

RETIREE RANCHER'S EX-HOUSEKEEPER IS SUING FOR BREACH

Heart balm amounting to $25,000 in the case of Charles Schamburg, retired sheep rancher, living at 461 Thirty-second street, by Miss Anna Kneip, 25, in a suit filed in the circuit court this morning.

Miss Kneip says she was Schamburg's housekeeper between November, 1918, and October, 1919. Up until the present year, she alleges, he "kept her dangling on a string," promising he would marry her, but never fulfilling his promise.

On August 17, 1921, he was secretly married to another woman, it is alleged. A month after Miss Kneip went to work for Schamburg, the complaint states, he began seeking her companionship, telling her that he felt so much at ease in her presence, and finally they were engaged to be married.

He had several children and his aged father in his home and Miss Kneip did the work of caring for them. He told her he was divorced from his former wife.

The marriage was delayed, presumably because he did not want to shock his relatives.

Actually, according to the complaint, he was not divorced, and did not receive a divorce until April 19, 1918. When she learned of this, June, 1918, she fled from Portland, but returned in July, she alleges. He protested that he loved her and would marry her, she says, and so she went back to his home.

GRANGE TO TACKLE TWO BIG PROBLEMS

two big tasks of the National Grange during the coming year.

In the midst of a great mass of resolutions, business and routine work incidental to the closing of the fifty-fifth annual session of the national organization, these two actions stood out most prominent at a business meeting in the Multnomah hotel this morning.

After considerable discussion the convention unanimously voted that the strength of the Grange be devoted to a nation-wide study of cooperation and an effort to stimulate cooperative farm work in all sections of the country.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

To undertake this work Sherman J. Lowell, national master, was authorized to appoint a special committee. This committee will devote its entire time to get in touch with present cooperative organizations, study their policies and encourage establishment of new organizations along the most advanced lines.

Following the discussion of cooperation, supplementary consideration of the school question was taken up. The convention voted that Lowell, New York, O. L. Martin, overseer, Vermont, and Barton Needham, lecturer, Kansas, be appointed a standing committee to gather all the information possible about the various methods of operation of rural schools with a view of consolidating the different policies.

MANY RESOLUTIONS

A great number of resolutions came up for consideration during the morning session. The most important ones were:

Opposed to the provisions of the Each-Cummings bill or any other legislation which in any way contains a guarantee feature to the railroad. This resolution was adopted unanimously.

Urged extension of mutual insurance for fire, flood, hail and other forms of damage to all states. This resolution was sweeping in character and was also passed unanimously.

Demanding that the government and states adopt a pay-as-you-go policy to stop bonding. This resolution likewise had the full support of the convention.

Rejected a resolution favoring election of the president and vice president by direct vote. This resolution was presented by C. E. Spence, master of the Oregon Grange, and caused a bitter discussion. For the first time since the convention convened a roll call was necessary. The final vote was 35 opposed and 19 in favor of changing the present electoral college system.

tion of the president and vice president by direct vote. This resolution was presented by C. E. Spence, master of the Oregon Grange, and caused a bitter discussion. For the first time since the convention convened a roll call was necessary. The final vote was 35 opposed and 19 in favor of changing the present electoral college system.

REJECTS SHORT SESSION

Rejected a resolution asking for a seven instead of a ten-day session in the future annual conventions.

Adopted resolutions of thanks to the state, city, Chamber of Commerce, newspapers, Multnomah hotel and all agencies which aided in making the fifty-fifth annual session of the National Grange a success.

The morning business session did not adjourn until almost 1 o'clock. This afternoon a session is being held for the installation of officers and the attendant ritual. Some of the business of the morning session which got caught in the eleventh hour may come up for special consideration at the afternoon session, which has been left open, or it may be possible that a special evening session will be called.

POLICY ON TAXES

Recommendations of income and inheritance taxes as sources of state and national revenue and justification of the use of excess profit and luxury taxes in times of emergency, were embodied as principle features of the taxation policy of the National Grange which was adopted after a lengthy discussion Thursday afternoon.

Two general recommendations were included. They embrace no radical changes in the position which the Grange has held for the past two years. Following are the recommendations:

1. Since taxation is necessary for the enforcement of laws, for the protection of property, individual or corporate, therefore no property, either real or personal, which is protected by law, should be exempt from taxation, except such property as may be specifically exempt by state constitutions.

2. In order to secure equality in the distribution of the burdens of government, if personal property is to be exempt from taxation on account of the indebtedness of the owner thereof, then real estate should be entitled to the same exemption.

CLASS MORTGAGE REAL ESTATE

3. In the case of mortgages "by far the wisest system is to take the mortgage on the amount of the mortgage and the mortgage on the value of the property minus the mortgage," the mortgage to be considered as real estate and not as personal property, and taxed in the locality where the mortgaged property lies.

4. All corporation, real estate and personal property to be taxed for local purposes, as the same kind of property, is taxed when owned by individuals.

