

FUGITIVE IS SLAIN IN SELF-DEFENSE, SHERIFF IS TOLD

Roseburg, Jan. 18.—Sheriff Starmer and Coroner Ritter returned Wednesday from the remote cabin where Douglas Tapp, fugitive from justice, was shot to death by C. M. Young, a neighbor, Sunday night. An investigation was made into the shooting. The inquest is to be held Friday.

At the cabin they found an excited crowd of farmers. The body had not been touched. Facts found by the officers bear out Young in his statement to the sheriff in Roseburg the day following the killing, although further investigation will be made before his statement is accepted officially.

Wallace Freyer, uncle of the dead man and owner of the cabin in which the shooting occurred, and Roy Hughes, brother-in-law of C. M. Young, who fired the fatal shot, related virtually the same story to the sheriff as told by Young.

Tapp became drunk and quarrelsome late the evening of the shooting, and was told to leave the house. He searched for his hat for some time, and when he could not find it, Young gave him his hat and told him to go. Tapp took his rifle and left, going about 50 feet from the house. He then turned and went back, opening the kitchen door and throwing Young's hat inside.

Young, it is recited, started to argue with him and Tapp cried, "I'm a fugitive from justice, and I don't give a d— who I kill."

Young seized the barrel of Tapp's gun, as he started to shoot, the bullet ranging upward, going through the ceiling and into an upper room, where it was found Wednesday by Sheriff Starmer.

During that part of the quarrel, Freyer had been lying on the bed in the next room. He roused at the sound of the shot and came out into the main room. Young and Hughes struggled with Tapp, who was larger and stronger than they, until finally Young was shoved clear. He seized his own rifle and fired. The bullet struck Tapp above the left eyebrow, causing instant death.

The steel jacket of the bullet tore loose and struck Freyer in the leg. Freyer admitted that he was so drunk he knew nothing of his injury until the next day. A jury, composed of W. E. Gates, J. E. Haines, Joseph Hudson, William Cheever, A. B. Haines and J. R. Hutchinson, has been chosen for the inquest.

BIDS CALLED FOR ON 3300 NEW CARS

Construction of 3300 new refrigerator cars for the Pacific Fruit Express company at a total cost of $12,000,000 has been authorized and calls have been made for bids, according to information received Wednesday at local offices of the Southern Pacific company, which is joint owner with the Union Pacific of the refrigerator express company.

This is the third large order for cars made by railroad organizations during the past three months. The Northern Pacific announced its intention to construct approximately $5,000,000 worth of new cars this year and the Union Pacific approximately $10,000,000 worth of cars. Northwestern lumber will be used in construction of all the cars.

The car order calls for completion of the new refrigerators in time for the summer perishable business. The company at present has 13,500 cars and, with the new equipment, this number will be increased to 22,300. Since 1920 a total of $53,000,000 has been invested in new facilities, including this new car order.

Last year the Pacific Fruit Express company received 4000 new cars and these aided immensely in relieving the congestion during the fruit shipping season in the Northwest. With 3300 more cars in service next fall, it is believed the apple shipping problem will be overcome to a large extent.

STATE'S NEGLIGENCE OF LAKE COUNTY CAUSES PROTEST

Lakeview, Jan. 18.—"The County That Oregon Forgot" is the slogan adopted by the Lakeview Chamber of Commerce, which decided to reorganize the chamber and adopt a new name, changing it to the Lake County Chamber of Commerce. A membership campaign will be begun at once, with a goal of 150 active members. The plan also contemplates employment of a paid secretary and publication of an illustrated booklet setting forth the resources and advantages of the county.

The slogan was prompted by lack of interest which Oregon officials are alleged to have shown in Lake county. Only recently, in the fight which the local Chamber of Commerce is conducting for continuance of service by the Nevada, California & Oregon narrow gauge railroad into Lakeview, the Oregon public service commission wished to be relieved of holding a hearing, according to reports. The owners of the road have petitioned the interstate commerce commission to discontinue operation.

More than 20,000 lambs, 18,000 cattle, 1,500,000 pounds of wool and 400,000 bushels of wheat were shipped from Lakeview last year over this narrow gauge road. In addition to this a section of country as large as the state of New Jersey was supplied with dry goods, hardware, groceries and other manufactured articles.

O. D. Cronmiller was chosen secretary of the reorganized chamber.
