

ALLEGES ATTEMPT TO PUT SISTER IN STATE INSTITUTION

Frank J. Carpenter, Portland Business man, charges that his sister, Alice, is being railroaded to the home for the feeble-minded by his father, Lewis D. Carpenter, and the court of domestic relations. A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed today and Acting Presiding Circuit Judge Tazewell made the writ returnable Thursday at 10 o'clock.

Miss Carpenter is now at the Frazier home, according to the petition, where she was placed by the court of domestic relations "without due process of law."

Carpenter states that it is the court's intention to have his sister sent to the home for the feeble-minded and there sterilized. He claims that the court has no right at law to pass on the mental status of anyone, and that the young woman is not feeble-minded.

The father, according to the petition, is employed by the Palace laundry and receives a good salary. He is charged with having refused to support Alice and three younger children. One is in Pendleton and two in private institutions, the son claims.

Sex delinquency has been charged to Alice by the court of domestic relations. Her brother asks that she be released from the Frazier home and placed in his care.

FORMER TRANSPORTATION MEN ACCUSED OF HIDING ASSETS

Frank Shepard and P. L. Stewart, president and director, respectively, of the Northwest Transportation company, are charged in a suit filed in circuit court Monday afternoon with hiding $13,500 in assets, thus defrauding the J. Kellogg Transportation company out of that sum. An order was issued enjoining debtors of the alleged bankrupt concern from paying any money to the defendants.

Notes for $13,500 were given the J. Kellogg company in exchange for the steamboat Joseph Kellogg, but, it is alleged, Shepard and Stewart both skipped out of the country, the former pretending to drown himself in the Columbia near Gable and Shepard pretending to go to Hawaii. Both found their way to California, it is charged. They sold the steamboat before leaving, the complaint says.

RECEIVER FOR PENINSULA IRON WORKS REQUESTED

Appointment of a receiver for the Peninsula Iron works is asked by Marshall A. Baker, official of the company, in a suit filed in circuit court today.

The capital stock of the company is $50,000, according to Baker, who was employed at a salary of $425 a month but has received only a part of his pay. The complaint states that all the workmen employed by the company have left because they did not receive their pay, and that the majority of the plant is rusting. Attachments are threatened and a receiver is needed to salvage the wreckage of the company, it is stated.

INDICTED ON SWINDLE CHARGE

Charged with swindling two employees of the Hazelwood by signing the names of Julius L. Meier and A. Clark Selby as directors of the 1921 fair board to fake contracts, Arthur B. Chance was Monday indicted by the Multnomah county grand jury. Other indictments were returned against Charles Duncan, charged with stealing an automobile from William E. Crosby, and James Green, alleged to have robbed the Rose City shine parlor.

HUSBAND HAS COMPLAINT

Mrs. Martha Taylor sent her 7-year-old stepson to school with only a crust of dry bread in his lunch box, according to the divorce complaint filed in circuit court today by Allen J. Taylor. From the time they were married, April 9, 1919, until the suit was filed, it is charged, Mrs. Taylor never gave the lad a bath.

SPEEDERS ARE FINED

Judge Bell today fined E. Johnson $10 and L. C. Sparks $10 for speeding.

State Chamber Will Bring Homeseekers Here September 20

Decision to bring the special party of middle-western homeseekers to Oregon September 20 has been made by the State Chamber of Commerce, which postponed the original date of July 19 at the request of the farmers, who have been troubled by backward summer weather in the middle west.

In preparation for the September visit George Quayle, secretary of the organization, left for a tour of the state Monday to secure representatives of various districts to assist the state chamber representative now at work in the middle west lining up prospective settlers. J. R. Heuring, field representative, has sent a request to the headquarters of the organization asking for additional literature and saying that a large number of homeseekers are preparing to come to Oregon in September after harvest is over.

There is more hard work than heroism in Arctic exploration, says Stefansson, who will tell of his experiences in the far North at the Gladstone Chautauqua tonight. The modern explorer must make careful scientific preparation for his journey to the polar regions and go prepared to find sustenance in the country traversed, Stefansson stated in an interview today.

Stefansson said that his last trip toward the pole covered a period of five and a half years and successfully demonstrated the possibility of living on food found in Arctic regions. Preparations are under way for an expedition to leave Nome, Alaska, in the summer of 1922, he stated, and a party of five men will sail from there in August to establish a base for the expedition on an island in the Arctic north of Canada.

LIVIN' GOES AT POLE

E. L. Knight of McMinnville spent four years with Stefansson in the Arctic on his last trip and will be a member of the party which sets out from Nome next year. Knight agreed with Stefansson that it is possible to obtain food and live in comfort in the Arctic regions and that a large outlay for provisions and other materials is unnecessary to the success of an expedition.