5. The local tax on railroad property to be levied on a valuation equal to the market value of the capital stock plus the market value of the bonded debt. Each taxation unit to receive such part of the tax as the mileage of the road in said unit is to the total mileage.

6. Every possible precaution should be taken to secure equality of assessment between individuals and between assessment districts.

7. No city shall be permitted to make a separate assessment and all property everywhere shall be uniformly assessed at its fair cash value.

8. We favor the enactment of a law that will secure a fair and equitable taxation of bank property, whether personal or real, upon the basis that other property is taxed.

9. For state and national purposes we favor an adequate and equitable system of income and inheritance taxes as a source of permanent income.

10. Excess profit, luxury and excise afford just and equitable methods of meeting unusual governmental expenses.

ENCOURAGE HOME OWNING

11. All taxes should be levied so as to encourage home owning and to discourage speculation and tenantry, as far as sound public policy will permit.

12. The Grange is opposed to any form of so-called classification of property which would discriminate in favor of any class of property, as against any other class, for purposes of taxation.

Immediately following the afternoon session Thursday 150 Grangers left for Beaverton, where they were to be tendered a Thanksgiving banquet by the local Grange there. The party went over the Canyon road by automobile.

Recodification of the laws of the Grange digest were completed at the morning session Thursday, and the new code is ready to go to the press. The Grange digest were completed at the first to be turned out for a number of years.

LARGE ATTENDANCE MARKS OPENING OF MUSIC CONVENTION

An attendance larger than ever marked the opening session of the semi-annual convention of the Oregon Music Teachers' association in the main parlor of the Portland hotel today. Members from points as far distant as Baker were in attendance and a large number are here from cities in the upper Willamette valley.

This morning's session was devoted to hearing of reports, reading of papers and discussions. W. H. Boyer, supervisor of the Portland public schools, told of the progress made during the last year in the methods of teaching music in the public schools in general; George W. Ingram, assistant supervisor of music of the schools, talked on the "Topic Sol Fa Method"; Anna Landis-Burby Beck of the school of music of the University of Oregon explained methods employed in teaching children, and Helen Hand, supervisor of music in the Corvallis public schools, read a paper on the progress being made in her district.

GOODRICH PRESIDING

President Frederick W. Goodrich is presiding at the business sessions. At noon the luncheon at the Portland hotel was under the auspices of the Musicians' club of Portland, Joseph A. Finley, presiding. The program consisted of an address by E. H. Whitney, assistant superintendent of Portland's public schools; contra solo, by Miss Mary Wylie; flute solo, by Harry G. Knight; soprano solo, by Mrs. Jane Burns Albert. This afternoon papers will be read by J. J. Landis, dean of music of the University of Oregon, and Lena Belle Tartar, president of the Salem district of the association.

A splendid concert will be given tonight at the Lincoln high school auditorium. Admittance will be free and the public is invited. The soloists will be George Hotchkiss, baritone; Mitylene Frazer Siles, contralto; Frank

TO DISCUSS FAIR MUSIC

Saturday morning music for the proposed 1925 exposition will be discussed from various standpoints by Carl Denton, Otto Wedemeyer, Emil Enna, Mr. Goodrich, George Wilbur Reed, John Chaire Monteth and William Frederic Laakins, director of the Oregon Agricultural school of music. At the luncheon Saturday noon, John E. Gratke will speak of the 1925 exposition and a musical program will be given by Mrs. Hoskins and Yvonne Claire Corbett, both of Baker, under the auspices of the Portland district of the association.

Saturday evening at 6:30 the business sessions will wind up with a banquet at the Portland hotel, at which Mr. Goodrich will be the toastmaster and Judge Jacob Kanzler the principal speaker. A musical program will be given under the auspices of the Society of Oregon Composers by Florence Jackson, Dent Mowrey and Alexander Hull of Newberg.

Boy's Leg Broken In Coasting Crash

Pullman, Wash., Nov. 25.—Howard Watson, 12, who lives at the home of Mrs. H. Munson, will probably go through the remainder of his life with a shortened limb as a result of a coasting collision. A large bobbed, turning out for a car, skidded into the boy, who was coasting on a small sled, fracturing a bone in his left leg. The boy's widowed mother is working in Missoula, Mont. James Boley and Leonard Walmark, students at the state college here, were also injured in coasting accidents. Boley suffering a wrenched ankle and Walmark leg injuries.

No Trace of Missing Corvallis Man Found

Corvallis, Nov. 25.—No trace has been found of M. D. Smith, 71, missing here since Wednesday night at 6 o'clock, when he left the home of Mr. Riddolph, where he had been calling, saying that he must tend to his cow at home. According to the family, Smith had no money with him. He is of medium height, stooped and has a gray mustache. Miss Ida May Smith, critic teacher of Oregon Normal school, Mouth, is a daughter.

Man for 60 Years in Shoe Business Dies

Forest Grove, Nov. 25.—C. V. H. Russell, aged 74, died at his home here this morning. He had been engaged in the shoe business here for 20 years and had followed this occupation for more than 60 years. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. H. C. Atwell and Mrs. W. W. McEldowney of this city.
