

WILSON SILENT AS LEAGUE IDEA WINS ALL WORLD

By David Lawrence
(Copyright, 1922, by The Journal)

Washington, Jan. 11.—Two years to a day have passed since the League of Nations was born, but only in the self-congratulatory opinion of his private citizenship does the man who had most to do with its creation still celebrate the birthday.

Woodrow Wilson, admittedly the patriarch of the League of Nations which in a few months will embrace 61 nations, did not interrupt his New Year's reception to point out that the league which had been declared "dead" so many times was, indeed alive and functioning, nor did he lift his voice to contend that while America had not yet joined the league there was no association of nations in existence as yet to take the place of the league.

Now are there any spokesmen for the Wilson viewpoint arguing the case one way or another. The Democrats who followed Wilson when he was in office are not the same. Most of them have drifted from the Wilson standard and taken it for granted that the league is a dead affair so far as the United States is concerned. Only a small group clings to the notion that the league has not yet failed and can't be killed, and that the major issue of the 1924 presidential campaign will be the League of Nations again.

WILSON'S REVERIES
In the recent speech of Cordell Hull, newly-elected chairman of the Democratic national committee, is seen the germ of the Wilson doctrine as it may be applied to future campaigns. It is an argument that the present business depression is due directly to the failure of the United States to join with the other powers in preservation of the peace of the world, particularly Europe. Mr. Hull's plea for economic cooperation and his statement that a worldwide economic conference is essential to the recovery of the Democratic argument that the lack of economic cooperation in the last two years is responsible for present conditions.

But Mr. Hull's ideas are by no means shared by his party in congress. It isn't that he is opposed. It is simply that the Democrats have no pronounced policy on foreign affairs. They are President Harding's ready look under his wing for the armament conference the Democratic leader in the senate, Oscar Underwood, left his political opponents to fight.

DRIFT TOWARD LEAGUE
On the other hand, if the Democrats are divided and have no objective, the Republicans have awakened to their new responsibilities in foreign affairs. There are Republicans who believe the armament conference, the sending of Ambassador Harvey to the supreme council meetings, the dispatch of observers to the League of Nations, and international exchange and the probable participation of the United States in the economic conference called for next March in Geneva, are all steps which show the wind is blowing in the direction of a league of nations or association of nations, as the case may be.

No account of what has happened since the League of Nations came into existence would be accurate without a statement of the gradually changing spirit of the Harding administration toward the League of Nations itself. President Harding and Secretary Hughes are as determined as ever not to commit the United States to membership in the league as at present constituted, but in more ways than one they have shown an attitude of friendship instead of hostility. They have indignantly denied that America would ever consent to try to undermine the League of Nations.

Mr. Harding has gone so far as to say that the league is a good thing for Europe and should abide. No longer is the mere mention of the league considered impertinent.

HAS SPECIFIC OBJECT
Officials recognize the league as a going concern with a specific object. This doesn't mean, as some observers have hoped, that the United States will be asked to submit for the approval of the league certain treaties which are agreed upon at the Washington conference and which must obviously be made worldwide in their application to be effective. It does not mean that the United States will not continue to deal with the 61 nations of the League of Nations as individual countries. It will not prevent Great Britain, France or any of the powers which have attended the Washington conference from using the machinery of the league of Nations to hasten the adoption generally of those treaties which only the small group of nations signed at Washington.

The prospects are that Arthur James Balfour of Great Britain, who has always been a prominent figure in the meetings of the council of the League of Nations, will report to the League of Nations at the next opportunity and will endeavor to perpetuate a friendly relationship between special conferences of a small number of nations such as took place here and the larger body, which includes the whole world with the exception of the United States, Germany and Russia.

Recall Threat Is Voiced in Liquor Row at Pendleton

Pendleton, Jan. 11.—Unless Roscoe L. Keator, district attorney for Umatilla county, resigns his office during this week, it is predicted that the demand of the Pendleton Tribune, Harry L. Kuck, publisher of that paper, this morning asserted that a meeting of the influential taxpayers of the county will be called next week for the purpose of instituting a recall against Keator.