When it becomes generally known that a family may live comfortably and cheaply at the North Pole there will doubtless be a rush of homeseekers to that region and we may live to see the sign of an enterprising real estate dealer clapped on the earth's northern axis, the explorer.

There are wonderful undeveloped commercial resources in the Arctic countries and it will be the purpose of our next expedition to study these possibilities.

Stefansson's party will not carry wireless apparatus, he stated, and no newspaper correspondents will be allowed to accompany the expedition. Lieutenant Colonel C. W. Furion, explorer of Arctic regions, worked with Stefansson at the Benson hotel today.

Spirit Lake Power Project Is Opposed By Portland Men

Portland will have a direct interest in the waterpower hearing on Spirit lake, scheduled for August 5. Two applications have been made for the site, which it is estimated will give 25,000 horsepower. Plans of both applicants call for the flooding of the camp ground now used by the Portland Y. M. C. A. as a summer camp for boys. Objections have been filed by several business men against granting the permits. The two applicants are C. L. Kephart and the Spirit Lake Railway & Power company. Kephart has also filed on the Merrill lake and Lewis river project. Both hearings will be held before Philip H. Dater, district engineer and representative of the federal waterpower commission, in the New Postoffice building.

ALBERT CHRISTOPHERSON

Last rites were performed for Albert Christopherson of 672 East Twenty-third street by the Rev. M. A. Christiansen at the chapel of the East Side Funeral directors Monday afternoon. Interment was made in Rose City cemetery.

Christopherson, who was born in Norway May 12, 1858, died on June 35 years ago. For 27 years he had been employed by the Southern Pacific as a stationary engineer. Employees of the company attended the funeral in a body.

Four daughters, Mrs. Anne Nelson, Mrs. Jennie Hanson and Mrs. Carrie Norby of Portland and Mrs. Tina Bjelund, wife of the Norwegian consul at Los Angeles, survive him.

BROADWAY AUTO MEN FAIL TO GET TRAFFIC CHANGE

Investigation of traffic conditions of North Broadway today and Monday failed to convince members of the city council of the necessity of revising the new traffic ordinance to permit two-hour parking on that thoroughfare between Burnside and the Broadway bridge. A group of 16 automobile and accessory dealers with business places on North Broadway protested to the council against the restriction of the parking privilege in front of their business places to 15 minutes, as provided by the ordinance passed by the city commissioners last week.

Commissioner Mann favored the contention of the automobile dealers that 15 minutes was not sufficient time in which to serve a customer stopping at the curb to buy or repair an automobile. Commissioner Barbur called attention to the alleged practice of the automobile dealers of using the street as a show room and said that the restriction of the parking privilege would be a double parking necessary when delivery cars or trucks stopped in front of business places.

Mayor Baker favored a thorough investigation of the claims of the automobile dealers, and Commissioner Pier asked that the new ordinance be given a fair trial before the council consider making amendments to its provisions. The ordinance will become effective as soon as the police department has prepared signs to be placed at street intersections indicating the various parking zones.

EVERETT STREET SEWER IS CLOGGED WITH FLOOD SILT

Property owners served by the Everett street sewer are still contending with the situation of the sewer clogged with silt from the Willamette and Columbia rivers, and the city will be subject to considerable expense in relieving the situation. A section of the Everett street sewer between First and Front streets has been clogged for a distance of from 50 to 60 feet and a serious break in the sewer adds further difficulties.

Workers of the department of public works have been unable to repair the break or to open the clogged section. The sewer is situated in a section of the city where the ground is low and the Everett street sewer is flooded and Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, stated today that immediate repair of the damaged piping and disinfection of the flooded areas is essential to public health.

A survey covering the expense to the city and to property owners in combating flood conditions is being prepared by City Engineer Laurgaard. The report will include an estimate of the cost of the work in previous years as well as that of 1921. Completion of the survey will be impossible, according to Laurgaard, until repairs have been made to the damaged sewers and basements and cellars have been cleaned and disinfected.

Deserted Children Watch for Mother; Father Makes Hunt

Two small children are asking every day and watching every hour for the return of their mother to the family home on a little ranch near Troutdale. Since the Fourth of July the father of the two children has searched in every nearby town and hunted the entire city of Portland, but no trace of the mother can be found.

Richard, aged 4, and Edith, aged 5, cannot understand the strange currents that control the affairs of grown-up folks. Mother has left them and they want mother back home again.

Leonard Mallett, the father of the two deserted youngsters, came to the police Monday and made one last effort to find his wife. Mallett says she left him on July 4, while the two were staying at a downtown hotel. He has had no word from her.

FISH LADDERS PROPOSED

Arrangements for the placement of a number of fish ladders in the smaller streams and rivers of Yamhill and Marion counties will be made by W. O. Hadley, deputy game warden, who leaves this evening for the Yamhill river section. Several ladders will be placed on the Yamhill river.

