House Boat Is Setting for Swimming Party

THE attractive houseboat home of Mrs. LeRoy Huntley at Willamette moorage was the setting for a delightfully arranged swimming party. The day's program began with a bathing suit parade in which eccentric costumes were featured by the guests. Mrs. Harold Lyman winning the prize for the most laughable costume. Twenty-five guests took part in the following contests, for which unique prizes were given: Mrs. Mary E. Woods for the oldest swimmer; little Mary Hastorf, for the youngest swimmer; Mrs. George Wood for the best springboard dive; Mrs. Hurlburt, in both beginner's races, in one of which the contestants were held by ropes and in the other wore life belts; Mrs. LeRoy Huntley, in the peacock feather race; swimmers holding feathers in their mouths and keeping them perfectly dry as they swam; Mrs. George Larkins captured the honors as best floater; Mrs. Stark for best under water swimmer; LeRoy Huntley Jr. for the best standing dive, and also for the best dive from the roof of the houseboat; Mrs. Stark for the best side dive. The relay race was won by the team consisting of Mesdames Huntley, Burnmaster, Larkins and Lyman.

Mrs. LeRoy Huntley won the speed-boat race, contestants pushing top boats before them as they swam. Mrs. O'Brien came out first in the spoon race, Mrs. Harold Lyman in the "bear walk," Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Huntley in the "head-on collision."

Lunch was served on the wide side veranda and cards were enjoyed during the hour afterward, prizes falling to the Mesdames Green, Robinson and Wood.

Bridal Couple Will Reside in Belgian Congo

THE marriage of Miss Pearl Landon and Mr. J. E. Robison of Boise, Idaho, which took place at 4:30 o'clock Thursday evening, was of especial interest, as the bridal couple will journey to Central Africa to make their home in the Belgian Congo.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Lafayette Landon, at 841 Caruthers street, in the presence of about 60 guests. The service was read by the Rev. Father Hughes. Miss Gladys Landon, who is private secretary to the dean of journalism at the University of Washington, came to Portland to attend her aunt as bridesmaid, and Mr. Archie McLean was best man.

For the ceremony the bride wore a lovely bridal gown of ivory crepe satin embroidered in pearls. Her flowers were orange and white roses. The bride, who is a sister of Mrs. L. A. Coakrie, has been cashier in the office of the internal revenue for some time and prior to that was with the emergency fleet corporation in Portland. Mr. Robison is a mining engineer and was graduated from the University of Idaho. He is associated with the Anaconda Mining company at Butte, Mont., and for the past four years has been located in the Belgian Congo, where he is employed by a Belgian mining company.

Following the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Robison left the city by train for Idaho, to visit the former's parents. They will then go to Fort Worth, Texas, and thence to Chicago and New York, where they will sail September 10 on the Zealand for England. They expect to cross the channel to France by airplane for a shopping tour before going to Antwerp, Belgium, to sail for the west coast of Africa.

Davis - Barrett Nuptials Event Of Last Monday

MRS. LENORA GALE DAVIS was married to Mr. Edward A. Barrett Monday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Gale, in Eugene. The service was read by the Rev. Andrew Fish.

Masses of pink gladioli were set amid ferns and trailing clematis, and lighted with cathedral candles arranged in a pyramid in the background, making a lovely setting for the wedding party.

After the ceremony there was an informal reception and a buffet supper was served from a prettily appointed table in the dining room. The table was lovely with rosebuds and maiden-hair fern and lighted with rose colored candles. Old fashioned bouquets of sweet lavender, sweet William and phlox were also used.

The bride wore her traveling suit of embroidered silk tulle of sand color and a small sand colored duvetyne hat, with a corsage of orchids. Cecil Brunner rosebuds and fern.

Mrs. Barrett belongs to two of the oldest families in the state, both her maternal and paternal grandparents having settled in Lane county in 1853. She is a daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Gale of Eugene and the late James Newton Gale, a pioneer newspaper man of Oregon, who is well remembered by all old time Portland folk as the editor and publisher of the Portland Daily Union during the Civil war, the Oregon City Argus and Astoria Marine Gazette. She is also a niece of the late Harrison R. Kingsaid, former secretary of the state of Oregon. Mrs. Barrett has lived in Eugene since childhood and received her education at the University of Oregon. Mr. Barrett is a native of Illinois, but has lived in Oregon for the past 13 years and is representative in the Willamette valley of an Eastern wholesale house.

Hats Are American Creations Battle of Shoes Versus Skirts

NEW YORK.—Since the time the "crow sweep" over the country 30 years ago, the query "Where did you get that hat?" has been a burning question. American women, however, find it necessary to answer "From Paris."

The fall fashion show of the retail millinery association held here made it plainly evident that the American creations in headwear for fall were fully equal in novelty, design and workmanship to the imported models. The Spanish influence was the outstanding feature of the exhibit. In this there were two distinct impressions, one of the smaller chapeau with the bull type and the other the large soft picturesque hats trimmed with lace, fringe, chenille and feathers. Fur trimmings were notably absent and few small hats appeared, although the draped turbans in high front effects of Russian influence were well represented. Flowers, silverized ostrich, and pheasant feathers and metalized wings were used as trimmings while many of the large hats had waist length capes of lace or feathers attached to the brim of the back.

Baltimore.—Now that the attention of the thousands who attended the Baltimore fashion show has had a chance to be directed at the individual exhibits, it is evident that brown was the dominant note of the exhibition.

Lynn, Mass.—Designers of women's shoes are demanding an emphatic protest against the return of skirts long enough to cover the ankle. They declare the short dresses have resulted in development of the most attractive footgear for women, and that the standard would not be maintained in the face of a fashion which decrees trailing draperies and long, concealing skirts. Among the novelties recently turned out in footwear is the red shoe. Entire slippers are made of red velvet and red kid and also in the violet and fuchs shades to match the color of frocks. One new model shows a tip merging into a colonial tongue of red and black striped patent leather.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—Even the equine thoroughbreds stabled here for the annual race meeting have new blankets and each day sees the display of thousands of new frocks on the feminine occupants of the stands. These vie with the jockey's silks in variety of color arrangements. Among the smart gowns worn were scores of printed chiffons in blue, red and yellow on white and trimmed with real Valenciennes, Irish and fillet laces. There were also many sport suits shown with side and accordion pleated skirts in pastel or bright colored silks or light weight wool. These were worn with white slipover sweaters. For evening the vogue for yellow shades from deep orange to canary was most marked.

New York.—The designers who have just returned to America after viewing the first of the French fall openings continue to emphasize the trend of the French dressmaker toward longer lines throughout, with the lengthened skirts, lengthened sleeves and elongated hip lines all contributing toward the slender dress silhouette. In regard to colors they give mauve first place with petunia and yellow also generously used.

Philadelphia.—There is a distinct connection between appetite and silk hose, according to a young woman holding a secretarial position in a big corporation here. She declares that many girls on moderate salaries insist on wearing silk hose to work because they never know when they may be invited to luncheon or dinner and want to be dressed for these emergencies. This young woman also declared that women felt more at ease in silk and that this fact enabled them to do better work when so dressed. She predicted that if dresses grew much shorter then the cotton garter hem of silk stockings would disappear and the stockings would be entirely made of silk.
