for charity, but for freedom and for the purity of their girls. He declared that the Turks are lined up with the Bolsheviki and the elements of destruction, and the knowledge of this is beginning to have some effect on the attitude of France and England, which have hitherto been apathetic in regard to protection to Armenians.

Movie Is Made As Feature Of Bill

PANTAGES has a novel and original vaudeville turn on its bill this week. Joe Maddern and Tom Ward have brought movie land to the stage and through the week they will shoot scenes on the stage for a melodrama film to be shown next week in pictures at the theatre. Amateurs—Portland's own—are used and they are so awkward that the crowd finds continuous delight in watching them work.

A scene is "shot" at each performance. At the end of the week all of the pictures will be pasted together, printed and made ready for the projector. Pictures are made of the audience before the scenes on the stage are filmed, and the crowd appears to find interest, for seats are few.

"Through the Back Door," featuring Mary Pickford, is being held over this week. This picture is expected to teach a moral lesson, but an unnatural mother is brought out in too bold relief and the lesson is lost. It is a sweet story of childhood in which Mary has an opportunity to appear at her best. She never made a better picture.

There are no bright spots in the vaudeville bill. Eddie Mack and Dot Williams do some novelty dances. Ted Cleveland and Peggy Dowrey appear in a sketch, "Are You Next?" and Joe Roberts tickles the strings on a banjo. Roberts is a favorite, but the other turns are forced to work hard to get across. Viola Oakley and Layta Gerioff are featured in a series of dances and Fred Jarvis and Frederica Harrison have a comedy act which they have named "Lonesome," probably because the audience grows lonesome waiting for something else on the bill to replace it.

So Lovely

and of such a variety are the fabrics of the season, and so difficult a matter is the choosing of a particular one, that the mode has taken compassion on the irresolute woman and designed numerous frocks in which two or more materials may be combined very charmingly. In the frock below, patterned pussy-willow makes the smart pointed waistcoat and broad cuffs, as well as the simple slender underskirt, but the blouse itself and the pointed shadowing tunics are of the sheerest crepe. An interesting decoration would be long streamers of jet tipped with weighty tassels. Chiffon and plain heavier crepe would also combine attractively, as well as Georgette crepe and satin of one color.

Raspberries Now Appear In Market

Strawberries sold generally at $1.50 per 24 box crate in the retail markets Tuesday, although here and there some fruit was sold as low as $1.35@1.40. Raspberries sold at $2.75@3.00, and loganberries at $2.50 per crate.

HOUSEWIVES who contemplate canning or preserving strawberries should not delay longer to make their purchases, as prices will not be lower and soon the quality will begin to deteriorate. If berries are required in large quantities, a trip into the country will prove quite a saving, for the berries may be purchased "loose," or not in the small square boxes, and the saving in packing, in cartons and transportation, amounts to quite a little. By picking one's own berries even a greater saving is accomplished. Small berries are not to be despised, indeed, the small, deep red berry is the best that one can secure for canning, as the flavor is unusually fine.

Raspberries and cherries are now appearing in the market to some extent. The raspberry crop is said to be unusually heavy and the low prices that have prevailed during the strawberry season will probably prevail during the cherry and raspberry season, hence the provident housewife will do well to lay in a supply of jars, sugar and other things needed for "putting up" these delectable fruits, which will be such valuable adjuncts to the table next winter.

Viola Dana Picture Is Big Card on New Bill at Hippodrome

Viola Dana in "Home Stuff" thrills and provokes fun from Hippodrome patrons this week. Viola, whose prettiness is her greatest asset, takes the part of an actress who, failing in her chosen profession, ends up on a farm. Old man Deep, who owns the farm and a handsome son Robert, is dead set against anyone who has been on the stage. His daughter runs away and goes on the stage. Of course, after failing, she wants to come home to mother, but father refuses to restore her place. Viola gets her home again in a thrilling way. Viola finds in Robert the source of romance.

