MILLS RETURNS, IN OPTIMISTIC MOOD

"Everywhere there is a feeling that the worst has passed—there may be no great amount of optimism, but there is little if any pessimism," states A. L. Mills, president of the First National bank, who this morning returned from Washington, D. C., where, as the representative of the Twelfth federal reserve district, he attended the quarterly conference of the federal advisory council. "Generally throughout the United States business conditions are 'slowly improving,'" continued Mills. "Unless curtailment of production in some lines stimulates buying and sends prices of some commodities up faster than the general average, it is not thought that a countrywide reduction of interest rates will be other than gradual. It is thought, however, that there will be no great improvement until the European situation is cleared up."

CROP MOVEMENT EASIER

"The very strong position of the federal reserve system makes it certain that the crops will be moved easily without any financial strain on the country this fall. "Even though the federal reserve banks continue to reduce interest rates to member banks, it is not thought that current rates of interest will be materially reduced to the borrowing public for some time, perhaps not until the turn of the year. There is still too much old indebtedness outstanding that must be liquidated; member banks are still too much indebted to the federal reserve banks; country banks still owe their city correspondents too much money to permit the execution of a general reduction of rates and a wide-open easy money market. Responsible borrowers can get money in all the financial centers for less than 6 per cent, but they must turn deaf ear to all those wishing to borrow for speculation. LOSSES MARKED OFF. Corporations and business houses that have liquidated their old indebtedness, marked off their losses and put their inventories down to a rock bottom basis have no difficulty in getting credit, but otherwise long lines of credit are not readily obtainable. Money may be plentiful, but lines of credit are closely scanned. "The rise in the price of cotton has been a godsend to the South and caused a considerable amount of liquidation of old outstanding indebtedness. Elsewhere throughout the country crops are being marketed in an orderly, but rapid, manner, liquidation of debt is taking place, even though the returns to the farmer and grower are unsatisfactory and unprofitable."

PORTLAND DAY DRAWS IMMENSE CROWDS FROM METROPOLIS TO FAIR

Every indication pointed to the greatest day in the history of the state fair this morning, when four special trains and numerous automobile caravans left Portland for Salem to attend Portland day festivities at Oregon's biggest agricultural show. The Oregon Electric and Southern Pacific estimated that they handled in excess of 1000 people out of Portland early this morning in excess of six trains, four of which were specials. The major part of the southbound traffic moved in automobiles over the Pacific highway, however. Commercial activity slowed up in Portland today as the majority of business men left for the south. A special excursion sponsored by the Royal Rosearians and the commerce department of the Chamber of Commerce was a part of the fair-bound movement. This excursion was headed by the Royal Rosearian band and uniform ranks. Three special delegations, from the railroads were in attendance. The first delegation was from the S. P. & S. and was headed by W. F. Turner, president, and W. D. Skinner, traffic manager; the second from the Union Pacific, was headed by H. M. Adams, vice president in charge of operation, and William Murray and H. E. Lounsbury of the C-W; while a Southern Pacific delegation was present with F. L. Burckhalter, assistant general manager at its head.

2 COUPLES HELD UP; LOOT SMALL

Although a lone handit worked hard and fast in the central West Side apartment house section shortly after midnight this morning and held up two couples within five minutes, his net proceeds for the trouble was only $20. The midnight hold-ups taught one lesson, and that is that women, even with their escorts, are not free from attack by the street prowlers. Mrs. A. E. Holcomb of the Keefer apartment, Fourteenth and Clay streets, were confronted by the lone highwayman at Twelfth and Clay. From Holcomb the robber obtained $1.00 and from his wife 20 cents. A search was made for rings and jewelry, but the couple had left all valuables at home. Mrs. Holcomb said that the man's hands were soft when he searched for rings and that his voice was well modulated. She asked him why he practiced highway robbery and he replied that he was hungry and had to eat. He was described as being 5 feet 6 inches tall, 125 pounds in weight, about 21 years of age and wearing a black suit and hat. He had a red bandana handkerchief over his face. At 10 minutes after midnight J. E. Hall, 1502 Milwaukee street, was standing in front of the home of Margaret Burr, 455 Market street, bidding the girl good night, when the same lone stick-up man approached and demanded money and valuables. He obtained $20.00 from Hall. Neither had any jewelry. Motorcycle Officers Fleming and Powell had departed on the first call when the second came in. Inspectors Schum and Powell are making an investigation.

