

DOUBTFUL STATES MAKE CLAIMS FOR CABINET MEMBER

Washington, Jan. 19.—If the selection of a postmaster general to succeed Will H. Hays were to be made immediately, Charles G. Dawes, of Chicago, would be the man standing in the way of Dr. Hubert Work, of Colorado, first assistant postmaster general at the present time.

The president would like to see Dawes in the place, but Dawes, having once turned down an opportunity to be secretary of the treasury in Harding's cabinet, could scarcely be expected to accept the postmaster generalship now.

So, according to administration senators in touch with the situation, Dr. Work would seem to be in the most favorable position at this time, unless political activity, which has suddenly developed high momentum about this cabinet vacancy, persuades Harding to change his mind and make a strictly political selection, instead of one based on recognition of service to the government.

In connection with the politics in the situation Walter Dickey, of Kansas City, a long a prominent member of the Republican party, has been regarded as the most certain selection until the last few days. He is still a strong possibility for this reason.

Senator Spencer and the entire Missouri delegation have recommended Dickey's nomination. And Spencer has something coming to him. His wishes and his protests were ignored on the occasion of Harding's nomination of T. C. Madison of Kansas City for United States district attorney there. Attorney General Daugherty insisted upon Madison, while Spencer, supported by leading Republican newspapers, opposed Madison. When Madison's nomination was sent to the senate, Spencer, for a time, held up his confirmation. Finally he was prevailed upon to yield through assurances that his wishes would be well taken care of on some other occasion.

NEWBERRY FIGHT FIGURES

Since that time Spencer further placed himself in position to receive administration favors by leading the party fight on behalf of Senator Newberry. So, when he came forward with the first suggestion for Hays' successor, W. S. Dickey, it seemed likely his wishes might be met.

This belief is strengthened because Missouri is a doubtful state. But there is another doubtful state, Colorado, and, too, there was a factor in Hays' resignation which carried the proviso that his successor carry out the postoffice department work as Hays had started it. Senators Phillips and Nicholson, together with the entire congressional delegation from Colorado have come out for Dr. Work, who for some years was national committeeman from Colorado, and at the last Republican convention an active worker for Harding. He was one of Harding's first appointments, and because of his work under Hays would be expected to have the endorsement of Hays.

INDIANA VOTE SEEN

Finally there is a third "doubtful state" in the coming election—Indiana—where Senator New is frankly admitted by his friends to have a close fight on his hands for re-election against former Senator Beveridge. It is admitted that New, who was offered the post of secretary of war by President Harding, and declined, because Republican leaders felt his presence was needed in the senate, might well be tendered the postmaster generalship and might take it.

New, however, is said to fear that if he took the place it might mean that he was running away from his fight against Beveridge.

Tom Lynch, 511 North Twenty-first street, longshoreman, was struck on the hand by a chain at the Clark & Wilson Lumber company plant, Linnton, Wednesday afternoon. He was badly cut and bruised.

Astoria Lumbermen Anxious Over Visit Of Long-Bell Head

Astoria, Jan. 19.—The visit to Astoria Friday of R. A. Long, president of the Long-Bell Lumber company, and a party of officials and experts of the company, is awaited with interest by the lumber-wise of Astoria who see the visit as one pregnant with industrial possibilities. The belief in the truth of the rumors that the Long-Bell company has purchased the Hammond Lumber company holdings refuses to be downed by the denials made by the presidents of both concerns.

A merger of the two companies is seen as one of the possibilities in reconciling the reported deal and the denial of a sale. It also is common knowledge that the Long-Bell company had several mill sites in this district under serious consideration about the time of the purchase of the Kelso location. The most favored of these sites was on the T. S. Cornelius farm on Youngs river. Some see in the forthcoming visit of Long a reconsideration of the location near Astoria.

London Air Chills Iceland's Premier; Wants Arctic Ozone

London, Jan. 19.—Premier Magnusson of Iceland, who came down from his own chilly country for a brief visit to London, is going back home Thursday—to get warm.

The premier struck London at the height of the cold season. He wore heavy overcoats and -7m clothing, but the dampness penetrated just the same. "The name of my country is a misnomer," he protested, shivering. "I have to wear just as heavy an overcoat here as I do back home. Up in Reikiavik it is 10 degrees warmer than in London. This weather is damp and not nearly as dry as Iceland. It makes me too chilly, so I'm glad to go back."

Hoquiam, Wash., Jan. 19.—Angered when federal officers and local police searched the ship and seized 123 quarts of Nipponese whiskey, a Japanese sailor on the steamship Kaitan Maru, loading here, locked Deputy Customs Collectors W. A. May and Detective T. Mc Quinn of the Hoquiam police force in the oil room of the steamer Tuesday. Chief of Police William Thompson wrested the key from the sailor and released the men. The Kaitan Maru reached Hoquiam from Shimonoseki and is loading several million feet of Jap squares and cedar for Kobe.

LAND DEVELOPMENT PLANNED BY BOARD

General policies of the newly-formed Oregon Development board have been announced by Fred N. Wallace, chairman, with a view of obtaining aid in determining the best plan for the work of the bureau and cooperation from the various bodies of the state interested in agricultural expansion.

The members of the board are Wallace and J. M. Kyle of the Oregon Irrigation congress, Sam E. Brown of the Oregon Drainage association, William Hanley of the State Chamber of Commerce, and W. D. E. Dodson of the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

Several preliminary meetings of the board have been held so that the members might become acquainted with the scope of the work and hear the suggestions of the various bodies of the state. The general work will be devoted to assistance and guidance in agricultural land development, to securing settlers for lands ready for agriculture, aiding settlers in more effective agricultural methods and improving the market for Oregon agricultural products.

"No spectacular or immediate results are possible," said Wallace, "but as the effective forces of the state are marshaled, as the thinking men of all sections are enlisted, results equal to those attained in any other Western states are possible here. We hope to see such an end in due course attained."

Washington at Tenth St.

"The Grey Tile Corner"

To Our Friends and Customers:

We will open our fourth store in the Blue Mouse theatre building, Eleventh and Washington streets, about May 1st.

Since we decided to expand and increase our chain of stores we have met with more or less criticism, some people saying, "Stout-Lyons wants to hog it all."

Realizing that this might be a natural conclusion, in view of our rapid expansion, a word of explanation at this time may be in order:

First of all, we are a co-operative institution. Every co-worker or employe has the opportunity, and is encouraged to become a stockholder whenever he has shown his integrity and the necessary ability. We do not even demand that he shall have money to invest with us, but set aside a given portion and allow him the earnings on it until paid for. EVERY SHARE OF STOCK OF THE STOUT-LYONS DRUG COMPANY IS OWNED BY A CO-WORKER, ACTIVELY ENGAGED IN THE BUSINESS. Our officers, managers and partners are selected and developed from the ranks of our employes. OUR FIRST PURPOSE IS TO MAKE MEN—NOT MONEY!

We take only a living salary out of the business, allowing the balance to remain for expansion and development. This means that our profits go to the many interested with us, and not to a small, centralized governing body or to capitalist shareholders.

In conclusion, you may ask: Why does this interest me? It is just this: Under this, our method, we can and do sell cheaper; our co-workers and employes are better satisfied, and the morale of the entire force is higher, with consequent better service for you, and—

EVERY ONE SHOULD BE INTERESTED WHEN THE TEACHINGS OF THE TENTH COMMANDMENT ARE BEING INJECTED INTO MODERN BUSINESS.

Very truly yours,
C. C. STOUT, President and Manager.
