

DAIRYMEN ACCEPT LEAGUE PROPOSAL; PEACE RESTORED

Astoria, Nov. 8.—The Oregon Dairymen's league is saved. Representatives of the 521 dairymen who composed some five of the league before they split from it a week ago Monday afternoon accepted unanimously the "memorandum" of concessions offered by the executive committee of the state league, here on a mission of reconciliation.

COMMITTEE MEETS DELEGATES

F. A. Baker, Fruit and Bruffel, league executive committee, with Dr. McPherson of Oregon Agricultural college, G. L. Hawley, state dairy commissioner, and C. E. Spence, master of the state grants, met with the 15 delegates from the locals of zone five and the committee of business men from the Astoria Chamber of Commerce, who worked together to clinch the organization of the Lower Columbia Dairy association as the separatist body was to be called.

The peace delegation placed before the secessionists a series of concessions which met all points at issue and which resulted in unanimous acceptance by the delegates.

Minor issues which were agreed to last week by Eldridge were granted sweeping, while the concession on the vital issue of zone management of some affairs provided:

- First—Local zone autonomy and complete control of zone affairs, management of plants and authority over all products sold within the zone. Second—The zone locals to assume the preferred stock indebtedness on the local plants. Third—The local zone to assume its pro rata share of the state league deficit. Fourth—The zone to obtain its pro rata share of the retirement fund for taking up preferred stock. Fifth—A similar provision with regard to the repair fund. Sixth—The local zone to share in the expenses of maintaining the central offices in Portland to the extent of the cost of marketing the surplus products of the zone. It was further provided that all other zones should have the same rights as these granted to zone 5.

OTHERS TO FOLLOW

That the other divisions of the league will avail themselves of this opportunity is indicated by the fact that the Washington county dairymen had already called a meeting for Saturday contemplating steps similar to those taken in Clatsop county if zone 5 demands were not granted.

ONE MANAGER NAMED

Following the reentrance of the dairymen of the Lower Columbia river district into the Oregon Dairymen's league Monday night, C. W. Loughlin of Grays River, Wash., was chosen by the delegates from the various locals to be manager of zone five. The plants belonging to the league in this district are open today and are receiving milk under the direction of Loughlin. The zone's affairs will be gotten in shape for administration under the new plan with all speed possible. The dairymen of the county this morning expressed themselves as delighted with the turn the league's affairs had taken and a confident that it would meet with greater success in all zones as result of the new executive plan.

EX-POLICEMAN IS AMONG SIX TAKEN ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Although I. E. Clays, ex-policeman, declared himself heartily in support of Volstead, it didn't prevent him from being arrested Monday evening on a charge of violating the prohibition ordinance.

Clays, who was suspended from the Portland police force October 15, after he was found gambling in the Sellwood car barns while he was supposed to be on duty, was caught with five others at East Fifty-second street and Fifty-ninth avenue about 9 o'clock while in the operation of transferring liquor from another automobile into his own. Fifteen gallons of moonshine and 10 gallons of wine were found in the car. The others taken in the raid gave their names as Jake Radloff, Martin Vlach, Oscar Anderson, George Tronto and Walter Watt. All were charged with violating the prohibition ordinance. Clays explained that he had gotten wind of the alleged bootlegging operations and had bargained with the men to purchase the liquor, with the intention of taking it with the operators down to police headquarters. In spite of his good intentions, Clays was held over night at the police station in default of $250 bail.
