

GUERNSEY JUNKET VISITS FINE FARMS IN PACIFIC COUNTY

Astoria, Or., June 24.—After a visit this morning to the port of Astoria terminal, where they inspected the provisions Astoria has made for its shipping, including three great piers, one of which possesses the largest freight warehouse in America, the Guernsey breeders touring the lower Columbia river district on their annual Guernsey galley, left at 10 o'clock on the automobile ferry for a visit to the Chinook, Wash., dairy establishments, one of the Pacific's foremost pioneer districts in Guernsey breeding.

A. L. Gile, who will entertain the party at his Pacific county farm, is one of the best known Guernsey men in the country. Many of the earliest direct importations of stock from the Isle of Guernsey to the west coast of America were made by Gile, while a large part of the blooded cattle seen by the junketers are of Gile's imported stock or breeding.

The party is scheduled to reach Astoria again at 3 o'clock this afternoon, returning to Portland according to the fancy of the individuals. Thursday the touring members decided on Tillamook county as the rendezvous of the 1922 Guernsey galley.

ATTAINMENTS WIN PRAISE

The scores of Oregon Guernsey cattle raisers are loud in their praises of the attainments of this industry as a center of milk producing and dairy cattle raising, staunch in their declarations that the industry, despite its size, is yet in its infancy here.

C. L. Hawley, state food and dairy commissioner, declared that dairying is destined to displace lumbering and fishing as the principal industry of Clatsop county and the lower Columbia. This enthusiasm was engendered throughout the day while the party in motor cars covered the green pasture lands of the Youngs river valley, stopped at the John Jacob Astor experiment station, lunched in the open air at Mark Johnston's fine Guernsey establishment and inspected the herds, barns, milking machines, pastures, produce and farms of W. O. Keith, K. F. Johnson, Miss Pearl Cole and Victor Harwood. The Lewis & Clark cheese factory came in for its visit.

SEASIDE IS ENJOYED

From the fertile Lewis and Clark valley, where the two explorers, from which it gets its name, wintered in that season of 1805-06, the Guernsey mentorcade swung down the highway toward Seaside, striking out over Columbia beach by way to the surf bordered sands. Three stops in the Clatsop Plains district allowed the folks to inspect the ranches of David Tagg, famous for his sheep as well as his cattle; of Robert Poole and Fred Hurlbutt.

It was dinner time when the party wheeled up in front of the Seaside hotel and it was a clam dinner that was prepared for them by the citizens of Oregon's beach metropolis. Following the meal, some dipped in the surf, others danced, strolled and reveled in the seashore, while the cautious ones swung back to Astoria for rest after a hard day and before the schedule was laid out for them today.

'Vag' Charges Fail; Wallets Well Lined

Salem, Or., June 24.—That outward appearance is oftentimes deceptive was demonstrated to members of the Salem police department who, Thursday night, arrested Albert Standahl of Pierre, S. D., on a charge of vagrancy and found $2021.87 in two greasy wallets in his pockets. Standahl, whose garb and general untidiness bespoke the professional "vag," had picked out a soft bench in the Oregon Electric station for a night's rest. Upon discovery of his hoarded wealth he was released.

Georges Has Trees at Camp, Giving Him Shade on Jack

Whose Sparring Partners Don't Hear His Apologies When He Hits 'Em.

By Ring Lardner.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 23-1921.—Well, friend, here I am at the town which has modestly nicknamed itself America's playground. Am stopping at a hotel where we will call the Traymore, and from my window I can look right out at one of the biggest oceans I ever seen and even on a clear day you can see 7/8 way across it.

The town was named after the Ocean and they a suburb named egg harbor after demon runyon. I hadn't no sooner than got settled down when my Maxwell the football referee, from Philadelphia come to call and asked me Had I brought my golf sticks which I said yes so he said he would make inquiries and see if they was a course we could play on so he found out that they would be glad to have us make ourselves at home on the sea, and the green fees was $ 10 a person.

Tiny told them we seldom used the greens, but they said that wouldn't make no difference, so a and we made out play on so he found out that they would be glad to have us make ourselves at home on the sea, and the green fees was $ 10 a person.

JITNEYS' VALUE VARY

I asked the man in the hotel how to get out to Mr. Dempsey's camp and he said to go over on Pacific Avenue and hire a jitney and sure enough I found several cars that was marked jitney and I got into one and was whisked out to the camp where I had a little talk with the driver on the subject of how much more significant some people puts in certain words than others. Like for inst the word jitney means 15 times as much here as back in Niles, Michigan.

Well, I didn't have no trouble crashing the gate, though it was kind of hard to remember to not talk french after I got in. The champions camp ain't no where near as pleasant a location as Carpenter's as it is pitched in a spot where they's no trees for a mile around, so after all it looks like the frenchman has the shade.

CHAMPS HAVE ADVANTAGE

We set down a while on the champs front porch and pretty soon Jack come out and I realized for the first time that they really is something in being Champion fighter of the world. It exempts you from shaving.

Dempsey was asked to set down amongst the scribes while we had our pictures taken, bull Montana sat near me and this will be one picture where I look handsome.

We all crossed across the lane to the arena where they was 300 or 400 bugs that had paid to get in. Dempsey worked out with 3 or 4 so-called partners including Larry Williams who got knocked cuckoo in less than a round. Like Carpenter, Dempsey always says "I'm sorry," when he hits one of his partners too hard. The difference is that Carpenter's partners can hear him say it. BENIE'S NEWSPAPER STORY

I wish to state at this point that while I don't suppose they's anything the

LETTER INDICATES DEAD MAN BOWMAN

Seaside, Or., June 24.—That the body found on rocks in the edge of the surf here Thursday is that of A. J. F. Bowman, contractor of Portland, appears to have been established. In addition to a card bearing his name, found in his pocket, a letter to Mrs. Bowman was discovered in which he told of plans for a clamming trip.

The letter, written Wednesday, said that he intended to get clams to bring back home. Bowman wrote as if discouraged and asked forgiveness for any wrongs which he had done his wife. However, it contained no hint of suicide.

NO WATER IN LUNGS

An autopsy established the improbability of drowning or of foul play, and heart trouble is thought to have caused the death. No water was found in the lungs and the only marks were apparently the result of being washed about in the surf.

A separate slip of paper found on the body bore the word "Brandies." Inquiry of carpenters working on Brandies' cottage in Seaside revealed the fact that the man, with a woman, had been seen there the day before. The police secured a hat which it was said that he had left at the cottage. No trace of the woman was found today.

R. J. Rowen Case Argued

Salem, June 24.—The appeal of R. J. Rowen, convicted in Josephine county, was argued before the supreme court Thursday. Rowen is under sentence to the state prison on a charge of forging a deed to a mining claim.

Victim in Critical Condition

Nurses at the Good Samaritan hospital stated this morning that Thomas Gabrielson, head rigger for the Bridal Veil Lumber company, who received a severe blow on the head while at work in the company's logging camp Thursday, was in a very critical condition. Gabrielson has been unconscious ever since the accident.