Police believe that the slayer is in Glenview. The men of the town appeared at the city hall for the finger printing operations today in response to a proclamation issued by Edwin F. The premier reiterated the cabinet's declaration that the Irish independence cannot be recognized and protests that a basis of negotiation cannot be reached through correspondence. SPILLANE SEES BIG TRADE IN LUMBER

Prediction that the lumber industry of the Northwest is on the verge of a period of big business was made today by Richard Spillane, noted economist and business correspondent, upon his arrival to make a survey of business conditions in Portland and Oregon. Spillane is making a tour of the country for a press syndicate to investigate actual commercial conditions. He said after conferring with a number of Portland business leaders and making an inspection tour of the waterfront, that Portland was quite evidently syndronized with other cities he had visited, in its brighter business prospects. "Following a visit to Municipal Terminal No. 2 during the morning, he expressed surprise at the volume of shipping business done here and admitted that he had no idea Portland was doing so much export and import trade. But his chief interest was in the prospects for the lumber industry. Concerning this he said: "One thing is evident, which is of great consequence to the Northwest. That is that the lumber industry is in for a period of high activity. How long that activity will last is a question. The British admiralty is buying heavily of lumber through Vancouver. Four great divisions of the earth are likewise buying heavily. The largest export lumber dealer in Western Canada told me that he did no business during September than during any month in the last six years. "A number of people in this territory have the excitement they drew away before they left for the railroads are inquiring for lumber. If they come into the market the present surplus will be absorbed within two months." Spillane is now making a tour of the coast business centers. He is scheduled to leave for San Francisco tonight.

Trolley Guy Wire Falls; Woman in Auto Gets Scare

What might have proved a serious if not a fatal accident happened at Broadway and Washington street shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon, when a guy wire attached to a P. R. L. & P. Co. trolley wire snapped just as a Vancouver street car was curving the corner. A woman driving an automobile was following the street car and the wire fell across the hood of the machine, but the excited driver drove away before her name could be learned or the extent of the damage to the car. The wire was pulled out of the brick wall of the building on the northwest corner of Broadway and Washington street, bringing several chunks of brick with it, but fortunately no one was reported injured. Car men attached a rope to the fallen wire and hoisted it out of danger. Later the "trouble wagon" of the P. R. L. & P. Co. appeared on the scene.

Yamhill Speed Cop, Despite Injuries, Quits Bed for Trip

Newberg, Sept. 29.—Fred Patterson, new Yamhill county traffic officer, surprised doctors this morning when, despite an injured leg and possible slight fracture of the skull, suffered Wednesday night when his new motorcycle collided with an auto truck at Tigard, he got out of bed and went to Tigard, ostensibly to recover his damaged machine. Patterson had been in Portland Wednesday to receive the high powered motorcycle. En route home he crashed into a truck at Tigard, when he seemingly lost control of his machine through lack of experience in its operation. A late auto bus picked up the injured officer and he was brought here for treatment. Doctors declare that, in spite of his trip to Portland, today he is badly injured. Patterson was formerly a jitney driver here.

Pearl Is Poor; Loves Finery Steals It; Police Have Her

"Pretty clothes and the love of excitement. With those words the police attempt to explain the case of Pearl Good, 17-year-old girl burglar who confessed this morning that she had robbed 19 homes in Portland. She admitted that she had stolen more than $1000 worth of jewelry, clothing and money. While her mother suffered from tuberculosis, with seven other small children at home, night after night this slender, appealing girl slipped away from home and wandered about from house to house, breaking in and robbing, stealing and carrying away loot with the ease and finish of a trained criminal, the police say. DIDN'T STEAL TO HELP. But the police say there is no evidence that the child was trying to help her invalid mother and younger brothers and sisters. She stole for the pleasure of having pretty clothes, for the excitement and the adventure in the opinion of the police. When only 18 years old Pearl Good was first accused of being a thief. She was brought before the juvenile court then, and paroled. Since then she had been in custody several times. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. E. Taylor, 341 Forty-second street, North, came home just as the girl was leaving, carrying a suit case and wearing clothing

Pretty Dressmaker Gives Up Battle of Life; Takes Poison

An overdose of morphine this morning ended the sordid career of an unusually pretty little dressmaker, who one month ago rented a room in the Barton hotel, 445 Alder street. Nothing could be found in the room that gave evidence of her former life except a novel which she started to read. The railroad are inquiring for lumber. If they come into the market the present surplus will be absorbed within two months." Spillane is now making a tour of the coast business centers. He is scheduled to leave for San Francisco tonight. Car men attached a rope to the fallen wire and hoisted it out of danger. Later the "trouble wagon" of the P. R. L. & P. Co. appeared on the scene.

Girl Is Killed, Two Injured, as Train Crashes Into Auto

Yakima, Wash., Sept. 28.—Ester Schlien, aged 12, was killed and her younger sister, Rose, and her father were seriously injured as the result of a grade crossing accident at Buena about midnight Wednesday. August C. Schlien, Zillah farmer, his wife and five children were driving home when the automobile died on the track. The mother and the younger children got out and the others were following when a special freight train struck the automobile squarely in the center. Schlien's leg was broken and his left forearm and two ribs fractured. His daughter Rose has a broken leg and face badly lacerated. Both are at St. Elizabeth hospital here.