Timber Tract for Use of Emergency Relief Requested

Does any one know of a tract of timber containing 10,000 cords or more of firewood, close to the city that the emergency relief committee could use in providing work for the unemployed? The committee decided this morning to move immediately in the establishment of a woodyard both as a work test and as a means of relieving the unemployed.

"The Portland emergency relief committee desires information from owners or lessees of timber tracts suitable for cordwood as to their availability for sale, inasmuch as the wood cutting is to serve as a means of providing work for the unemployed to relieve the needy in this city. The minimum size of the tract which can be considered is about 10,000 cords. Address all communications to emergency relief committee, 201 courthouse, Portland, Or., Mayor George L. Baker, chairman; A. R. Gephart, secretary."

The committee called upon the railroad roads through its transportation committee headed by Harvey Lounsbury, for rate concessions in getting workers to the fields and commodities to the city.

A. D. Charlton of the North Pacific Coast passenger bureau will receive the request for special passenger rates.

P. O. Powell, secretary of the state farm bureau, will immediately call upon the local representatives of the bureau and the county agriculturists to locate supplies of beans, potatoes, corn, etc., and other foods that can be secured for relief of local need next winter.

at Governor's Island unless the $100,000 was paid.

It was learned that the committee has been investigating the Campbell charge for some weeks.

James F. Houlihan, bookkeeper for Wasserman Brothers, New York stock brokers, 42 Broadway, said that Captain Campbell deposited $4500 with the firm on February 20, 1920.

Mrs. Bergdoll claimed she paid the money to her son for Campbell about February 1. She said it was paid in bills, and Houlihan said the books indicated the deposit was in currency.

PLAYED STOCK MARKET

"Captain Campbell played the stock exchange, but was not successful," said Houlihan. "He lost $5416.47 between February 10 and June 30, 1920. He still owes us about $400."

David I. Shane, New York automobile dealer, told of selling Campbell a used Winton for $1500, which he paid for in a cash draft on Wasserman Brothers. This was bought on March 2, 1920.

Campbell's salary was given as $252 a month and he has been in the service 18 years.

Chairman Peters announced that Captain Campbell, now at Fort Pike, Arkansas, had been ordered before the committee by the war department. He is expected tomorrow.

Campbell, Seventh Infantry, Camp Pike, when interviewed by the United Press in regard to Mrs. Bergdoll's statements before the senate investigating committee.

Falls From Cliff To Bottom of Falls; But Slightly Hurt

Astoria, July 19.—Plunging head first down a 65-foot cliff over the waterfall on Beaver creek, beside the Columbia highway a few miles east of Clatskanie yesterday, Glen Jurgens, 19 years old, somersaulted in the air and struck on his feet on a ledge of rock at the edge of the deep pool below the falls.

He was thrown into the churning water below the cataract but was dragged out alive by a number of bystanders, one of whom rushed the injured man to Clatskanie, where an examination showed no bones were broken and that save for painful minor bruises to his feet and legs and nervous shock he was uninjured.

Jurgens, who lives a few miles above the falls, was climbing about the top of the cataract. He had asked a small bush and leaned out to look down the gorge when the branches gave way. It was with difficulty that the party of rescuers carried the injured man up the cliffs to the roadway.

Edna Swales Found; Six Young Men Are Put Under Arrest

Six young men were arrested on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor late Monday night when Edna Swales, the 15-year-old girl who disappeared from the home of her aunt Saturday, was found in a shack at 68 Eightieth street. Twenty or more boys and young men were brought to police headquarters and interviewed Monday night.

The girl was placed under the care of the women's protective bureau. This morning she was not well enough to be interviewed by city detectives. In the opinion of police officers who have worked on the case the girl is suffering from some type of mental aberration and does not seem to be responsible for her actions.

The six held at the city jail are: M. A. Ambrose, 28, 888 Corbett street; B. R. Dunn, 20, 141 Marshall street; Thomas Hamilton, 20, Eighty-ninth and Stark streets; Leon V. Starr, 17; Leonard Fetter, 22, and Earl Riberg, 23, Eightieth and Stark streets.

Leon V. Starr is the youth who was recently sent to the juvenile court charged with attacking a young woman and a friend had invited to ride to town in an automobile. He was paroled after a hearing on charges arising from this incident.

Saturday night Edna Swales is said to have gone to Oregon City with one of the boys. Sunday she is thought to have walked from Oregon City to Portland. In his confession to the police, Riberg stated he met the girl on the road in Montville. She had the name of Leon Starr on a piece of paper and wanted to know where to find him. Riberg said he directed her to Starr and later came and found her in the shack with the other boys.

Deputy District Attorney Stockman announced this morning that he would cooperate with the detectives in investigating the case with the possible view to placing more serious charges against at least one of the men implicated in the affair.
