

U. S. MUST DEFER DEBT INTEREST, ASSERTS MELLON

Washington, July 29.—(U. P.)—The United States government considers itself "under obligations" to foreign debtor nations to defer interest payments on their debts, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today told the senate finance committee.

Mellon said he accepted as a binding obligation an understanding reached in 1919 in negotiations between an American treasury representative named Rathbone and a British representative named Blackette, that the interest would be deferred until 1922 at least. Former Secretary of the Treasury Houston said such an understanding or promise exists, Mellon said, and he took Houston's statement as binding.

Mellon himself had no discussion with other governments regarding deferment of interest, he said.

READ ASKS DATA
Senators Reed and La Follette demanded that Mellon produce at once memoranda notes and correspondence growing out of the Rathbone-Blackette negotiations. Mellon said the data was in treasury files, locked up in big wooden chests which had been carted to the committee room. Reed criticized Mellon, saying it was necessary to "look over information out of him." A file clerk was put to work digging the information out of a chest.

La Follette said Reed brought out the fact that the Blackette-Rathbone negotiations resulting in the framing of a plan to defer British interest for 15 to 30 years. One-third of the accrued interest was to be paid the first year, one-third the second; one-fifth the next and so on. The plan never was made binding, however, Mellon and Elliot Wadsworth, his assistant, said.

SECRET DOCUMENTS FURNISHED

Hitherto secret documents, furnished the committee today by Mellon, disclosed that on May 11 this year, Mellon sent the British ambassador in Washington a letter and copies of all memoranda resulting from the Blackette-Rathbone conference of 1919 and 1920. Several drafts of proposed agreements for refunding the British debt were included. All of them contained the stipulation that interest was to be deferred until the United States treasury either agreed to some refunding plan or definitely refused to agree.

JAPAN WILL INJECT RACIAL QUESTION

(Continued From Page One)

of the earth has done incalculable damage to the greatest principle of the existence of mankind. The so-called Christians of Europe and America betray the spirit of mankind in facing the Asiatic nations with discriminatory notions. Unless these discriminatory ideas are eliminated it is impossible to talk of permanent peace. It is the moral duty of us (Japan) as the senior nation among the colored peoples of the earth to propagate this cardinal principle. Equality is indispensable to the enduring peace."

YAP AND SHANTUNG ISSUES ARE SETTLED, SAYS HAYASHI

By Lloyd Allen,
United Press Staff Correspondent

London, July 29.—The Yap and Shantung settlements are accomplished facts and there is no need for a conference of the powers, in connection with the proposed Washington disarmament parity, to revise them, Baron Hayashi, Japanese ambassador to Great Britain, declared today in an interview.

The ambassador discussed the linking of the "Pacific question" with the conference on disarmament.

Stating that he was expressing his personal opinion, he declared that many things which might be considered under the general topic of the "Pacific question" already have been settled by the Versailles treaty.

He reiterated Japan's hearty willingness to discuss limitation of armaments.

"What is to be discussed?" he asked.

"That is the whole thing in a nutshell. Matters that possibly might be brought up as part of the 'Pacific question' already have been dealt with by the Versailles treaty."

"It is clear that such matters as Shantung, Yap, New Guinea and so forth, if raised, might result in a general conference on matters that have the status of accomplished facts."

The ambassador declared it was his opinion that a practical solution of all problems would be possible without interfering "with matters of principle already decided."

STREET KNICKERS LATEST CREATION IN NEW YORK

(Continued From Page One)

sat in, and they usually go with black patent leather slippers having large silver buckles.

THEY DON'T REVEAL MUCH

Altogether, there's nothing more revealing about this style than there is about the short skirt, and rolled down stocking mode, which has made sunburn of the knees an epidemic charm since spring came stumbling in. The coat or jacket seems to have been copied faithfully from the traditional coat of Father Knickerbocker himself—high at the neck, with a frothy collar of lace around the throat.

After all, New York women have been tending toward this for some time. Up in the Bronx they have been seen wearing their swimming costumes at the housewife and down at Coney Island some of the resident aristocracy of the pants trade have been doing their shopping in bathing suits in the practical glare of the sun at noon.

IT'S HARD ON KNOCK-KNEES

Of course, not all New York women have need of such costumes, for it takes no special rig to play the game of putting on the dining room table with the folks from across the hall after the dishes are done at night.