The Tribune this morning, following its attack on E. F. B. Ridgway, state prohibition officer in the employ of the county, its criticism of the county court in employing Ridgway and the members of the grand jury for an alleged "wastefulness of Ridgway in an investigation concluded last week, and today's demand for the resignation of District Attorney Keator and his assistant, C. Z. Randall, included in its campaign three members of the city police force, who, during the past year, have been wearing state police uniforms. Mr. Keator's brother, the late T. D. Taylor, Bob Sinclair and "Rattlesnake Pete" Inman are the members of the police department under fire.

According to Kuck, compacts have existed between the city and county officials and manufacturers and sellers of illicit liquor. No statements have been made by any of the accused officials.

Taylor said today: "While I am a police officer of Pendleton I shall expect to enforce the laws of the city as they are intended to be enforced, as I have done in the past, and I am satisfied that my record during the time I have been in the police force of the city of Pendleton will stand all the light that may be thrown upon it."

Sheriff Included in Indictment for Robbery of Bank

Hillsboro, Ill., Jan. 11.—(L. N. S.)—Ten men, including Sheriff John W. Wilson of Bond county and Constable Benjamin Battleson of Greenville, are today under indictments returned by the Montgomery county grand jury, implicating them in the $37,000 bank robbery in which the charges made in the bills include burglary and larceny, assault with intent to kill and perjury.

Sheriff Wilson's bond was fixed at $18,000, which was given by eight Bond county farmers. Others indicted on burglary and larceny charges are: Constable Battleson of Greenville; Jerry Brown, Pocahontas; Paul Durling, Greenville; Johnson Mayfield, Greenville; and Lawrence O'Malley, St. Louis. Durling, Battleson, Wilson and Mayfield were charged with assault with intent to kill.

Three St. Louis men also were named in indictments but their names were withheld as they have not yet been apprehended.

W. W. Bandy, a farmer of Bond county, was indicted for perjury.

Seattle Gets Behind Columbia Basin Idea, But Advises Caution

Seattle, Jan. 11.—(U. P.)—Advising a "slow but sure" policy of proceeding with the gigantic Columbia Basin irrigation project, the state development bureau of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce reaffirms its favorable attitude toward the project in a report which the Chamber trustees are asked to adopt at next week's meeting.

The report urges that a full investigation be made of the several alternate plans for the development of the Columbia basin area, which includes 1,750,000 acres of arid land in central Washington.

Clarence B. Miller, G. O. P. Leader of St. Paul, Is Dead

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—(L. N. S.)—Clarence Benjamin Miller, secretary of the Republican national committee, who has long been identified with Republican politics in Minnesota and throughout the country, died here late yesterday at the Miller Memorial hospital. He was 67 years of age.

Mr. Miller was suddenly stricken with appendicitis at Christmas time and his condition at the outset was regarded as serious because of the complication of a heart ailment.

PINCHBACK COAT IS DOOMED, COAST TAILORS DECREE

The ruling fashion in men's clothing for 1922 is characterized by a conservative naturalness which eliminates the extreme pinch backed, narrow-shouldered coat and allows an amplitude of duster coat sufficient to insure comfort to the stoutish man and to disguise the embarrassing points of the spindle-shanked.

The clothing on display at the style show of the Pacific Coast Merchant Tailors' association at the Multnomah hotel also emphasizes a more simple construction of the coat lapel and a shortening of the vent, compared with styles of former years.

The style show will be the big event of today's program at the convention of the association. The show will be open to the public from 7:30 to 11 p. m. on the mezzanine floor of the Multnomah. Live models will be exhibited, according to K. S. Elyria, chairman of the convention, and expert style makers will explain the fine points of the new creations.

CORRECT TAILORING HERE
Suits and coats for all purposes are included in the display, and one may get pointers for an entire layout, including evening clothes, sport suits, riding togs and business suits, all in half a dozen varieties.

