Open Air Church Services to Be Resumed; First to Be Sunday in Peninsula Park ALL LAST SEASON

held last year in the parks of the city will be resumed Sunday in Peninsula park, under the auspices of the Portland Federation of Churches. Peninsula and Laurelhurst, will be designated places of open air worship and if the plans of the federation consummate, open air services will be held in two parks regularly each Sunday during the rest of the Summer.

The open air services last year, though confined to one park each Sunday, were a remarkable success. During the summer season thousands of people from all parts of the city selected the out-of-doors as a place of worship, some in preference to an indoor service, and many others, it was believed, were attracted who would not otherwise have attended any service.

The forthcoming Sunday at Peninsula the services will begin at 4:30 p. m. with Rev. Joseph D. Boyd, pastor of the Woodlawn Christian church, presiding. Rev. J. Francis Morgan, pastor of the Piedmont Presbyterian church, will preach the sermon; Maude Springer Rowen will direct the music with the aid.

The federated churches expect to hold services Sunday, July 17, in both Penin-sula and in Laurelhurst park. The services conducted are non-sectar
