

RECLAMATION PUT ON SENATE SLATE; DRAINAGE OPPOSED

Washington, Jan. 12.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL)—Reclamation was definitely put on the program for the senate at the present session at a meeting of Republican senators last night. Opposition developed to the inclusion of drainage, which would be principally for the benefit of southern lands and that point was left for future consideration.

As agreed upon the foreign funding bill comes first, then the soldier bonus, revision of the tariff, cooperative marketing, reclamation, and the treaties submitted as a result of the arms conference.

These, with the appropriation bills, are regarded as making a full menu for the session and no other measures except those of minor importance, are to be considered.

Senators attending the conference included Lodge and Curtis, majority leader and assistant, respectively; Watson of Indiana, Fernald, Jones of Washington, Wadsworth, Fernald, McNary and Capper, the last two named being representatives of the agricultural bloc.

Senator McNary, who is to take charge of the reclamation bill fight, was undecided today whether to stand upon his last bill, which includes drainage along with arid land reclamation, or to go back to the earlier McNary-Smith bill, which covers western irrigation only.

Wadsworth and Watson were opposed to the inclusion of drainage, and it is thought the views of the president will be consulted. It is commonly believed that if the senate omits drainage the house will put it in and will hardly consent to enactment of the bill in the end unless drainage is included.

Stop Boy Runaways; Eager to Go Home

Roseburg, Or., Jan. 12.—William Edwards, aged 15, of Seattle, and Vincent Duke, aged 16, of Portland, were picked up by local officers Wednesday. The Edwards boy is being held for his father, T. T. Edwards, who will arrive today. The boy ran away from home January 3 and his mother is said to be prostrated with grief. Vincent Duke rode nearly to Roseburg on a passenger train before he was discovered and put off. He was without money and hungry and eager to go home. He begged that his mother not be told of his arrest, and was given enough money by the chief of police to return home.

Two Irrigation Districts Elect

Klamath Falls, Jan. 12.—Unofficial reports Wednesday indicate that T. N. Case was elected a director of the Klamath irrigation district to succeed R. K. Bradbury, incumbent, who ran a close second. Reports from five of the six precincts gave Case 101 and Bradbury 98 votes. The one district not reporting casts 7 votes, but reported a majority of these for Case. In the Langell valley district William F. B. Chase was elected director over A. E. Galsby by 1 vote.

Yakima Authorities Plan Liquor Crusade

Yakima, Wash., Jan. 12.—Prosecuting Attorney Sydney Livsey and Sheriff Pad R. Bear have patched up their differences, arising from the indictment and trial of the latter on a charge of violating the state liquor laws by taking money from bootleggers, and plan a systematic campaign for suppression of the illicit liquor traffic in the county. A deputy will be assigned for special duty to the county attorney's office to investigate all charges prior to the issuance of a warrant.

Soldiers Who Filed False Bonus Papers Face Felony Charge

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 12.—Trouble is brewing for an undetermined number of former spruce division soldiers, who received extra compensation for work in the woods for the United States Spruce Production corporation during the war and who reported to the state bonus department when applying for their compensation that they had received no extra compensation or only a small amount.

State Auditor C. W. Clausen has received from Frank Paulus, assistant treasurer for the United States Spruce Production corporation, a corrected list of Washington "spruces" with the amount of extra compensation these men received.

The bonus department is preparing to prosecute those making false affidavits. The charge constitutes a felony.

Movement for Second Legion Post Opposed

A movement to organize a second post of the American Legion in Portland received its first setback Wednesday, when the Legion state executive board tabled a petition asking for a charter for a post in the Peninsula district. The movement, which was led by P. P. Stewart and Dr. John G. Abele, was opposed by Portland post No. 1. The state executive board, in tabling the petition, urged that the supporters of the proposal of a new post work to increase the influence of post No. 1.

Two Doctors Charged With Narcotic Sale Held on $2500 Bail

Assistant United States Attorney Austin Fiegel appeared before United States Commissioner Fraser Wednesday afternoon and swore to federal charges against Drs. Charles Elicum and Homer J. Flinn, 401-3 Raleigh building, charging them with violating the Harrison narcotic act. The commissioner at once set bail at $2500 in each case, which the men were unable to furnish. The two doctors were arrested Tuesday afternoon by federal and police narcotic agents on a charge of selling narcotics to a "stool pigeon." The buyer is said to have purchased from them without a prescription. The case will be presented to the next federal grand jury, which meets in February.

Get Out! Vacate at Once--

THAT'S THE ORDERS WE RECEIVED FROM THE LANDLORD!

It is one of those unfortunate affairs. We decided to quit business several weeks ago, as we could not pay the increased demand of rent wanted, thinking that we could take our time to close out our stock to the public, but after we had started our sale we received notice from the landlord to vacate by January 31. Such being the case, we are forced to make a further drastic reduction on every Suit, Overcoat and Mackinaw in the store. Nothing will be held back in order to make a clean sweep of the entire stock. Price will be no object. It is just a case of selling every article as quickly as possible.
