

VISITING EUROPE BECOMES FAD FOR WASHINGTON FOLK

By William Stevens McNeill
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 9.—The United States has a lot of out-of-town guests at its armament party, and now there's a new one as to what members of the family shall look after the visitors and see to it that none of the rough guys from the gas-house district catch them out alone at night.

President Harding asked congress to appropriate $50,000 for extra police to see that none of the diplomatic guests became involved in a private war with an anarchist, while discussing international peace, congress thought of the number of other things that could be done with $50,000, and refused to make the appropriation. Congress told President Harding that there were a lot of soldiers doing nothing much nearby the capital, who were on the payroll, and might as well chase anarchists as stay in their barracks and shoot craps during the conference.

SOLDIERS NOT TO BE
Secretary of War Weeks said his men were trained for fighting in wars and that he'd be darned if anyone was going to make cops out of them.

So how the delegates have no one to guard them, except the department of justice agents, secret service operatives and the local police.

Some of the visitors are on record that there are enough guards, if not too many. Once in a while even a diplomat likes to run down to the corner and get himself a pack of cigarettes without having his heels stepped on at each stride by a zealous officer with No. 10 boots and a loud tone on his hair. When told of the arrangements made for his safety, a prominent French delegate plaintively asked: "Do I have to report to this man every time I go anywhere?"

"Oh, no," said the operative, "wherever you go I will be there."

MOVE IN FRENCH
So around Washington today, if you see a fellow going down the street in front of another fellow, and acting as though he'd like to get away from what's behind him, why, you know the fellow in front is a prominent delegate. You know, of course, who the fellow behind is. You can always tell by the feet.

Any Washingtonian today will tell you that Japan is the largest nation in the world. For the British Empire, France, Italy, Belgium, China, The Netherlands and Portugal all are able to house themselves by taking over one hotel each, whereas Japan has two hotels and a spacious office in addition. Japan is more here than any other nation, and if she doesn't get what she came for it won't be for lack of enough voices to make the demand.

The new pastime in Washington is going to Europe and the Orient on foot. You go to the New Willard hotel and you are in France. That is, it's something like France, because that's where the French delegation is quartered. Then around the corner to the Washington and, behold, Italy. The entire British Empire is squeezed into the Lafayette hotel. But, if you want to go to Japan you must do some real traveling. You must visit the office on Massachusetts avenue, the Shoreham and the Powhatan hotels. Seeing Japan in Washington takes time.