Portland leads the Pacific coast in correct tailoring, according to Sam G. Levy of Los Angeles, chairman of the executive committee of the tailors' association, and the Pacific coast creates as many new styles in men's clothing as does New York, Levy averred.

Establishment of schools for free instruction in tailoring has received the indorsement of the Pacific Coast association and it was announced Tuesday that a school would be opened in Portland this winter.

PLEADS FOR OPEN SHOP
Instead of the long apprenticeship now in vogue the tailors propose to teach the fundamentals of their art in a three to six months' course, according to J. Edlin of San Francisco, chairman of the trade school committee. Special inducements will be offered to ex-soldiers and sailors desiring to learn a trade, Edlin stated.

In his opening address to the convention Tuesday afternoon, President Growall made a strong appeal for the open shop in tailoring establishments on the Pacific coast and at the afternoon session resolutions were passed indorsing this principle and authorizing the creation of a fund to fight strikes or other labor troubles in Pacific coast cities. The convention went on record as opposed to any reduction in wages at present and stood firmly for the 48 hour week as opposed to the 44 hour week asked by union tailors at a number of points on the coast.

DANCE WILL CLOSE SESSION
An address by Estes Snedecor, past president of International Rotary clubs, was the principal feature of the convention today. A baked salmon luncheon at noon and an automobile trip over the Columbia river highway fill in the program until 8 o'clock, when the visiting delegates will witness a Hunt club drill at the Johnson street riding academy. The style show will open earlier in the evening and the delegates will make this their last night in the city.

The convention is the third annual gathering of the Pacific Coast Tailors' association and the most successful in point of attendance in the history of the organization, according to President Growall. A banquet and dance will mark the close of the program Thursday night.

Reserve Officers To Form Chapter At Local Meeting

Naval reserve officers of the city and vicinity will meet at 8 o'clock Thursday night in the offices of Lieutenant Commander John A. Beckwith, 523 Consolidated Securities building to organize a local chapter of the National Naval Reserve Officers' association.

Some time ago a temporary organization with Phil Neu as head was formed to investigate the advantages of the national organization. So favorable were the findings that it was decided to form a local branch. If organized, the chapter will be the first in the state.

EMMENEGGER IS INDICTED

Dallas, Or., Jan. 11.—Indictments were returned by the grand jury here Tuesday against Otto Emmenegger, charging perjury, and Leon C. Taylor, non-support.

NEW YEAR CAKE BIDS JOURNAL PROSPERITY

Northern Pacific's Gift to C. S. Jackson Expressing Season's Compliments.

Carrying the wish for a successful New Year, a huge cake was received Tuesday by C. S. Jackson, publisher of the Journal from the dining car department of the Northern Pacific railway system.

Embossed in frosting on the top of the cake is a reproduction of the Journal building. The cake is 18 by 12 by four inches in size and weighs approximately 30 pounds. It was made by the chief baker of the Seattle commissary department of the Northern Pacific and is a sample of the workmanship done by that division.

In bold relief across the face of the cake was written: "C. S. Jackson—That the season of 1922 be the most successful ever experienced by the Oregon Journal is the wish of the Northern Pacific railway dining car department."

Funeral Services Are Held Today for Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan, widow of William Irving, who died Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. W. Spencer, 441 East Tenth street north, were held this afternoon at the Portland crematorium. Mrs. Ryan was a daughter of James and Susan Dickson, pioneer residents of Oregon, and was born in Shelby county, Indiana, in 1823. She crossed the plains with her parents in 1853, and married Captain Irving in 1851.

Captain and Mrs. Irving began their domestic life upon a donation land claim of 640 acres in East Portland, which Irving obtained from David Shelton, the former owner, who remained on that homestead until 1859, when he moved to British Columbia, returning again in 1884. The farm subsequently was cut up into home sites in Irvington addition.

After the death of Captain Irving in 1872, Mrs. Irving again married and became Mrs. A. G. Ryan. For 10 years she had made her home with Captain and Mrs. E. W. Spencer.