It doesn't require knickers or breeches to shove the twins around Plathurst in the double-barreled baby carriage these warm afternoon or to escort little petty lamb, the Pomeranian yip-tartier along the drive for his afternoon exercise.

There is no good news in this fall's styles for the girl with over-plump calves or the ingrown either. And the lady with the knock in her knees, neither visible nor audible to the world at large, as long as skirts were skirts at all. Well, she got away with it all that time and let her console herself with that.

Knickerbockers are very light-hearted about knickerbockers. They say they'll become as common for street wear in just a season or two as one-piece flannel nightgowns in an old ladies' home.

ELK HORN N, FEED ON PORTLAND PASTURES

(Continued From Page One)

Multnomah hotel, where they were breakfasted by the local organization and welcomed to the city by Mayor Baker. A check of the group revealed that the following were present in addition to the grand exalted ruler:

LEADERS ARE HERE

Joseph T. Fanning, New York, past grand exalted ruler and secretary of the Elks' war relief commission and the national memorial building commission; Fred C. Robinson, grand secretary, Dubuque, Iowa; Joseph B. Messick Jr., secretary to the grand exalted ruler, Toledo; Rev. John Dymart, Dubuque, Iowa, grand chaplain; Judge Henry L. Kennan, Spokane, member of the grand forum; J. Ed Masters, Charleston, Pa., chairman of the committee of social welfare; F. Schneider, Allegheny, Pa., past grand esteemed lecturer knight; Judge John F. Malley, Springfield, Mass., member of the judiciary committee; John C. Barrett, Omaha, member of the committee on credentials; Charles C. Bradley, Portland, past grand lecturer knight; and Dr. Ben L. Norden, past grand exalted ruler.

Grand Exalted Ruler Mountain, who is from Toledo, Ohio, where he is the head of a paint and furniture business, was suffering from a headache this morning, which placed a damper upon the joviality of the morning greeting extended him by the city.

Being indisposed, however, did not prevent the head of Elksdom from joining the other lodge officers in a trip over the Columbia river highway. The start was made at 9:30 o'clock and the return is expected late this afternoon.

MET AT STATION

As the grand lodge officers left for the highway trip the entertainment committee, headed by Fred W. Wagner, found its duties shifted to the station where hundreds of other "Brother Elks" were arriving hourly.

Train No. 54 of the Southern Pacific came to the city in six sections this morning and every coach of every train carried fellow Elks. The reception committee found upon its return that 75 Elks from St. Paul in three special cars, and 44 Connecticut Elks in two special cars had arrived shortly after the grand lodge officers. But these arrivals had been taken care of by individual reception committees and were whisked out over the highway along with the grand lodge officers.

The first special train to arrive bore 110 delegates from New York, Brooklyn and Bronx and at 10:30 another special train bearing 200 more members from the same district came rolling into the station.

At 11:30 a special train bringing 150 delegates from Jersey City came in followed by a special train of 10 cars bringing 250 members of the Elks lodge at New Orleans.

TRAINS POUR IN
In between times "Bills" from every nook and corner of the continent poured into the city singly, in pairs and in small groups. It was estimated by W. F. McKenney, exalted ruler of the local lodge, that there were 1000 Elks traveling individually and in small parties, who came to Portland this morning.

An excellent response was made to the call for automobiles and as each group of visitors were escorted to the Multnomah hotel, registered, welcomed and presented with Oregon roses and cherries, they were placed in cars for trips over the scenic road.

Most of the tour parties were expected to be back in the city by 5 o'clock for dinner. At 7:30 o'clock the band and drum corps of the local lodge is scheduled to serenade the grand lodge officers, and escort them to the local lodge headquarters at Broadway and Stark street for an open house gathering of the membership. An elaborate program has been arranged for the reception by the house committee.

CONCERT AT PARK
Shortly after 8 o'clock the visitors will be taken to Laurelhurst park, where a special concert will be given. Most of the visitors will leave for the north and east late tonight.

Information booths have been placed in all of the downtown hotels by the Elks, this work being in charge of Mr. Harry Green. Visiting ladies are being escorted to a luncheon at the hotel. Mrs. George L. Williams, A. L. Tetu was shouldering a large part of the entertainment work as head of the city's Elk entertainment committee.

