MidwinterPicnic Of Study Club Full Of Fun

GOOD humor ran riot at the annual mid-winter picnic of the Portland Shakespeare Study club, Tuesday, at the hospitable home of Mrs. J. Coulsen Hare. Jokes and stunts of all sorts were the order of the day and the mere mention of the name of Shakespeare made the member liable for a fine of 10 cents, this sum being used to swell the club's contribution to the scholarship loan fund. Impromptu speeches, stories, songs and even an imitation of the Russian ballet, were features of the program. Alva Lee Stephens, an unexpected guest during the program responded to a request for a speech, with remarks on "Present Day Manners" that Natta, vice grand; Mrs. Addie Kimball, remarks on "Present Day Manners" that okes on the "Shakespeare ladies."