MISS CATHERINE GEOEGHEGAN
Funeral services for Miss Catherine Geoghegan, who died Sunday in the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Geoghegan, 334 East Thirteenth street north, will be held in the Holy Rosary church at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Miss Geoghegan was 47 years old. She leaves, besides her mother, four sisters, Mrs. James P. Stutz, Mrs. John W. Myers, Mrs. C. L. Leiser and Mrs. Fred Raftery, and three brothers, J. D. Thomas and M. G. Geoghegan.

Hungarian Minister Calls on President

Washington, Jan. 11.—(U. P.)—Count Szechenyi, Hungarian minister to the United States, presented his credentials to President Harding today.

HIGHWAY POLICE PLANS AGREED ON IN GENERAL WAY

The state highway commission took a recess today until Friday afternoon when Chairman Booth will be able to attend. The commission at that time expects to be able to prepare its budget for the coming season, making tentative appropriations of the available funds among the various counties and also reach an agreement with the federal road authorities regarding cooperation on federal aid projects.

In addition to selling one million dollars worth of bonds Tuesday for a premium of $23,900, the commission reached a tentative agreement with Secretary of State Kozer for mutual policing of the highways under the law passed by the recent session of the legislature. Under the arrangement Chief Inspector Raftery, who under the old law was head of the inspectors of the automobile bureau, will continue in authority and under the approval of the highway commission will appoint an additional force of inspectors not to exceed eight in number, making 14 in all under his control. The eight inspectors to be confirmed by the highway commission will receive a salary not to exceed $150 per month with necessary traveling expenses.

The highway commission will also deal from its own funds additional inspectors without compensation. The policies and regulations relative to policing the roads will be mutually determined by the highway commission and secretary of state.

ROUTE IS CHOSEN
The long-standing controversy over the route of the Pacific highway through the town of Jefferson in Marion county was settled by the decision of the commission to definitely adopt the Second street route as recommended by the engineer.

The contract for grading the Cow creek section of the Dalles-California highway in Jefferson county was awarded to D. F. Murphy & Co. for $25,000. Bids on this project were received last October but the awarding of the contract was held up by right of way trouble, which has been adjusted. The commission ordered the purchase of 40 acre signals to be set up at dangerous points.

WIFE, FOUND WITH FRIEND, SHOOTS SELF

shooting. Habel was the last to arrive. Police found his automobile in a vacant lot near the Adcox home. He said that he left it in front of the house. He accused Adcox of tampering with it so that it would not run.

ACCUSES WIFE
Mrs. Habel excused her husband's presence in the Adcox home with the statement that he went there because of a business deal pending between him and Adcox. Habel is secretary of the Manley Automobile company and Adcox is proprietor of the Adcox Auto and Aviation school.

Adcox was not as lenient with his wife. In excited, incoherent speech he told police that Habel and Mrs. Adcox had clandestine meetings and that when he (Adcox) was away from home Habel and Mrs. Adcox spent long hours together.

A neglected and lonesome wife was the picture Habel painted of Mrs. Adcox. Mrs. Case also said that Adcox was in the habit of leaving Mrs. Adcox alone at night.

Habel has been married twice. Several months ago Adcox figured in

ADCOX SMUGGLING DEAL, WHEREAS A. L. LEAGUE FORMER JOURNALIST, POSSES AS A FEDERAL OFFICER, "SEIZED" AN AUTOMOBILE LOAD OF LIQUOR WHICH ADCOX WAS BRINGING FROM CALIFORNIA. LONG WAS PROSECUTED IN THE FEDERAL COURT ON CHARGES OF IMPROPERLY AS AN OFFICER.

When I arrived at the Adcox home with Adcox and two other men about 7 o'clock, he said, "There were four persons there—Mrs. Adcox, Habel and another man and woman whom I didn't know."

"There was absolutely no scuffle, Adcox entered first through the front door, which was open. He told the other people he wanted to talk to his wife and Habel and asked the others to leave, which they did."

"I saw that Adcox wished to have a talk with his wife and Habel and I decided I had better leave. I walked out of the house and had gone about a block toward my own home which is about three blocks from the Adcox home, when I heard the pistol shot. I met a neighbor and we decided to hurry back and see what had happened."