Three special trains of Elks are scheduled to arrive in Portland Thursday morning. One train will bring 125 Baltimore Elks and the other two trains will bring 300 members of the Elks lodge of Philadelphia.

The trains which arrived this morning were decorated with flowers by special committee workers in the absence of visitors on tours over the highways and through the city.

As guests of Captain J. Speler, harbor-master, visiting Elks will be taken through the harbor and through Terminal No. 4, Thursday afternoon and evening. Among the Elks returning from the convention in Los Angeles are a number who are greatly interested in shipping and marine work. They accepted the invitation of Captain Speler for the trip.

Twenty-six German citizens are numbered among the 134 persons who will apply for their final citizenship papers Thursday and Friday in the federal court. So many cases are coming up for the attention of the court this month that Naturalization Examiner V. W. Tomlinson has notified $1 to appear Thursday and the rest on Friday, as the court will not be able to handle all the business in one day. The total includes seven ex-convicts and nine men who claimed exemption from military service on the grounds that they were aliens. It is expected that each of the latter cases will be contested.

Following is a list of the number from each nation who are applying for admission at this hearing: Germany 24, England 11, Scotland 4, Ireland 8, Wales 1, Canada 5, Hindu 1, New Zealand 1, Sweden 12, Russia 10, Italy 8, Austria 1, Norway 7, Switzerland 5, Finland 6 and the rest from various small nations.

BULLS FLY IN COURT, MAN HIT

Buffalo, N. Y., July 29.—(U. P.)—Charles K. Reynolds, Buffalo, enraged at Deputy Commissioner Charles K. Blatchley of the state industrial commission, for not allowing him compensation under the workmen's compensation law, shot at the commissioner three times today in the equity department of the supreme court.

Anthony Addario, 46, who was testifying at the time of the shooting, was struck by a stray bullet in the base of the skull and probably fatally wounded. The commissioner at the beginning of the shooting dodged behind a bench and was unharmed.

BURNS LAYS BARE BIG BASEBALL SCANDAL
(Continued From Page One)

the gambler," placed large sums of money on Cincinnati to win.

This money was lost, said Burns, when Kerr went to the box and pitched a shut-out.

Bitter quarrel between the gamblers and the players ensued, according to Burns, during which the players were accused of "double crossing" the gamblers.

"When I took the $10,000 I told Attell I didn't think the players would accept it," Burns continued. "I tried to get Bill Maharg to take it to them, but he wouldn't, so I did."

"As I went from the gamblers' room to the players' room I met Sam Simey, White Sox manager, Ribberg, McMillin and other players were in the room. Cloutie and Gandil came in later."

"The players asked me if I had double-crossed them. I told them $10,000 was all I had. I said I hadn't double-crossed them at all, but brought all the money I could."

"I gave them the money and asked about the game the next day. I told them Attell wanted the Sox to win the third game because the odds were going against Cincinnati."

"He wanted small odds so they could bet on Cincinnati to win for the series."

DEFENSE WINS POINT
When you first met Cloutie in New York, what conclusion did you have?" State's Attorney Gorman asked.

This question led to bitter objection by defense attorneys who held the state had no right to question conversations held in New York.

A recess was declared while the lawyers and Judge Friend argued the point. The judge upheld the contention of the defense.

"When did you arrive in Chicago?" Gorman asked.

"On the morning of the third game," Burns answered.

"I met Attell in the lobby of the Hotel Sherman. He asked me to find out about the third game, you do?"

A. I called Gandil up and asked about the third game.

Q. What did he say?

A. He said it was going the same way as the other two.

Q. Did you see Attell again?

A. Yes. I told him what Gandil had said.

Q. Did you see Attell after the third game?

A. Yes. I met him shortly after the game was over.

Attell said he and Bennett lost a lot of money because they bet the Sox would lose, and they won. Later Attell, Bennett and I talked about the other games.

Q. What did Attell say?

A. Attell said he would put up $25,000 on the fourth game and if the Sox lost the players would get a total of $45,000.

The "go-between" then said he went back to the players with Attell's new proposition.

THREATENS TO "THROW" SERIES
Q. Did you meet the players?

A. Yes. I met Gandil.

Q. What did he say?

A. He said he was through with the gamblers because they still owed money from the first two games that were thrown. Gandil said he was going out to win. Later I saw Ribberg and asked him about the game the next evening. He said the players would hold a meeting.

