"SORRY, I That's a daily remark with folks who find so many things to do, so many places to go, that they must forego some of them. But news writers go most everywhere, from the peace conference to the movies, and they tell the story fully for those who "can't go."

'Anatol' Picture At Columbia Is Great

By E. C. B. PHERE is happy justification for an ingrained belief in the ultimate pos-sibilities of motion picture art in the anconcement that "The Affairs of Anatol" will be held at the Columbia theatre until anxious lines of patrons gathering for each performance have oppor-tunity to see for themselves what real things the camera may record.

Superlatives applied to this picture would be ineffective. No one has attempted to brand it the best story ever filmed, nor is it the most magnificent production. Yet it is doubtful if such a cast of notable screen stars has ever been presented in one picture of such genuine merit. "The Affairs of Anatol is a beautiful story, splendidly built upon the foundation of fame its producer, Cecil B. DeMille, has won.

It is not a "Humoresque," nor a Griffith gripper, so its appeal cannot properly be gauged by comparisons. It is, indeed, a product without a comparison for it seems to set a new standard for story, portrayal, direction and artistry, in which no one element has been stressed above another. Nothing like it has been done in celluloid.

Arthur Schnitzler, author of the original story, and Jeannie MacPherson, who adapted it to the screen, share honors in which DeMille as producer, and 12 of Mr. and Mrs. James H. McMenamin was decorated with autumn leaves and stellar players who enact it, participate equally. It is, really, a 12-star picture, scene of a pretty home wedding Tues- furnished by different business firms of with every featured player in a vital

> It brings Gloria Swanson, Agnes Ayres, Wanda Hawley, Elliott Dexter and Monte Blue into strong light and, if for no other reason, is notable for the presence of that exceptional actor, Theodor Roberts. The story this group, and others present, is as natural as life itself. The world is tinsled, but in "The Affairs of Anatol" the tinsle washes off, just as it does in our daily lives, revealing, after all, a heart in every breast.

Here, in fact, is a new departure in citure making and one that, may we hope, will be perpetuated through the production of more on the same splendid, wholesome, entertaining scale of story, setting and presentation. And no small share of the beauty of it all lies in the sub-titles, which are rich in epigram, yet forceful and artistically done.

There is a reason for every action i the eight reels of "The Affairs of and these reasons combined make it a joy forever to the calloused spectator before whose hopeful eyes have been paraded so much of the cheap and so much of the outrageous.

These in general, seldom are strictly tailored but trend toward soft semi-tailored models with the skirts almost approaching the ground. The relieve the appearance of extreme the uneven hems, long sash ends, panels and other arrangements. The low waist line is responsible according to the haut couturer. These long waisted effects are from 8 to 10 inches below the normal waistline and necessitate additional skirt length to produce a harmonious effect. There is also noticeable departure from the vogue for black and among the newer colors for day wear is a greenish blue which is very effective.

Atlantic City-Although the weather here continues warm, well dressed women have relegated their summer costumes to the clothes closet and the wardrobe trunk, and autumn styles reign supreme Monkey fun is used as a trimming of practically every kind of outdoor appare and is especially noticeable in combina-tion with black canton creps which con-tinues the favorite material for day time frocks. The fur is also used to trim lavishly the black, tight fitting, long coats of duvetyne which are so popular. Astrakhan and baby lamb also are used to adorn these swagger top coats.

New York-Amber and ivory are the embellishments most frequently used on the handles of the new umbrellas, and in some cases jewelers and manufacturers have gone to the extent of combining the two in a single water shedder, the amber knots of the straight posts being inlaid with discs of ivory. Nearly all the newer handles are straight with knob tops and have flexible wrist bracelets either of silver, leather or silk braid

New York-The "artificial eye" will be glad to use one when sent on "matching" errands. If a shade on the rec ognized trade color card is desired friend nusband will not even have to carry sample. All that will be necessary at store equipped with the artificial eye is to name the color and the eye will pick it out for him.

New York-With the return to town of nany who have spent the summer at the beach, mountains or in Europe, dress is beginning to evidence all the gaiety which marks a new social season. This trend is specially seen in the bouffant Chaplin Kisses 'Em, dancing frocks noted at the principal dancing frocks noted at the principal gathering places. One of the most strik-ing seen was a hooped gown of antique silver cloth and gray tulle. Among the more prominent types of tailleurs for autumn, one repeatedly finds versions of the longer coat, reaching nearly to the knees in many instances. It will also be noted that wherever the coat has a tendency to rippling or shirred fullness below the low waist-line its upper section is either subtly or obviously snug. For instance, the coat of the suit shown at the left might almost be called fitted, but its hem has a decided ripple. On this coat the trimming takes the form of wide bands of silk Hercules braid, which is arranged in an unusually interesting manner. Two lengths of gathered tunics distinguish the coat at the right, and the sleeves have the deep, enlarged armhole, as well as the wide, the viscaches, is a charming trimming.

'Hip' Bill for Last Half of Week Holds Some Fine Features

In addition to a highly entertain Western photoplay featuring Neal Hart, there are two really good acts of vaude ville and three others that can be classed she fair at the Hippodrome for the last half of this week. The new bill opened

The two good acts are both of such alibre that it would indeed be difficult to place either one of them in the headotto in "The Duck Hunters" is one of the acts and the "Four Kings and Dad" is the other. The Patrick and Otto offering is full of comedy and keeps the audience laughing from beginning to end with a line of cross-fire that introduces many new gags.

"Four Kings and Dad" is a family act which four youngsters of varied ages present some popular songs both in quartet and solo. It is an unusual act, quite different from the usual kid act. There is nothing forced in their efforts to entertain; they conduct themselves in a most natural manner and are liberal with their snoores. The Four Harmony Queens offer a number of popular songs and several single numbers. Their clothes are gor-geous and their singing highly pleasing. Edwards and Kelli have a comedy act with a number of novel stunts introduced after an opening that begins with a clever bit of pantomime. Evol and Clare are two impersonators who can both sing and dance. One of the partners in this set is a spiendid toe dancer and costumed as he is in a gorgeous dancing outfit the illusion is complete. dancing outfit the illusion is complete.

"Black Sheep," the Neal Hart photoplay that completes the program, is full of thrills such as one is accustomed to expect in a wild, Western play.
