* P. M. report of preceding day.

Boy's Wound Serious—Further examination of the wound inflicted upon 15-year-old John Auda Sunday when a revolver he was examining was accidentally discharged, showed today that the bullet probably had punctured his lung and liver. The lad, who has been employed at the Western Cooperative company since finishing school, had found an unbadged gun which his mother keeps for her protection while her husband works by night, and had placed a cartridge in it to see how it worked. At Good Samaritan hospital it was said the boy has a chance for recovery.

Builders Exchange Picnic—Preparations are under way for the annual picnic of the Builders Exchange at Bonneville, July 18. All branches of the building trades, contractors and supply men will participate in the event, according to O. G. Hughson, manager of the Exchange, and a program replete with athletic contests and entertainment features is being arranged by the committee in charge of the event. The general committee in charge of the picnic will receive requests for reservations at the headquarters of the exchange in the Worcester building.

To Hear Road Plans—"All roads will lead to Oregon in 1925" and the Portland Ad club, in connection with its regular weekly luncheon in the Benson hotel, Wednesday noon, will hear addresses on the relation of the road building program to the exposition plan. R. A. Booth will speak on behalf of the state highway commission. C. H. Purcell, district engineer of the United States bureau of public works, will tell what the government is doing to aid roadbuilding not only in Oregon but throughout the country.