Q. Did they say anything about why they won the third game?

A. Yes. I asked Gandil why they won it. He told me the gamblers then crossed the gamblers.

Smelt Slip Past And Spawn; Young Now on Way Down

While the public has waited in vain for the annual run, smelt, all undiscovered, have pursued their noiseless course up the Sandy river, have spawned, hatched and the baby fish are now on their way down the river to their unknown pastures.

So far as known, this is the first time the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

Months ago a few smelt were caught just out of the mouth of the Sandy, but none were found in the river proper. While the public patiently watched for the annual horde, the smelt have fooled the public, and it is also the first time, according to records, that the young have been seen on their journey to deep water. They can be glimpsed in schools of thousands, rushing helter-skelter downstream.

SINN FEIN PARTY HANGS IN BALANCE

London, July 29.—(U. P.)—With the Irish peace negotiations quivering in the balance today, it was learned authoritatively that failure of the conference will be followed by an unparalleled campaign of military repression in Ireland.

If the present effort toward peace is unsuccessful, every power of the government will be exerted to utterly crush the Sinn Fein. High officials informed the United Press that plans have been prepared which will virtually turn Ireland into a vast military prison, crushing the country's economic life and putting a lag on every Irish citizen.

The danger that the plans may become operative was shown in the attitude of the various conferees today. Premier Craig of Ulster was back in Belfast, with General Smith on his trail, apparently in an effort to arrange his participation in some way in further negotiations.

Committee Scores U. S. Agencies for Relief of Veterans
Washington, July 29.—(I. N. S.)—"Neglect, delay, procrastination, slowness of action and a shifting of responsibility" were charged to the "bad administrative shortcomings" of the bureau of war risks insurance, the vocational educational education board and the public health service in a preliminary report submitted to the senate today by the senate committee investigating conditions surrounding federal agencies for the relief of dependent and incapacitated ex-service men.

British New York Office Refuses Visa For Walsh Passport
Washington, July 29.—(I. N. S.)—Protest against the action of the British authorities at New York in refusing a visa for the passport of Frank P. Walsh, counsel for the American committee on the independence of Ireland, is visit England, was made to Secretary of State Hughes today by Senator Calder of New York. Senator Calder discussed the matter with the secretary of state for some time and it is understood that the state department will take the matter up with the British embassy here.

Shoots Himself in Hip With Rifle of Charles L. Taylor
Eugene, July 29.—While returning to his Lost Creek ranch home Sunday, J. W. Swartz accidentally shot himself in the hip with a rifle. The gun formerly was carried by Charles L. Taylor, for whose killing two years ago Martin Clark of Springfield is now serving a term in the penitentiary.

Guy Woolsey, who had never driven a car before in his life, drove the automobile until Swartz was rushed to a doctor who was spending his vacation in the McKenzie valley wilderness.

J. Weinstein has filed suit for $15,000 against Nathan, Sam and Simon D. Gator, Julius Bressell and the Farmers' Exchange store of Springfield. Weinstein claims that he was forced under duress to dispose of his stock in the store, and was also cheated in the deal.

Mother of Ten Asks Divorce, $75 Alimony
Eugene, July 29.—Mrs. Seba Scheufele, mother of 10 children, has filed suit for divorce from Gottlieb Scheufele, "Haro times" talking seemingly how no terrors for her as she only asks $75 monthly alimony.

Mount Hood Railway Valued at $507,463
Washington, July 29.—(I. N. S.)—The interstate commerce commission today announced the tentative valuation of the Mount Hood railway of Oregon to be $507,463.

Senate Considering Vets' Bureau Bill
Washington, July 29.—(U. P.)—Consideration of the Sweet-Smoot bill creating a veterans' bureau was begun by the senate today immediately after it was reported by Senator Smoot of Utah. The measure consolidates the war risk insurance bureau and the federal board for vocational education into a new department directly responsible to the president.

Because of pests and unfavorable weather, the onion crop in Walla Walla county will be fully 25 per cent under early estimate.

THE SIGN OF PERFECT SERVICE
Genuine Kryptok Lenses Are Not Stock Lenses

They are specially ground to fit the optical needs in your individual case.

Our Kryptok grinding plant is the most modern in the country, and we guarantee our lenses to be accurately and scientifically ground