COUPLE HAD QUARRELED
"Then I heard Adcox calling to me that his wife had shot herself. I hurried to the house and found Mrs. Adcox lying on the kitchen floor with the gun in her hand. I took the gun out of her hand. She kept saying: "I had no business to come home."

"I called for the police and got a doctor who lived nearby. I don't know exactly what took place in the house while I was away. I don't think there was any scuffle. I heard that she ran up stairs and jumped from the sleeping porch, but I don't know why he did that, if he did it at all. He might have left by the front door for all I know. Some man who was passing the house told me he saw a man jump from the sleeping porch."

"Adcox was in a front room pleading with his wife to come in the room and talk with him. She refused. She had the gun in the kitchen, apparently, in a table drawer with the kitchen knives."

"I am sure Adcox had no gun with him."

"Powers said the two had been having some domestic difficulty for some time."

Portland Ad Club Shows Good Gains In Its Membership

Achievements of the Portland Ad club during the year were outlined briefly in the "new" program of touring officers at the noon luncheon today in the crystal room of the Benson hotel. W. S. Kirkpatrick, president, said the club had added about 75 new members, with a net gain of 13, and the better business bureau shows a net gain of 33 members.

John Lane urged the club to see that the name of Portland is included on maps of the Pacific coast printed in magazines, when the names of other coast cities are shown. George L. Rauch extolled the idea of trade excursions into Central and Southern Oregon and W. J. Ball urged the purchase of home industry products. Others who spoke were L. R. Bailey, F. P. Tebbetts and E. M. Welch, all retiring officers.

Miss Beatrice Sweetland of the Honolulu Ad club was introduced and invited the members to the Hawaiian islands. The entertainment committee announced the annual jinks and installation of officers for January 17 at the Multnomah hotel. The program includes a masquerade ball.

CO-ED DEBATE TEAM

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Jan. 11.—The Oregon Aggie girls' debate team will debate the "closed shop" with the University of Oregon girls the last week in February. A squad of eight, four of whom will be chosen to compete, is working hard in preparation for the contest.

LINNTONITES OUT TO OUST JITNEYS

Twenty-five residents of Linton today in city council meeting poured out their grievances against drivers of jitneys on the run to the city. These grievances, they said, were begun several years ago when the United Railways tore up its tracks to Linton after the people refused to stand a 5-cent fare increase. Then came the jitneys.

They, however, took advantage of their monopoly and charged 35 cents. Not only that, the Linton people aver, but they maintained no schedule. This went on, they pointed out, until J. K. Schaefer two months ago applied for a franchise to operate a bus line on schedule at 15 cents one way on tickets for 15. The jitneys then dropped to 10 cents.

Now, to punish the jitneys, the Linton citizens say, they demand that they be abolished by order of city council. It was for this purpose that they sent representatives to the council.

They said that Schaefer promised to put on as many buses as traffic warranted and urged that when the council goes over his franchise on its first reading next Wednesday to award it to him. The jitneys will continue to operate if they find patronage—Mayor Baker said, under the ruling governing their operation.

Lenin Plans to Go To Western Europe In Next Two Weeks

Moscow, Jan. 11.—(L. N. S.)—Nicolai Lenin, president of the council of Russian soviet, is planning a trip into Western Europe within the next fortnight, it was learned today. Lenin has been suffering from rheumatism and will consult specialists while abroad. He will be accompanied by George Tchikserin, commissar for foreign affairs in the Moscow government.

Berlin probably will be the first city visited. While away Lenin will confer with foreign business men on the investment of foreign capital in Russia. The Russian statesman returned to the capital yesterday after a short stay in the country for his health.

Branches to Give Journal Premiums

For the first time since The Journal has been giving premiums to "wast ad" advertisers, the various wast ad branches this week will distribute the premiums, as well as the main office of The Journal, on Thursday and Friday. The nature of the premium is to be a "surprise" and has been styled "pig in a poke," and of value to telephone users. That the offerings will be well worth while is assured by the advertising department.
