

FALL HERE WITH OYSTERS AND CRAB

salmon. Fancy chinook salmon is being offered to consumers down to 20¢ a pound in small lots and even cheaper in larger lots. Then there is fall fish that is available at 15¢ a pound and it is of very good quality. For several months the public has been without its customary supplies of oysters. While in truth there is little difference between the oysters offered today and those of a month ago still the public mind is so fixed that few will purchase supplies except in those months that contain the letter "r."

The oyster, clam and crab seasons are open. With the coming of the first fall months is the time for home canning of labor claims are likely to be scarce for a few days but the season is open and some are due in the market today.

Crabs are being offered, supplies coming largely from Washington points. Retailers are featuring beef and mutton in the shops today and some bargains may be seen by those who study closely the advertisements on this page.

We Are Glad the HOUSEWIVES' COUNCIL Are Discussing the Question of How to Reduce the Cost of Bread
