

BUYERS BESIEGE CANNERIES FOR NEW FRUIT PACK

Eugene, Or., July 21.—Buyers are besieging the cannery of the Eugene Fruit Growers' association with orders for the 1921 pack, according to J. O. Holt, manager.

"Business has picked up wonderfully in the last two weeks," he says, "and the association is turning down a great number of orders that are being taken."

While war prices are not being received, yet the growers will get returns from this season's crop that will insure them a nice margin of profit, the manager declares.

The increased business in sales of this season's fruit and berries is due to the fact that buyers are just waking up to the fact that there is going to be a shortage of canned fruit this year, Holt says. He explains that this is largely because a great many canneries that went bankrupt last year are not putting up a pack this year. The 1921 gooseberry pool has already been sold out. Two cars of barreled cherries were shipped yesterday, and but five more cars are left in the warehouse.

The only difficulty, he continues, will be to clear up the tail end of last year's crop.

This week will close the loganberry season. More than 500,000 pounds have been packed.

Lewis was about 37 years of age and leaves a mother and sister, who were dependent on him. He was taking the place of the regular electrician, A. Nedel, who had been absent in British Columbia and arrived home and upon the scene a half hour after the accident.

Eagle Boat's Crew Back From Cruise To Alaskan Shores

Hardbitten and salty, the crew of Eagleboat 33 greeted Portland Wednesday afternoon as they disembarked from the craft after a 15-day cruise in the waters of Southeastern Alaska.

At 6 bells this morning the little craft crossed the mouth of the river and passed Astoria. At 3 bells in the afternoon watch she was tied up at her moorings, foot of Jefferson street, and all hands were ready to go ashore.

Leaving Portland July 5 the boat went to Ketchikan by way of the inland passage, arriving there July 10. While in that port the crew was given liberty and was royally entertained by the "sour-doughs." Members of the crew acted as honor guard for the newly appointed governor of the territory, Scott C. Bone, upon his arrival.

Hunting parties were organized and everything possible done to show the seaman-citizens a good time. From their talk, the efforts were successful. After staying in Ketchikan for two days the ship went to Wrangell and then started home, stopping at Ketchikan and later at Port Townsend for oil.

Lieutenant K. C. Ingraham, commanding officer of the ship, stated the men more than made good on the cruise. He anticipates more enthusiasm for the next cruises and says he is "for the Oregon reservists."

Besides the commanding officer, who is from Seattle, six other officers were on the cruise—Lieutenant C. L. St. Clair, Lieutenant Dean B. Webster, Ensign Byron Jefferson Beattie, Ensign R. C. Hunt, Ensign G. C. Kellaher and Ensign Harold W. Groom. The officers and men were from Portland and vicinity.

Two more cruises are scheduled for training. One will start August 1, to Puget Sound, while the other is to the Southeastern part of Alaska, practically the same territory covered by this cruise. All are of 15 days' duration.

80, BUT FULL OF FIGHT; ONE FINED

"Joe" Paquet, 80, is "powerful spry" for his years, according to Mrs. E. P. Pierre, who was called before District Judge Deich Wednesday afternoon to testify in behalf of her husband, a game warden, who was accused of attacking the old man, July 19. Pierre was fined $10.

The fight occurred on Paquet's farm on Sauvie Island. It really was a fight, in spite of the old man's years, according to Mrs. Pierre, whose testimony was corroborated by that of other witnesses. Mrs. Pierre ducked her head and struck out manfully to show the guffawing audience in the court room how Paquet came at her husband.

"CITY FOLK" INTRUDED
Paquet has his farm rented, it appears, but he went to visit the place on this particular day. He found that a bunch of "city folks from Portland" had parked their cars on his land and were fishing from the bridge. He ordered the cars to move on. When he came to Pierre, the young man said he would move as soon as he got his tire fixed.

"I got a notion to have you 'uns arrested," said Paquet.

Pierre said: "I guess you don't know who I am." He threw back his coat and displayed his game warden's star. "Well, I don't care who you are," Paquet shouted back, riled up.

TWO TEETH LOOSENED
The testimony conflicted from here on. Pierre said the old man made half a dozen passes at him and then reached in his pocket as though he was after a gun. It was then he hit him in the mouth, loosening two teeth and drawing first blood.

"You're nothing but city skunks," the aged warrior is declared to have yelled.

According to the women in the party, Paquet ordered a "Mr. Moon" to get a gang of island people together and catch the game warden when he reached the ferry. But they got through in safety.
