SPACE TO BE LEFT UNDER BRIDGE END

Oregon City, Oct. 21.—More parking space for the downtown district will be provided in the remodeled plans for the new bridge across the Willamette river here, according to word received Thursday from the state highway commission by O. D. Eby, city attorney.

Some time ago agitation was started in Oregon City for the changing of the plans for the approach on the east end of the structure. The original plans called for the building of a solid cement wall from the east side of Water street to the end of the bridge.

As this eliminated a valuable parking space in the congested district, the commission was asked to provide archways under the eastern approach. The engineers examined the scheme and found that the cost was no greater, and the change was ordered.

The county court Thursday refused to sanction the project of J. W. Moffatt of the Oregon Engineering & Construction company for building a high temporary bridge across the river one block north of the present structure.

The refusal was based on the belief that a bridge so close to the site of construction for the new bridge would interfere with work on the latter. Other plans call for the construction of a light bridge south of the old bridge, and these plans are yet to be considered by the court and general bridge committee.

PITNER'S VISIT BARES RUMOR OF POLITICAL COUP

Roy W. Pitner, president of the state senate, was a Portland visitor for a few hours today. He drove from his home in Pendleton a little while ago to Vancouver, B. C., where he tarried a while and reached Portland on the first leg of his journey home.

Pitner, by virtue of the recent constitutional amendment, would become governor in the event of Olcott's resignation, he being the president of the state senate. Some politicians contend that Louis E. Bean, speaker of the house, would like to be governor but does not want to go up against the Olcott defense.

There are those, however, who grin a little at the story and offer to bet that if Pitner once got his feet under the big desk in the state capitol he would resign, and might even take a whirl at the governorship himself.
