PARIS 'BLUEBEARD' HURLS QUESTIONS AT PROSECUTORS

Paris, Nov. 15 .- (L. N. S.)-Henri Landry, alleged Bluebeard, faced judge and jury in the Versailles court of assizes again today with a return of the barbed wits which featured the early days of the trial, but which fell from him as evidence appeared to pile up

Landru refused to explain the disappearance of Mme. Collomb, one of the 10 women he is accused of having murred at his Gambais villa. He said his relations with her were of a purely ercial nature and that he bought ser furniture. Regarding an entry of in his notebook which he is charged with having taken from Mme. Collomb, Landru said this was an inrestment of a third party with a view to establishing a traveling canteen to serve the American army of occupation. The defense scored a point when it proved that an illegitimate child of Mme. Collomb, as well as the child's father and a cousin of the woman, are also missing. Landru said he had known all three and said that as none of these persons could be found, it was the duty of the authorities to at least find them, as he was accused of murdering only the woman. When the prsecution took up the disappearance of Mme. Babelay, the village cobbler of Gambais testified that he saw Landru near the "Villa of Mystery" there on the day the woman dis-His testimony was coned by other witnesses

PRAISE FOR SPEECH

"I hope that all the secrets, so long and admirable speech, but a great historical event. It was led up to with by oversea communication. The transition seemed so SEA TRADE ESSENTIAL the speaker uttered the memorable words, which have now gone round and found an echo in every quarter of the civilized world, it came as a shock of refound surprise; it excited the sort of emotion we have when some wholly new event suddenly springs into view. ind we felt that a new chapter in the istory of the world reconstruction had BRITAIN GREATLY CONCERNED "Now, I said I would explain why venture to rise first today to deal with the subject which is in all hearts. As have hinted, it is because the British empire of Great Britain, the two together, are more profoundly concerned with all that touches matters naval than it is possible for any other nation to be, and this not, believe me, for any reasons of ambition, not for any reasons drawn from history or tradition but from the

vious facts. "There never has beef in the history of the world a great empire constituted as the British empire is. "Then if you will draw that picture and if you will see all that it implies and all that it carries with it, you will understand why it is that every citizen of the British empire, whether he comes from the far dominions of the Pacific or whether he lives in the small island in the North sea, never can forget that it is by sea communication that he lives. and that without sea communication he and the empire to would perish.

"Do not suppose that I am uttering laments over the weakness of my empire. Far from it. We are strong, hope, in the vigorous life of its constituent parts. We are strong, I hope, in the ardent patriotism which binds us all together. But this strategic weakness is obvious to everybody who reflects; i s present in the minds of our enemies f we have enemies. Do not let it be forgotten by our friends.

"These reflections, with your kind-less, I have indulged in, in order to explain why it is that I am addressing you at the present time. We have had to consider and we have considered the great scheme laid before you by our chairman. I have considered it with admiration and approval. We agree with t in spirit and in principle. We look to as being the basis of the greatest reform in the matter of armaments and preparations for war that has ever been onceived or carried out by the courage and patriotism of statesmen. I do not pretend, of course-it would be folly to pretend-that this or any other scheme by whatever genius it may have been contrived, can deal with every subject;

national reconstruction. It would be folly to make the attempt and it would as yet been made in any single scheme. As was most clearly explained by the secretary of state on Saturday, the scheme deals and deals only, with the three nations which own the largest fleets at present in the world. It, therefore, of necessity, omits all consideraion for the time being of those European nations who have diminished their fleets and who at present have no desire. and I hope never will have any desire. to own fleets beyond the necessities that national honor and national defense re-

They have, as we think most rightly, taken the battle fleet as the aggressive unit which they have in the main to consider; and in the battle fleet you must include those auxiliary ships without which a modern battle fleet has neither eyes nor ears, has lit-tle power of defense against certain forms of attacks and little power of observation; little power of dealing with any equal foe to which it may be op-

PROPOSAL ACCEPTABLE

"Taking those two as really belonging to one subject, namely, the battle fleet. taking those two, the battleships themselves and the vessels auxiliary and necproportion between the various countries is acceptable; we think the limitation of armaments is acceptable; we think it should be acceptable; we firmly believe that it will be accepted. hearty approval and with every effort at full, loyal and complete cooperation.