Marie Kell and the Brown brothers have syncopated a lot of fun and frolic and have staged the whole pretentiously as one of the leading features of an interesting vaudeville bill. Fred Schwartz and company present "The Broken Mirror," in which they have incorporated a novel plot and some unusual presentation. Margaret Merle, soprano, wins a rousing welcome for her pretty songs. The opening act is that of Palermo's canines, a circus like offering that is above par. Johnson Bros. and Johnson have taken a cross section of real old minstrelsy for their vehicle and they put it over in a finished, delightful way.

Whitney Chorus Scores Big In Concert

By J. L. Wallis

THE concert given by the Whitney Boys' chorus at The Auditorium Monday night was a remarkable event in more ways than one. It was remarkable because the Rev. Mr. Whitney, organizer and principal conductor, made his first appearance in Portland only seven months ago, and therefore the splendid program was the achievement of a very short period of work. In the second place, the capacity attendance was a pleasant surprise and evidence of the hustling qualities of youngsters, for they had sold many tickets. Then, again, it was a joy to behold such enthusiasm on the part of both performers and audience. How could one resist being aroused and inspired by such volume of vigorous tone; boys—700 of them—entering into the affair with all the spirit of youth and ambition? Assisting them were a dozen men singers, district leaders who have helped Mr. Whitney to carry out his plans. Dressed alike—dark pants, white blouses and flowing red ties, the boys made a fine appearance and a striking picture arrayed in 14 tiers on the large stage. The discipline was excellent and enthusiasm keen, for they rose at the sign of three chords on the organ like one solid mass, and were seated after each number with the same precision.

The chorus developed many delightful effects in tonal shading.

Richard Averill, boy soprano of Portland, sang in fine voice, but too slowly, the Arditi waltz song "Il Bacio" and a delightful extra number. His is the best boy soprano voice heard here in many a day, for it is of beautiful quality throughout and true to pitch. Other vocal soloists were Nathan Weston of Hillsboro, Francis Duvall and Donald Confrey, all of them highly talented. Robert Carlton played a violin obligato to Duvall's singing and Edward Carey of Seattle made a big hit in cornet solos. He plays with beautiful tone, of the Herbert Clarke elasticity and velvety quality, and his tongueing was clear and rapid. He gives promise of becoming one of the country's few artist cornetists.

Harry Leading, boy orator, called attention to the purposes of the chorus and the intention to augment it to 20,000 voices for the 1925 exposition, with all the cities of the Pacific coast represented.

The accompanists were Professor Muir and Frank Alexander, organists; Frank Shull, Carol Hansen and Floyd Dodder, pianists. Joseph A. Finley conducted the orchestra.

Commissioner Pier and Governor Olcott spoke and complimented the boys and Conductor Whitney on the fine showing.

Governor Olcott said in part:

"Mr. Whitney advises me that they are planning to organize choruses similar to the one you are witnessing here tonight, in 10 of the Northwest states, with the objective in view of bringing together in Portland in 1925 a matter of 20,000 voices to sing at the world's fair for a period of eight weeks.

"During the period of their stay in Portland a special effort will be made to have this great meeting of boys of the Northwest an incentive for moral and educational development. Many of the best-known men of both continents interested in boy development will be here to address the mammoth conference.

"It is hoped and expected that a great deal of good will come from this and that it will be a mighty stimulus for raising the standard of boys' thinking and living.

"Music has had a mighty influence on the trend of world events from time immemorial. There are countless kinds of instruments upon which to produce musical sound, but in the final analysis nothing is comparable to the music produced by the human voice. It was the sound of herald angels singing that ushered in the new dispensation of Christianity—a dispensation that has worked the greatest revolution in time's annals.

"The youthful voice in itself has had a marked effect in the development of music and has wielded a powerful influence in itself.

"It is with a feeling of deep sincerity I express the hope that this Whitney Boys' chorus may continue and prosper as a mighty organization. It may exert a tremendous influence for good, not alone among its own personnel but among the thousands who may be so fortunate as to hear it now and in the years to come."

Valuable prizes were awarded to the boys who had sold the greatest number of tickets, and the applause from the stage that followed each award demonstrated a fine spirit of good fellowship among the boys.