"I think it, would be ill-fitting on such an occasion as this if I were to attempt to go into details. There are questions which can only be adequately dealt with in committee. At the first glance, for example, and I give it merely as an example, our experts are inclined to think that perhaps too large an amount of ton-nage has been permitted for submarines. arines are a class of vessel most easily abused in their use and which, in fact, in the late war, were most grossly abused. We quite admit the power of the submarine. It is the defensive weapon of the weak, and it would be impossible, or, if possible, it might well be thought undesirable, to abolish them altogether. But the amount of submarine tonnage permitted by the new scheme is far in excess, I believe, of the tonnage possessed by any nation at the present moment and I only throw it out as a suggestion that it may well be worth considering whether that tonnage might not be further limited, and whether in addition to limiting the amount of tornage, it might not be practicable, and if practicable, desirable, to forbid alto-gether the construction of those vast submarines of great size which are not intended for defense, which are not the weapon of the weaker party, whose whole purpose is attack and whose whole purpose is probably attack by methods which civilized nations would regard

MATTERS FOR EXPERTS

"However, there may be other questions of detail, questions connected with replacement, questions connected with can be accomplished thus, begin considcruisers which are not connected with or required for fleet action. But those are matters for consideration by the technical experts and however they be decided, they do not touch the main outine of the structure which the United States government desires erected and which we earnestly wish to help them in

That structure stands, as it seems to ne, clear and firm, and I cannot help hinking that in its broad outlines, whatever may happen in the course of the discussions during the next few weeks, that structure will remain as it was presented by its original architects, for the admiration and for the use of man-

"I have little more to say. It is easy estimate in dollars, or in pounds, spillings and pence, the saving to the the particular perils to which, from the taxpayer of each of the nations connature of the case, the British empire is cerned which the adoption of this scheme will give. It is easy to show that 'the relief is great. It is easy to show that indirectly it will, as I hope, and believe, the difficulties under which every civilized government is at this momen laboring. All that can be weighed, measured, counted, all that is a matter of figures. But there is something in this scheme which is above and beyond alike are entitled to equal rights and numerical calculation. There is something which goes to the root, which is in the Orient. concerned with the highest international morality. This scheme, after all-what does it do? It makes idealism a practical proposition.

"It takes hold of the dreams which refrom time to time put before mankind should aspire.

"A narrative of all the attempts made of all the schemes advanced for diminishing the horrors of war, is a melancholy one. Some fragments of it were laid before you by our chairman on Saturday. They were not exhilirating They showed how easy it is to make professions and how difficult it is to carry those professions into effect. PROPOSAL IS LANDMARK

"What makes this scheme a landmark is that combined with the profession is the practice, that in addition to the expression, the eloquent expression of good intentions, in which the speeches of men of all nations have been rich. that a way has been found in which, in the most striking fashion, in a manner which must touch the imagination of everybody, which must come home to the dullest brain and the hardest heart. the government of the United States has shown its intention not merely to say that peace is a very good thing, that war is horrible, but there is a way by which wars can be readily diminished. which the burdens of peace, almost as intolerable as the burdens of war. can be readily lightened for the populations of the world. And in doing that, in doing it in the manner which they have done it, in striking the imagination not merely of the audience they were addressing, not merely of the great peo-ple to whom they belonged, but of the whole civilized world, in doing that they have, believe me, made the first and opening day of this congress one of the

for all nations in the Far East,

The conference, before meeting Tues day, lacked but one thing to permit imnediate getting down to business-proouncement of a general policy on the Far East for the guidance of the conferees. Would it come? Everything was in readiness after the leading delegates of all nine powers concluded a meeting late Monday. At that meeting committee was named consisting all the plenipotentiary delegates to the conference "to examine and report to the full conference with respect to Pacific and Far Eastern questions."

Mr. Hughes, as chairman of this committee and of the conference, agreed to without the properties of the conference of the conference to the conference of the conference to the conference of the conferen all the plenipotentiary delegates to the conference "to examine and report to the full conference with respect to Pacific and Far Eastern questions."

submit the proposal for establishment of this committee as well as a committee of the five major powers on arms limitation, to the conference Tuesday.

Creation of the committee on Far Eastern questions naturally implied that it would require guidance even as the arms committee before it could begin a study of its work.

If it cannot, there would appear to be little likelihood of an agreement on arms limitation. Hence, the next big arms limitation. Hence, the next big event naturally would be the develop ment of a Far Eastern policy.
